Sidelights on Life in Paris During Momentous Days of the Great Peace Conference

French Capital, Outside of the Politicians and Diplomats, Has Lost Interest in This History-Making Convention and Is Already Forgetting the War for the Lighter and More Amusing Things of Life.

Having been present in Paris during the first phase of the peace conference, and made visits to the Rhine front, Charles M. Lincoln, managing editor of the New York World, has set down in note form some of his impressions. He tells things which are interesting to know and not harl to remember.

By CHARLES M. LINCOLN.
Managing Editor of New York World.

PARIS is rapidly progressing toward its pre-war life and conditions and in the process the city is fast losing interest in the peace conference. In the early days the gatherings at the Quay d'Orsay were the outstanding features of the daily life of the French capital. The French political and professional interest is as keen as ever, for this element knows what it wants and is fighting hard every minute to get it, but the great mass of the people are happy in absorption in their individual affairs. There is a well defined conviction that France and Great Britain will get results in the conference that will be satisfying to them.

The estimate of $5,000,000 as the total expenses of the United States delegation is not excessive when consideration is given to the fact the nation's efforts in the great work is nearly as large as that of Britain and the British delegation numbers 1100. A substantial percentage of the American personnel is composed of experts who are supposed to be learned in the many phases of the manifold propositions with which the delegation concerns itself.

The Hotel Crillon, the delegation's home, is entirely under the conduct of the American Government. There are about 200 army and navy officers constantly on duty at the hotel. The American commissioners go about Paris much more freely than do the delegates from the other countries. Otuside of the room in which the conferences are held the delegations have no common meeting ground, and while many unofficial meetings take place between a few of the "big men" of the delegations in the quiet of their own apartments, there is practically no fraternization among the various delegations.

The desire of the French for the reincorporation in French Lorraine of the Valley of the Saar is natural. The Saar Valley was included by the treaty of Paris in 1814 in French Lorraine, but after the Hundred Days War it was handed over to Prussia by the second treaty of Paris in 1815. In 1913, the year before the war began, France consumed 65,000,000 tons of coal, of which 25,000,000 tons were imported. Unless the French coal supply is increased France will remain to a great extent at the mercy of German coal producers. The Saar coal fields have an area of 380,000 acres.

The expense of mere living in Paris today is far in excess of that of any other city in the world. It is the old law of supply and demand. Many hotels have long been in the Government service. Many others have been taken over bodily by the peace commissions of the various Powers. The result is that with the number of comers to Paris increasing daily, the rentals of apartments are already in the clouds and no limit in sight. A little St. Louis apartment of four or five rooms would command from $2000 to $3000 in Paris. There is an abundance of food. Paris, in fact, has gone through the war in this respect very much better than has London. There are very few scarcities except sugar and butter. Fruits are very expensive, apples and pears $1 each, for illustration. But in all the first-class restaurants nearly all of their famous pre-war creations are still available. The volume of foreign money, as represented by officers and soldiers on leave or passing through has naturally had its effect and the price of a good dinner has soared. These are certainly heavenly days for the hotel men and restaurateurs of the French capital.

The night life of Paris is fast returning, although the cafe portion of it is still held somewhat in check. The streets are well filled with Parisians and the soldiers of the allies; there are not half enough taxicabs; the opera and the Comique are both in full flower and the theaters are not nearly large enough for the crowds that struggle to get into them. And in a "bijou" theater, about three minutes away on the Avenue de l'Opera, there flourishes a "musical comedy" production which in New York would first have the service of the Fire Department, with the police reserves a good second.

—o—

This is no time for "seeing France." Traveling is attended by every inconvenience imaginable. One who essays a journey across France may count himself fortunate, if, in spots, he is able to find a place to sleep on a floor. And when daylight comes he is quite likely to find a high officer of one of the allies as his nearest floor companion. Train services are demoralized. Nineteen hours from Metz to Paris is an example. Extended motoring calls for supplies of gasoline almost out of the question, except for official purposes. Passport regulations are still in full effect and will be for a long time. Steamship sailings from the other side are about as reliable as April weather. And he is a sensible man who, if obliged to go to Europe at present, "travels light." France does not want sight-seeing crowds just yet. She is not ready for them. Only for Government purposes or with real business reasons should men and women go to France for many months to come.

The battlefields are already being "mopped up." Their surfaces are being cleaned and everything —actually everything—in the way of metal, wood, rubber, leather, etc., is being retrieved. Americans are helping in this work. Huge piles of all kinds of material gathered in the waste and wreck of the war line the roads that skirt or run through the battlefields. For a century to come

What Germans Thought of Our Troops Before the Attack That Finished Them

The German military report on the offensive operations of the American troops at St. Mihiel has come into the possession of the American First Army Corps. Here are some extracts from the report. The Germans officially report that the Americans "fight to the last and do not put up their hands" and surrender.

"AT least nine American divisions took part under the command of Gen. Pershing. Of these nine divisions there were three—the 1st, 2d and 42d—first-class attacking divisions; two, the 4th and the 26th, good fighting divisions which had already shown their work in other large attacks. * * * The attack was preceded by a four-hour artillery preparation, in addition to a short trench mortar bombardment. The shooting of the batteries was very good, not only on the front trenches but also on all the communications and rear areas. * * * * The initial attack was carried out according to schedules, but the successive waves showed great ineptitude in following up the advance. Officers as well as men did not understand how to make use of the terrain. Instead of seeking protection when they encountered opposition they merely fell back. To crawl backward or forward on the ground, or to advance in quick jumps, does not seem to be understood by the Americans. They remain lying on the ground for the time being and, then just stand up again and try to advance. They are evidently afraid of being captured. When capture impends, however, THEY FIGHT TO THE LAST AND DO NOT PUT UP THEIR HANDS.

"The Americans showed themselves skilled in the use of machine guns. In defense they are very tenacious. The conduct of the infantry seems to show a lack of military training. The artillery preparation was well carried out. * * *

"The leadership was unskilled and awkward. The enemy apparently has many officers at his disposal, but the elements of leadership are lacking. Their embarrassment was unmistakable after obtaining their initial success They remained helpless on their new line and were unable to take full advantage of their victory. The French, in the same position, would have been much more dangerous. After the infantry had reached its objective the higher command failed. * * * It was therefore possible for the army detachment (the Germans), under the most difficult conditions, to extricate itself from its precarious situation in one night. * * * The Americans are very amateurish and therefore not to be feared in a large attack."

This official German report was written very shortly before the Americans with a "large attack" tore through the Argonne and went to Sedan.

Partisan Spirit to Run High (FOR PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN PURPOSES) in Next Congress, Speaker Says

Frederick H. Gillett Says Majority Will Spend Much Time Investigating the Conduct of the War and Seeking Evidence of Extravagance and Incompetency.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

FREDERICK H. GILLETT, who has been elected Speaker of the next House of Representatives, predicts, in an interview given to the New York Times, that the partisan spirit will run unusually high in the new Congress and that both parties will busy themselves with schemes to develop campaign material for the presidential race in 1920. One thing is certain, he says, and that is the Republicans will exact a complete accounting of the conduct of the war, with a view to determine whether the charges of extravagance and incompetency in the administration are well founded.

"Much criciticism of the administration will undoubtedly be heard," says Speaker Gillett. 'For a year and a half, although there has been great provocation to speak out, we have repressed criticism, because while the war was in progress we desired to do nothing that would lessen the enthusiasm of the people, or in any way diminish their energies, to win the war. But that motive no longer holds, and it would seem to me to be a duty that failure and delinquencies, wherever occurring in the conduct of the war, should be exposed.

"We have heard many rumors of wanton extravagance; there should be a thorough investigation to establish their truth or falsity. One of those that should be probed to the bottom is our shipbuilding, and I refer especially to Hog Island. The disposition for a general investigation will no doubt be intensified by the uncompromising opposition which the President displayed to supervision by Congress, even when that would have been under the conduct of his own party. When the war was in progress the Republican members, as the records of votes show, cast aside any partisan spirit and joined with the Democrats in voting the vast amounts of money called for by the administration. But there has been no accounting; we are certainly entitled to one.

Presidential Campaign Material

"On both sides and on general issues I think the partisan spirit will be active in the next Congress. During the next two years both parties will be preparing for the presidential election, and whether always deliberately or not their course will be influenced by this overshadowing event. I think this will result in good to the country, if not carried to extremes. In the change from war to peace we are face to face with problems of such difficulty and supreme importance that they may well sober too intense partisanship. It seemed to me that there never was a time when the country was in a frame of mind to respond more heartily to the message which the President delivered to Congress last May, when he said: 'Politics is adjourned. The elections will go to those who think the least of it, to those who go to their constituencies without explanation or excuse, with a plain record of duty faithfully performed.' This precept the President violated, and the result is too recent and too impressive to be forgotton. Narrow partisanship received a verdict of condemnation from the people. I hope, therefore, that the Republican Congress will take up the grave legislative problems tha face us free from any narrow partisanship and moved by a purpose to co-operate in the solution of these problems with the hostile administration, realizing that what is best for the country is best for the party.

Constructive Legislation Imperative

"Our main task will be constructive legislation for the period following the war. I think the keynote should be for provisions that will give free scope to individual enterprise. All burdensome shackles on business should be removed. Among the leading problems are what is to be done with the railroads, what is to be the policy toward large corporations, and the relations of capital and labor. I think the question that will probably call for first consideration is that of the railroads.

"As to the telephone and the telegraph lines, I think these should be returned to private ownership. I do not think the operation of a business by a republic is in line with efficiency. It has a tendency to check initiative and invention, and, instead of making improvements where the real necessities of the situation dictate, to locate them on the principle of the pork barrel.

"We need a sound fiscal system as never before. Our war expenditures are now rapidly growing less, but the interest on our enormous debt and new items of expenditures which the progressive spirit of the day demands, such as public health, education, social insurance and development, good roads, will compel for years large appropriations and require the adoption of the budget system. We have on our statute books now the germ of an intelligent budget system, but the law which embodies it is not observed.

"In 1908 Congress, with the desire to compel the President to co-operate toward a more orderly fiscal system, enacted a law making it the duty of the President to calculate what the revenues of the coming year would be and then to review the estimates of expenditures proposed, and, if they exceeded the probable revenues, either to reduce them or to suggest how the revenue should be increased. But there is no penalty for ignoring this duty, and during this administration, while the estimates of expenditures have largely exceeded the probable revenues, the President has regularly disobyed the law and failed to present to Congress the required budget—as I pointed out in a recent address in New York City.

"Congress Must Resume Functions"

"In the present Congress the Republicans advocated that all appropriations should be considered by one committee, as had been done at one time, and it was an ideal system, but in the present session a dozen committees have been considering as many appropriation bills, each competing with the other to get all it can for its department, with little consideration for the needs of the others or for the revenues from which they are to be paid.

"The function which the Constitution intends Congress to exercise should be reassumed. In the next Congress there will be a general determination to end the arbitrary, autocratic system which always menaces a republic in war time and which was never more in evidence than now."

Mr. Gillett rarely makes a long speech. What he says is compressed. But his habit of not wasting words has no tinge of studied reticence or austerity. A companionable smile makes known that the reason he doesn't say anything is simply because at that time he hasn't anything to say. Washington understands this, and long ago, in not misinterpreting quiet ways for overdrawn dignity, treated him with the familiarity of one well liked. That was in the days of the first Roosevelt administration, when Taft was known as "Bill" Taft. Mr. Gillett was then known as one of the "three bachelors." The other two were the late William H. Moody, then Secretary of the Navy, and Gen. Crozier, Chief of Ordnance. They were not very far apart in years and occupied the same apartment. All seemed seasoned bachelors, but Mr. Gillett is no longer one. Three years ago he married Mrs. Christine Rice Hoar, the widow of Congressman Rockwood Hoar.

Never Makes Long Speech

The Massachusetts Congressman does not look his years. In his clear blue eye and clear-cut, firm expression there is no sign of diminished vigor. He keeps in the best physical shape by playing golf, and they say he is one of the best around Washington at the game.

One of the first men to come out for Mr. Gillett for Speaker was Representative Allen T. Treadway, who comes from the district adjoining Gillett's and the one in which he was born. Mr. Treadway, when asked about Mr. Gillett, had this to say:

"He has been a member of Congress since March 4, 1892, having first been elected to the Fifty-third Congress—a period of 26 years. He will be the senior member of the House in point of continuous service. At times his district has been fairly closely divided between the two po-

Economy wherever possible in Government expenditures.

Return the railroads and telegraph and telephone companies to private ownership.

What the Parisian in the Street Thinks of the League of Nations

Replies of 50 Persons Picked at Random From All Walks of Life on the Thoroughfares of the French Capital Show That People Are for Any Organization That Will End War, Though Their First Concern Is Insuring That Germany Shall Never Be Able to Make Another Attack.

PARIS, March 5.

IN the eyes of all Frenchmen the destiny of France hinges upon her freedom from aggressive spoliatory invasions of her territory such as have borne upon her heavily in the past.

Every Frenchman sees in the peace now in progress a constructive means of averting the age-long menace of war waged on his country's soil. The path to be followed in the attainment of this goal is a matter of controversy.

What terms must be embodied in the covenants of peace in order that France may be assured of a future untroubled by criminal aggression? Will the league of nations, with its obligatory arbitration of international disputes, its limitation of armaments, its eventual recurrence to physical force if moral force shall fail, prove sufficient? Or must there be more material guarantees, such as the possession of the Saar Valley as well as Alsace-Lorraine; the establishment of a neutralized area over all German territory west of the Rhine, even possibly an indefinite continuation of military occupation of the Rhine bridgeheads?

These are questions the men of France and the men of other lands, too, are asking one another. They must be answered, first by the representatives of the French republic; then by those of all the nations gathered at the peace conference.

Upon the wisdom of their replies will depend, to an immeasurable extent, the ultimate success of the deliberations now under way at the Quai d'Orsay; for there is no more important problem before the statesmen assembled there than that of satisfying the people of France that they are to be made safe for all time from any repetition of the hideous Calvary of the past four years.

In the interval that must elapse before the conference can formulate a final solution, it may be of interest to the Post-Dispatch readers to know how "the man in the street" in France feels about these great questions. To get at his sentiments the following questions were addressed to persons selected at random but representing many social levels:

"What do you think of the league of nations?"

"What do you think should be done about the left bank of the Rhine, particularly the Saar Valley?"

What Fifty Replies Reveal

I have obtained some 50 replies to these queries. They are translated exactly as given. It is worthy of note that almost without exception the replies emanating from individuals of the working class are favorable to the Wilsonian doctrine of a world made safe through a league of nations and are opposed to the idea of seeking security through annexation or neutralization of German territory, other than Alsace-Lorraine. The replies, with the position in life of each person interrogated, are as follows:

SHOP CLERK: It is a big conception, this league of nations, and seems full of promise for keeping the peace. These questions are very delicate, of course, but I think they can be solved. As to the left bank of the Rhine, if we annexed it wouldn't Germany be likely to make it a cause for a future quarrel? To avoid this possibility, it seems to me we should be satisfied with Alsace-Lorraine.

A LAWYER: I strongly favor a league of nations, provided it is backed by a strong international army, but I don't believe that is realizable today. While generally hostile to annexation, I feel that beyond doubt our security obliges us to carry our frontier to the Rhine.

A PORTRAIT PAINTER: A society of nations is a beautiful idea, but humanity has not yet reached that stage of idealism. For that reason, a tangible barrier, like the Rhine, is necessary as the frontier of France.

A BANK EMPLOYE: A society of nations is attainable only if supported by well defined guarantees. Let us be content with the disannexation of Alsace-Lorraine and not annex new territories which will bring us trouble in the future.

PROPRIETOR OF A BOOK STORE: A league of nations! What is that? We had better make a peace that will put Germany off the left bank of the Rhine.

A POILU: To hell with all that! What is needed is demobilization.

A MERCHANT: A league of nations would be the commencement of a United States of Europe. Certainly the Rhine is our natural frontier, but that is a matter which will never be settled until there shall be a United States of Europe.

A POLICE OFFICIAL: A league of nations is a beautiful dream, but at present it would be better to find a way to reduce the cost of living. Iron from Alsace-Lorraine and coal from the Saar Basin would help us in that respect.

Deputy Opposes a League

A CONSERVATIVE DEPUTY: A league of nations would be a pleasant subject for conversation —between two wars. The ideal arrangement, of course, would be to keep Germany east of the Rhine, but even among the Entente Powers this view is disputed.

AN OMNIBUS CONDUCTOR: Maybe I will learn some day what a society of nations means. Meanwhile I would like to see a reduction in the price of butter. The one thing certain is that we must have Alsace-Lorraine.

A WINE MERCHANT: A society of nations that would preserve us from a new war is all we need.

AN OFFICER: There can be no nobler aim than that of assuring world equilibrium by quenching the appetite for conquest through a league of nations. Return to France of certain parts of the Rhenish provinces would be of immense value. For the present it seems enough to envisage the return of Alsace-Lorraine.

ANOTHER OFFICER: It would be premature to make a league of nations for the maintenance of peace before fixing the frontiers of the various European states. The frontiers of France and Belgium must lie on the Rhine. That is the first essential step, in my opinion, and it will be the best means, too, of beginning a reduction of armaments.

A CASHIER: I am skeptical about a league of nations. The left bank of the Rhine should be cleared of Germans, and they should be prevented from crossing the Rhine.

Favors an Armed Society

A LINOTYPIST: A society of nations, to prevent wars, must be formidably armed. The left bank of the Rhine should be occupied by allied detachments. The German frontier should begin 30 kilometers beyond that line.

A RETIRED OFFICER: To be effective, the league of nations should satisfy everyone, including the Germans. You know that is impossible. Nature has placed the Rhine between the Western peoples and Germany.

A FRENCH BOURGEOIS: A society of nations will become effective when man attains perfection. Until then it can only furnish occasion for many fine speeches and words. As regards the French frontier, put it where you will, and the Germans will always find pretext for revenge.

A VEGETABLE MERCHANT: People will not be confident of anything so long as the prices of cabbages, carrots and potatoes remain high. If prices will go down with the institution of the league of nations, I am for it. In regard to the frontier, don't let us fear to extend our territory a little more or a little less, for the boche will always owe us more.

A TYPIST: If we call for the perpetual disarmament of Germany, a society of nations will be useless. The Rhine should be the frontier, with occupation of important towns and districts on the right bank by the allies.

League Moral, Rhine Material

A BANK EMPLOYE: Districts on the right bank of the Rhine should be occupied by the allies.

ANOTHER BANK EMPLOYE: The conference of The Hague and the league of nations are rungs of a ladder leading toward perpetual peace, but they are only rungs. I have an idea that the ladder is a long one. The left bank of the Rhine should be neutralized property.

A FRENCH ZOUAVE: That is all politics; I am not interested; I want to earn my living.

A TELEGRAPH OPERATOR: A society of nations should be strong enough to prevent future wars. That would be hard, with such hypocritical creatures as the Germans. Our frontier is the Rhine, but if we receive Alsace-Lorraine and the Saar Valley, let the other be neutralized.

A CAPTAIN (attached to the French peace delegation): A league of nations must convince the French military leaders that it is a competent safeguard for France against German invasion. As to the Saar Valley, any arrangement would be satisfactory that would definitely assure us the permanent use of its coal.

A PEASANT FROM THE MIDI: I know nothing of the league of nations or of the Saar Valley, Marriage in Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was very much surprised when I read in the columns of the Post-Dispatch, and in other papers, what Senators said about the old stale story of the "nationalizing of women in Russia."

As a working woman, and as an American who believes in the principles of Socialism, I object to such misrepresentation of the Russian workingmen's Government. I ask you to publish the following reliable information about the latest marriage laws decreed by the Russian Soviet republic. This information was published in one of the late numbers of The Nation, a reliable magazine published by Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard in New York. The Nation reports:

> Among the many decrees issued recently by the Soviet Government of Russia, the decree on marriage has been made the subject of very general comment. Articles have appeared in which it was asserted that this decree forced women to marry against their will. The new law on the subject of marriage contained in the decree of the Soviets, states in detail how marriage should be performed.
> According to this decree, the Russian Soviet Republic recognizes only civil marriages; church marriage is considered the private affair of the contracting parties. Those who wish to contract marriage must appear before the Department of Registration of Marriage and Births of the district and declare their intention orally or in writing. Such declarations of intention to contract marriage are not accepted from persons of the male sex under 18 years and of the female sex under 16 years of age. (In Trans-Caucasia, where the custom of marrying younger is in practice, the native inhabitants may enter into marriage upon attaining the age of 13 and 16 years, respectively, for girls and boys). Relatives of the direct line, full and half brothers and sisters, insane persons and those already married cannot apply for a marriage certificate. Those wishing to obtain a marriage certificate must, according to this law sign a statement "that they contract marriage voluntarily." The latter clause would indicate that no legal forcible marriages are possible. The law further allows the contracting parties to decide whether they will be called by the surname of the husband or wife, or by any combined names of both.
> The law is very simple, and a certificate of marriage is easily obtainable, if the contracting parties come under the provisions quoted above. In general, the law does not vary from marriage laws in other civilized countries.

Thanking you in advance for the publication of these lines, I remain, Women Working Who Don't Need To.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been reading letters in this column from returned soldiers and would like to make a suggestion which I am sure would help very much. Why do married women, who have husbands to support them take positions away from those who need them so badly? I know several married women who hold good paying positions and whose husbands hold good paying position, yet they go downtown every day and take "someone else's" job. There certainly must be something wrong with the man who is able to support a wife, and yet allows her to help support him. There are thousands of these married women, and why not hire these ex-soldiers, or good, willing men in their places?

I think every business man should investigate and give all married women an "honorable discharge" and take an oath never to hire another married woman whose husband is supporting her, and I am sure there will be plenty of positions for all. OUST 'EM.

Under Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

On June 30, 1919, war-time prohibition goes into effect. On that date there will remain in bond about 80,000,000 gallons of whiskies. Under national prohibition it will be lawful to sell whiskies for medicinal purposes. Whisky is being used wholesale in all States, "wet" and "dry," to cure and prevent influenza.

The medical fraternity predicts a return of influenza next winter and whisky will be needed. But the whisky will not be extant. The holders will not keep it for medicinal purposes. They will export or redistill it. This will be due to the fact that Congress, while providing for the sale of whisky for medicinal purposes, has made it a felony to use the mails in offering whiskies, wines, beers, etc., for sale for any purpose whatever. Therefore, we will have real prohibition next winter, though it may cost tens of thousands of lives.

"But what's the difference!" We must try prohibition. T. M. GILMORE, President National Model License League.

DRASTIC PROHIBITION LAWS.

Lord Parker, the eminent British jurist, discussing law in connection with the proposed League of Nations, gave the following pithy and comprehensive definition of modern law:

> At the present day a law may be defined as a rule of conduct generally observed, and exceptional deviations from it are punished by tribunals based upon force. A little consideration will show that, even at the present day, though tribunals based upon force may deal with exceptional deviations from the general rule of conduct, no tribunal and no force is of any avail at all when once the exceptions are so numerous that the rule cannot be said to be generally observed.

This definition paraphrases legal maxims, supported by human experience of centuries of experiments in law. It is recognized in all free countries that no law which is opposed by a majority sentiment of the people can be enforced. This applies to excessive punishments for acts recognized as crimes against society when legislation against the acts themselves are universally approved. It applies with special force to laws creating crimes; that is, laws making criminal and prescribing punishment for acts in themselves innocent and harmless. To this class belong all sumptuary acts such as prohibitions of drink, food or habit which in themselves are neither unusual nor harmful, nor infringe upon the rights of others or the public peace and order.

We call the attention of those who are trying to force through Legislatures drastic laws for the enforcement of the Federal prohibition amendment to this definition. Legal prohibition is in itself an assault upon personal liberty and is difficult to enforce in its mildest form, but when it is supplemented by drastic laws which break down all the barriers which sound guarantees of freedom and security in the person and the home have erected, and invade all rights; when they revive search and seizure on suspicion or mere information, arrest, confiscation and enforced incriminating testimony, they exceed all bounds of right and reason and are doomed to failure. They will bring law into contempt and hatred.

This warning should be heeded in particular by the prohibitionists in states like Missouri, where there is a strong majority opposition. How will it be possible to obtain the enforcement of such a drastic law as that now pending in the Missouri General Assembly, when the people of Missouri have persistently voted down prohibition in any form? Will juries approve the drastic provision of the laws? Can courts and law officers enforce them against public sentiment?

Under our theory and practice of free government law is the expression of public sentiment. When laws embody policies not only opposed by majority sentiment but contrary to fundamental principles and guarantees of rights and liberties they become mockeries. This is the fatal weakness of all prohibitory laws dealing with personal conduct not criminal or disorderly. To destroy the saloon is an easy matter, but to subject individual citizens to tyrannical surveillance, despotic regulation, unwarrantable legal processes and excessive punishments for harmless acts is a wholly different and outrageous thing.

If it were not for the dishonesty, disorder and contempt for law that such drastic legislation engenders, the anti-prohibitionists might well pray that it be adopted. There is no surer and quicker way of sweeping prohibition into the waste basket.

ELEVEN MACHINE ALDERMANIC NOMINEES.

If the entire list of 14 Republicans named for Aldermen Friday in a small and inconclusive primary vote are elected, but three new faces will appear in the Council chamber. All the other 11 are members of the present solidly Republican, unsatisfactory, machine-ridden board. Two sitting members whom even the machine did not dare to indorse were nominated. If unacceptable to the machine, to which they had rendered blindly partisan service, it can be judged how unacceptable these two are from the public's standpoint.

The single man on the board who had shown the slightest evidence of independence and of regard for the public rather than machine interests, Alderman Haller, was defeated for renomination. The Democratic nominee in the Haller ward, the Twenty-fourth, is Nils Grant, chairman of the Referendum League, who has won much favor by his vigorous fight on United Railways grab legislation. His election would not only be an assurance of honest service at the city hall, but would provide a channel for expressing dissent against the machine's high-handed, unsocial policies.

HOME BUILDING BY THE STATE.

Less than five years ago North Dakota's law affording state aid on the building and loan association plan for the construction of homes would have been considered an extraordinary departure. During that period however, events have attached to governing agencies a new responsibility for the housing problem. The propriety of aiding home builders with public money as well as with suggestions looking to more sanitary and comfortable and economical construction is now recognized.

North Dakota having authorized the departure the question remains what advantage state building and loan associations will have over private building and loan associations. The possibilities of the private plan of course are limited. When a certain number of loans for building have been made the private associations must wait for a further accumulation of resources. But state aid will virtually be on an unlimited scale. The state can make loans at a rate of interest so much lower than that on private loans as to constitute an important item in home building. By contracting for lumber and other materials at low cost the state might also give further benefits to its citizens.

North Dakota's $17,000,000 program for public elevators, home-building activities and other forms of useful service offers an interesting experiment in governmental activities.

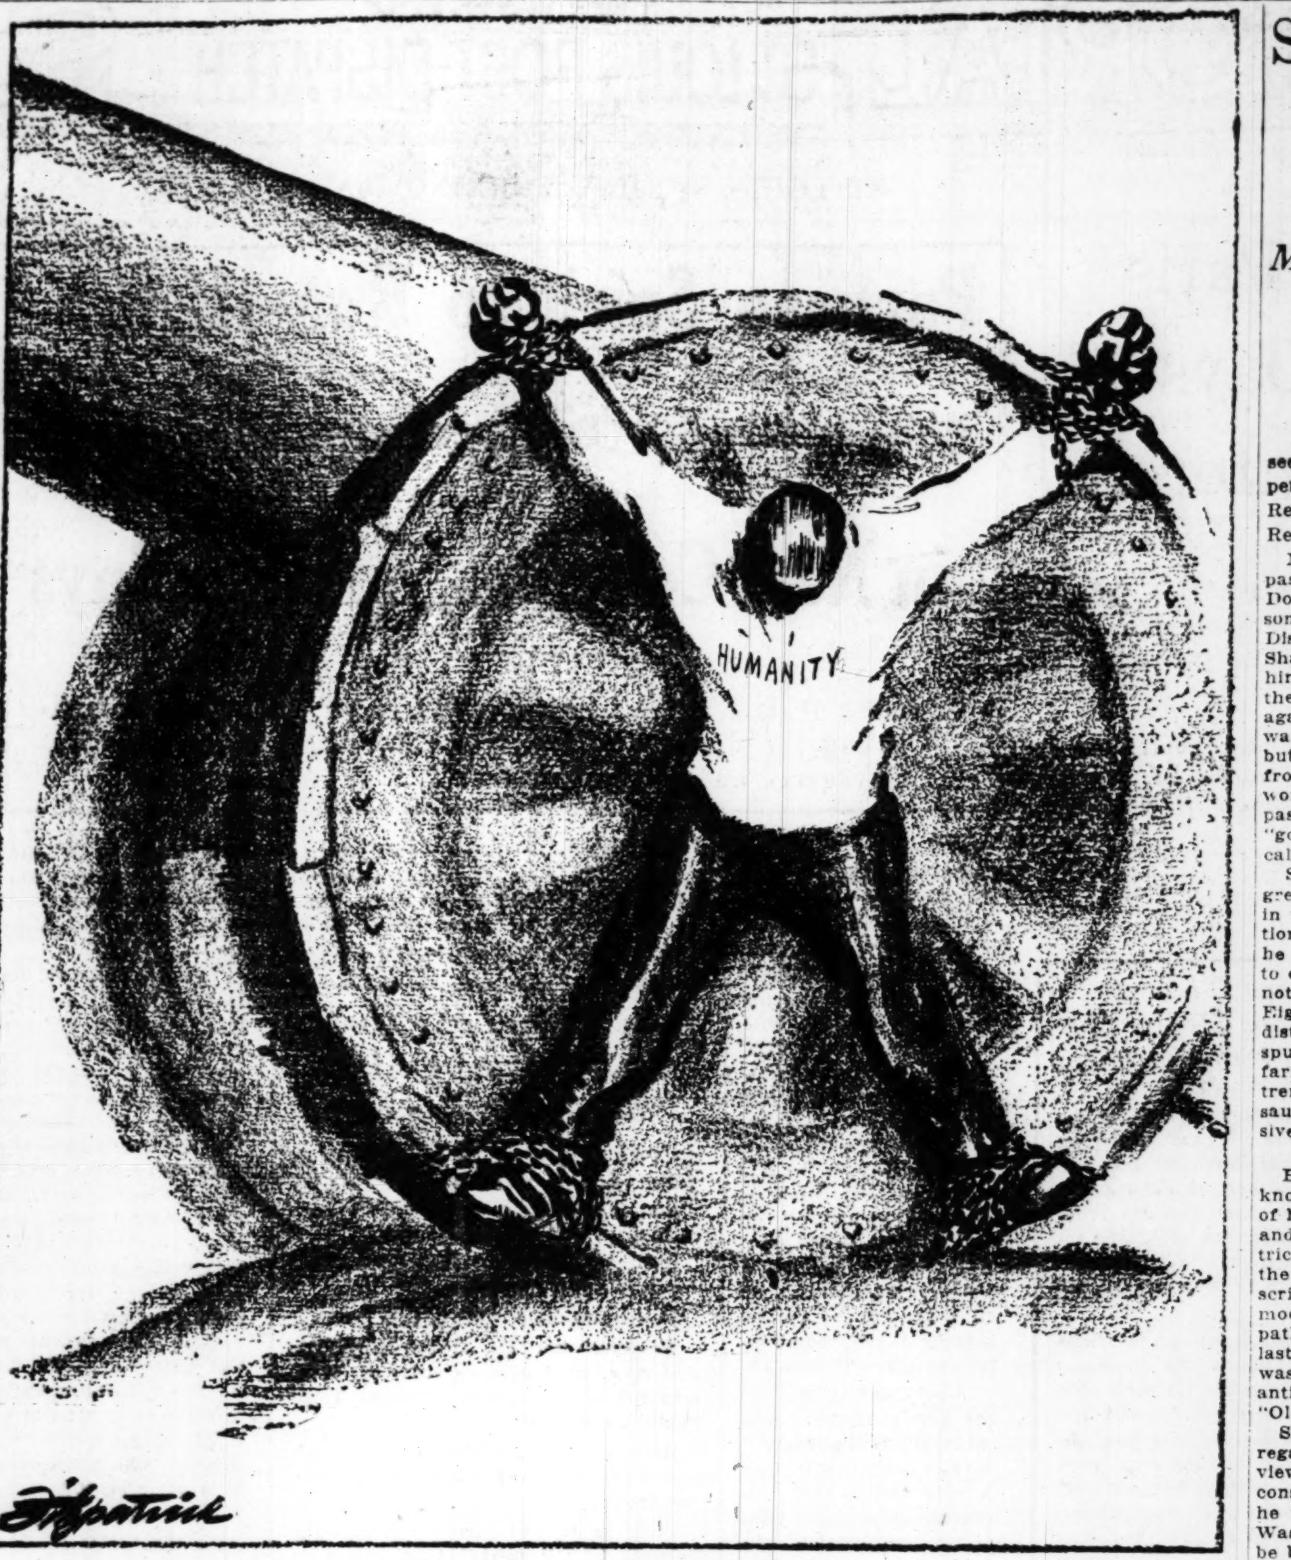
While there are now about 200,000 automobiles owned in Missouri there are also in the State 1,140,000 horses and 344,000 mules. Probably the horsepower of all the automobiles largely exceeds the horsepower of all the horses plus the horsepower of all the mules. Nevertheless the traction needs of many more individuals and families are served by horses and mules than are served by gas engines.



THIS MUST BE UNTANGLED.

Build Your Country Into Safety.

From the Manufacturers' Record, Baltimore.

THE best insurance against a growth of Socialism and Bolshevism is the employment in profitable work of our entire population.

The world is in flux. In this crucial hour—this plastic stage of civilization—we can mold America into a solid and enduring permanency of true character; or we can let it be misshapen and distorted until like some great evil full of ugliness it becomes "set" and adamantine for wrong.

If in this hour of world change, of false teachings, of hell-directed activities, we have idle bodies and brains, we shall find the devil making full use of them as his workshop.

We must be busy making all men busy.

We must expand our railroads, build a vast system of highways, improve the small cross-roads, pave our streets, build dwellings by the hundreds of thousands, that for every family there shall be the opportunity for a dwelling with modern conveniences. Baltimore, for instance, has not for many years permitted a single dwelling to be built without a bathroom and its sanitary advantages. Other cities and towns must do the same. Farmhouses, even of the poorest tenants, must be made sanitary and comfortable. Waterworks and sewerage systems must be built wherever possible and existing plants extended wherever necessary.

There must be in all sections great development of work of this kind, and it should be put under way without a day's unnecessary delay.

Work, work of every possible character, construction activities of every variety, the building of dwellings, large and small, of churches, schools and municipal structures, must be stimulated as quickly and as broadly as possible.

Patriotism, common sense, and even selfish interests, all combine to demand that every man shall do his utmost toward bringing about immediately such wide-sweeping activities as to create work for every man and woman willing to work.

On with your work! Do it now!

Consistent, Anyway.

From the Boston Post.

WHATEVER we may think of "conscientious objectors" as a class, we must admit that they are consistent in their conscientiousness. They have proved it in the most practical way—via the pocketbook.

For it now turns out that almost all of the objectors recently released by the army at Fort Leavenworth have returned the money paid them on discharge, holding that the scruples which prevented them from fighting also forbade the acceptance of pay for noncombatant service which relieved a fighter for the front. About $5000 already has been returned and remittances are still coming in.

To refuse money for a principle when it is legally due requires considerable moral courage. If these men had had physical courage comparable, what excellent soldiers they would have made.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH

"SHE LIVES ALONE."

THE eyes that drink her beauty up
must look
In my own soul to know she lives
alone!
And all the smiles she gives to me,
she took
From the cool silences of dreams unknown!

So fair she walks in life's clean days of light,
So calm and still that throbbing eyelids pain,
When they who love her find no love's respite
Or hearts burn ashen ere she smiles again.

And though men whisper, "She is warm with love!"
They know her only as a passerby,
As men know stars in brilliant realms
Which smile or beckon from the paleblue sky.

Too late, men curse in vain the source
Of smiles that fade ere lips may find lips dead,
And they had known her when, in childhood's clothes,
She played beside them with her "butter-bread."

Why does God give her beauty to a stone,
Her lips such beauty of their blood and smile?
How can a being such ripe treasure own
Who has no soul to give them all the while?

Her rich red lips and all her pulsing form
No spirit has when lovers come to woo,
Held tight to breast, there is no answer warm,
But every charm is cold as death to you!

"Oh, but for life!" the maddest love will ache.
Rich, yielding torrents that will burst
aflame!
Life is but self—on fire to give and take—
Of Love—of Art—of God—or wealth or fame!

How can one live so cold and dead as she,
Smiling the lie of joys that are not hers?
Her eyes a-dream with things they never see,
And still cold breast a-tremble 'neath
her furs!

The eyes that drink her beauty up,
must look
In my own soul to know she lives
alone!
And all the smiles she gives to men she
From the cool silences of dreams unknown!

Mr. Wilson's idea, of course, is that less can be accomplished just now by having our Senators remain in Washington than can be accomplished by having them return to their states.

BLANKET.

There happened to be one other civilian on our Pullman. All the rest were soldiers, sailors, marines—all coming West on their way home. Some had been to France. Some had actually been in the fighting. These were the ones for whose experience all the others would have given goodness knows what. One boy who had been in the thick of it above Chateau-Thierry and had at different times found himself with mixed groups of black and white infantrymen and marines, carried a German Mauser rifle and a German gas mask as trophies of that memorable chase.

They all told their stories, those who had never gotten to their heart's desire always encouraging the more fortunate to tell what they had done, what they had seen and what they had felt. One boy from the Texas Panhandle had lost his lower left arm. "A piece of shrapnel did it," he said. "I wasn't fast enough that once." That was all. It happened somewhere north of the Marne, but as for a word painting of just what the occasion was like—nothing. He wasn't fast enough that once.

After they had all told their stories, Blanket took the stage. He held it for the rest of that day and until we all separated at St. Louis. Blanket was an Indian. He had been a marine. He had never gotten to France; but that did not make any difference. Much the more important thing seemed to be that France had never gotten to Blanket. Blanket had imagination, humor—the rare art of story telling. Thus it was that riding through the soft winter afternoon, with nothing else to do, we forgot about Europe and attended the war in Santo Domingo and Hayti. Ever hear of it? No? Well, none of us had. However, Blanket first made sure that the other fellows had told us everything they knew about the war in Europe before he mentioned the war in Santo Domingo and Hayti. He did not want to take any advantage of the war in Europe. He wanted everything said for it that anybody could say for it. Then he told us about the war in Santo Domingo and Hayti. He never made an odious comparison. He merely left us to judge. Only once did he display any resentment of the somewhat greater fame of the war in Europe. That was when, jerking his sleeve back and showing us where a bullet had passed through his arm, he said: "You know we don't get any wound stripes or decorations. We just came out with what we had left of what we went in with."

We all laughed. It was funny the way Blanket said it—his drollery—his quick way—the tremendous irony in his tone.

Then he jerked up his shirt front and displayed his abdomen.

"See that scar?" he asked.

We saw it.

"Knives—swiz-z-z-z-z-t! Talk about gas—shrapnel—flying pigs and that stuff! This fellow—a regular ace of spades—got me from behind a tree at 30 feet."

He was in the hospital for some time.

"I got well looking for something in the newspapers about it," he said.

Seven New Names on Missouri Delegation in the Next Congress

Most Notable of Those Retired on War Issues Was Dorsey W. Shackleford—Perl Decker, Boy Orator, Also a Lame Duck

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The next House of Representatives will see Missouri's delegation of 16 members considerably changed, both in personnel and in political complexion. Instead of 14 Democrats and two Republicans, as in the last Congress, there will be 11 Democrats and five Republicans. Seven of the delegation will be new.

Most notable of the changes is the passing from active political life of Dorsey W. Shackleford of Jefferson City, who represented the Eighth District continuously for 20 years. Shackleford's anti-war record cost him his seat. Technically, he met the President's "acid test" by voting against the McLemore resolution warning Americans off armed ships, but his vote failed to exonerate him from the charge that he quietly worked among his colleagues for the passage of the resolution, and then "got out from under" on the roll call.

Shackleford was known in Congress for his "button-holing" tactics in working for, or opposing, legislation. Like Senator William J. Stone, he preferred the private conference to oratory. This method he employed not only in Congress but in the Eighth District, where the judicious distribution of favors and his homespun campaigning tactics among the farmers kept him impregnably intrenched against the biennial assaults of younger and more progressive members of his party.

Misjudged the Sentiment.

But "Old Shack," as he was known, finally misread the temper of his district. The farmers of Boone and the other counties of the district, men who had sent their sons to the war, planted war crops and subscribed to Liberty Loans, were in no mood to listen to his plea for sympathy when he went among them last summer. At many meetings he was received coldly or with open antipathy. It was thumbs down for "Old Shack."

Shackleford's passing, while not regarded as a political calamity, is viewed with personal regret by a considerable number of friends that he made during his long service in Washington. As a legislator, he will be best remembered as a good roads advocate, having served as chairman of the Roads Committee under the Democratic control of Congress. He was also a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, and as such was invited to the dinner which the President gave at the White House immediately after his return from abroad. Illness was announced as the reason for Shackleford's failure to attend.

He Has Lost Spirit.

Since the primary that went against his, Shackleford has been a negligible factor in Congress. He has, in fact, been absent from Washington much of the time since last August. On the few occasions during the last session when he appeared on the floor of the House—coming in, as was his custom, with hat in hand—he looked spiritless and worn, obviously in poor health.

Shackleford is a type of the old-line politician, swept aside by the current of new events. It is doubtful whether he can ever "come back." He belongs to another era. He is the tragedy so familiar in Washington, of the man shunted out of public life at an advanced ade—Shackleford is 65—after a long career of office-holding. There is no glamor in his passing, but much of pathos.

Shackleford will be succeeded in Congress by W. L. Nelson, who defeated him for the Democratic nomination. Nelson was born in Cooper County but is a resident of Columbia. He has edited a country paper, lectured for the State Board of Agriculture and written much on agricultural topics. He is a young and vigorous man and can be counted upon to work hard to make his mark in Congress. Nelson was elected on a platform of Americanism and of promises that he would stay in Washington and attend to business, and specifically look out for the farmers' interests.

Decker a War Victim.

In the Fifteenth (Joplin) District, Perl D. Decker (Dem.), the "boy orator" of the House, was defeated by I. V. McPherson (Rep.) of Aurora. Decker's loss of the seat which he had held for three terms is attributed largely to his anti-war attitude. He was able to show from the record that after America entered the war he was consistent in support of the President's measures, but he could not offset the drift toward an opponent with several sons in active service.

Decker was a member of the Interstate Commerce Committee and made a creditable record as a legislator. One of his last speeches in the House was a burning oration in reply to an anti-prohibition speech by the late Representative Jacob E. Meeker of St. Louis. It looked for a moment as if the two Missourians would come to blows. Decker will return to the practice of law in Joplin.

After five terms in Congress from the Fourteenth District, Joseph J. Russell (Dem.) of Charleston will give way to Ed D. Hayes (Rep.) of Cape Girardeau. Russell was a member of four committees—Elections, Food Control, Insular Affairs and Pensions. His activity in the House was chiefly in connection with the work of the Pensions Committee. For a long time he has been in poor health, which prevented him from making an active campaign for re-election.

Borland Died in Germany.

Outside of Speaker Champ Clark, the most conspicuous member of the Missouri delegation was W. P. Borland of the Fifth (Kansas City) District, who died recently in Germany. Borland, a Democrat, served five terms and was defeated for renomination to the next Congress by W. T. Bland. He was a political enemy of Senator James A. Reed and aspired to Reed's seat in the upper house.

Borland made himself unpopular among Government clerks by trying to put through a law requiring them to work eight hours a day instead of seven. He was a stanch supporter of war measures and was active as a member of the Appropriations Committee. He came into national prominence through his effort to bring about an investigation of the packers. His resolution to that effect died in the House, but the investigation was later ordered by the President.

W. T. Bland of Kansas City, Borland's successor, is a former Circuit Judge and is recognized as a strong waterways man. He is the head of a wholesale drug house.

Walter L. Hensley (Dem.), Representative from the Thirteenth District for four terms, did not run for renomination. Hensley was a member of the Naval Affairs Committee and was prominent as a champion of a "little navy" policy. After voting against the war, he favored all measures for its prosecution. Hensley was recently appointed United States Attorney for the Eastern Missouri District. His home is at Farmington. Hensley will be succeeded by Marion E. Rhodes (Rep.) of Potosi, a former Congressman.

Job for Hamlin.

Another outgoing Congressman, Courtney W. Hamlin (Democrat) of Springfield has been provided with a Federal job, Speaker Champ Clark having appointed him one of the three House members of a joint commission to make a wage classification of Government employes. All three of the men named by Clark are "lame ducks" who will not be in the next Congress. Among the Senators chosen for the commission, all of whom will return to Congress, is Spencer of Missouri.

Hamlin, a lawyer representative of the Seventh District, served seven terms in Congress. He was chairman of the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department (one of those committees that never function except when the administration is of opposite political faith from Congress) and a member of the Committees on Industrial Arts and Expositions, Mines and Territories. Hamlin was well-known to the members of Congress through having frequently been called to the chair by Speaker Clark to preside over the House in Committee of the Whole.

Two New Members.

Hamlin was defeated at the last Democratic primary by Sam C. Major of Fayette, who was elected, but whose seat is being contested. Major is a former State Senator. He had previously been a candidate at a time when he felt it necessary to explain whenever he made a speech that he was not a relative of Elliott W. Major, then Governor.

From the Tenth (St. Louis) District, Cleveland Newton, former Assistant Circuit Attorney of St. Louis and a former member of the State Legislature, will come into Congress as successor to Frederick Essen of Clayton, who filled out the unexpired term of the late Representative Meeker. Newton is prominent in State Republican politics and at various times has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor and for Senator.

Newton is the only one of the Republicans in the next Congress who was not lined up by Representative L. C. Dyer of St. Louis, who succeeds himself in the Twelfth District, to vote for Gillett for Speaker of the House. Newton cast his ballot for Mann. He picked the real winner in the Republican factional fight, for though Gillett was elected Speaker, Mann got control of the important Committee on Committees which deals out the committee assignments.

C. OF C. PUBLIC SAFETY COMMITTEE TO FORM PLANS

Will Meet at Dinner and Outline Campaign of Work for Coming Year.

The Public Safety Committee of the Safety Council, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, will give a dinner at the American Annex tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock, when a program for conducting an intensive public safety campaign for the ensuing year will be discussed. Arthur T. Morey, general manager of the Commonwealth Steel Co., chairman of the committee, will preside.

The committee is seeking the co-operation of the Police Department, Fire Department, Board of Public Welfare, Coroner's office, Street Department, the public schools, the Automobile Club and other organizations, as well as the general public.

Part of the proposed program is the launching of a special court for the hearing of cases of persons violating the municipal ordinances pertaining to public safety, and the creation of a vigilance committee composed of members of various organizations throughout the city to report such violations.

Events in the Social World

This Year's Activities of St. Louis Society Interfered With More Than in 1918 by Lenten Season, Because of the End of the War—While Hostilities Were Rife Last Year St. Louis Society Kept Busy With War Work During the Religious Observance Period.

WITH the Lenten season an actuality, society has donned the penitential garb in earnest and but comparatively few events from now on will be scheduled until after Easter. Last year with so much war work to be done and with social functions "non est" for the war period, but little difference was made during Lent, but now with most war activities abandoned, this, our first Lenten season since the closing of the great war which was in chastening era for humanity, will give an opportunity of opening a broad path for the observance of introspection of which many will eagerly take advantage.

THE reunion and tea of the Catholic Woman's League at the Statler Hotel, the bridge-dinner of the St. Louis Woman's Club and the Lenox Hall Alumnae bridge party at the Buckingham all on the day preceding Ash Wednesday and the Suffrage Tea yesterday at the Statler with informal affairs interspersed served to enliven the past week to a considerable degree. There were no large weddings of importance during the week but a quiet and hurriedly planned one was that of Miss Lucile Eleanor Kaye to Edward L. Wallace which took place on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. Roch's Church with the Rev. Father George Kuhlman officiating. Only the relatives and a few close friends were present. Miss Lucille Butler was the maid of honor and Jack Mullally served as best man. The bride is the daughter of the late William H. Kaye and Mrs. Kaye of 6356 Washington boulevard. She received her education at the Visitation Convent and has been very popular in her set.

Mr. Wallace is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wallace of 705 Interdrive, University City, and was educated at the Kemper Military Academy. He only returned Saturday from Camp Funston where he received his discharge from the service, having been with the 307th Field Signal Battalion, Radio Division in France, where he was gassed. After the ceremony the couple departed for Florida and upon their return will decide upon a residence.

THE marriage of Miss Elizabeth J. Cook to William Wilson of Englewood, N. J., took place Thursday in New York. The bride who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac T. Cook of 4314 Lindell boulevard, is a graduate of Mary Institute and also of Smith College, Class of 1917. She has been in the East for some time engaged in war work. Miss Cook is a sister of Miss Augusta Cook, who has been a decided favorite in the younger society set since her return to St. Louis last fall, after finishing at Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr, Pa.

En route home Mr. and Mrs. Wilson stopped in Cincinnati for a brief visit with friends, and were to arrive in St. Louis today. They will make their home in New York City after a visit here, and a brief honeymoon trip.

THE National Suffrage convention, scheduled for the week of March 24 to 29, will be the cause of a busy coterie of matrons and maids for the next two weeks, preparing for the proper entertainment of the city's expected guests. With the accredited delegates to the convention, and the assemblage of visitors and attendants upon such a function, it is expected that several hundred women will be visitors in St. Louis that week, including many of the noted society leaders from other states.

That these and the other visitors may be properly taken care of during their stay, a general Hospitality Committee has been organized to look after them. This committee, which is headed by Mrs. J. Dwight Dana, will have under its jurisdiction a number of subcommittees, one of which will be a committee on hotels and housing, with Mrs. Leslie Thompson at its head; another committee, led by Mrs. Philip B. Fouke and Miss Margaret McKittrick, will mobilize the necessary automobiles and take care of the auto drive and city survey that is customary when visitors in large numbers are entertained. A third section, of which Mrs. N. A. McMillan is head, has in hand arrangements for a large reception and tea given complimentary to the delegates, while a similar committee, under Mrs. David Thompson, is planning a formal dinner in their honor. The General Committee of Hospitality made up of descendants of St. Louis men and women who were participants in the first National Suffrage Convention held in St. Louis in 1872, will have as chairman Mrs. Berenice Morrison-Fuller, and the welfare and entertainment of the members of the National Suffrage Board will be taken care of by Mrs. David N. O'Neil, Mrs. E. W. Stix and Mrs. Robert McK. Jones.

The list of hostesses who will cooperate with the St. Louis Equal Suffrage League in making the Fiftieth National Suffrage Convention one to be long remembered when its affairs are mentioned in suffrage circles, includes many of the foremost society maids and matrons of the city, some of whom are: Mmes. L. P. Aloe, Henry Ames, William Bagnell, Willard Bartlett, George A. Bass, John H. Belz, Theodore Benoist, Frank Bielock, Frank Boogher, W. W. Boyd, E. F. Brown, G. W. Brown, B. F. Miss Ridge is a young Australian whose poems have attracted much attention and she has been proclaimed one of the leaders among the new apostles of poetry. George R. Bedinger, secretary of the Children's Aid Society of Detroit, one of the leading social workers in the country, will address the members, and will show a motion picture depicting the progress of a child in the Children's Aid Society. The "movie" portrays the workings of the Juvenile Court, the hospitals and shows the type of homes from which the children come. The scenario was written by Bedinger himself, who is also one of the actors in the play.

Mrs. Clarkson Potter has charge of the arrangements. Mrs. George C. Hitchcock, Mrs. Marion C. Blossom, Mrs. Charles Nagel, Mrs. Elias Michael and Mrs. Wade Childress are among the women who are interested in the Children's Aid Society.

The Madonna Wrist Rosary

is a beautiful bracelet, made of sterling silver, in such fashion that the Rosary is perfectly embossed upon its outer surface. It is sanctioned by Rome because of the many material advantages it possesses over the old form of the Rosary. It is unbreakable, for one thing; it is handy, being worn upon the wrist, and it makes not only an article of devotion but an ornament that will be cherished most dearly by every devout Catholic.

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

6 MEN ROBBED, BUT THEY CAN'T COMPLAIN

The $350 Taken From Them Was Stake in Poker Game, a Law-Breaking Transaction.

BLAIR, Neb., March 8.—A poker game at Dan McManigal's home ended abruptly when two strangers, with a gun in each hand, stepped through the door, ordered hands up, picked up the stakes from the table and backed out in the night with a warning to the players that they would think the war had started again if they tried to follow.

It's against the law to play poker in Nebraska, even if the game is a "friendly" one—if there's money on the table. Hence the "boys" who took part in the game have been rather reticent about setting the law on the robbers.

McManigal's game was one of these "friendly" little games in which the players try their level best to skin the life out of each other. Moreover, there were $350 out on the table when the two gunmen stepped into the room.

The game was being played in McManigal's kitchen. Around the kitchen table were Dan McManigal, the host; John Fisher, Jess Brown, August Bollen, Earl Thornberg and Ray Hayes. All six are well-known citizens of Blair—business men who like to have a little "friendly" game once in a while.

Host Opens the Door.

Mrs. McManigal, tired of sitting in the front part of the house by herself, had gone to bed, leaving the kitchen to McManigal and his friends.

The game had been progressing nicely—for John Fisher. Fisher had about $150 in front of him. The others had sums ranging between $20 and $75, all nicely piled up like in the Penny Ante pictures.

The kitchen clock struck midnight. Always the "friendly" little game closed at that hour. But at midnight Thursday things were too warm. Everybody wanted to stay a while longer.

At 12:30 the room was so warm McManigal opened the outside door. "Let in some fresh air and cool things off a bit," he said.

Then the game was resumed. Fisher's luck was still with him.

"I'll just take that pot; push it over this way," he exclaimed triumphantly.

"You're wrong; we're going to take it," spoke up a strange voice. At the same moment two army-sized pistols were stuck through the open door and a stranger stepped in. He was followed by a second stranger and another pair of revolvers.

"Back to the wall, you guys," ordered the first stranger. "If you don't keep your mitts elevated, off goes your bean."

No Nervousness.

Neither of the strangers was masked. One wore a dark suit, the other a suit of overalls and a sheepskin mackinaw. Both handled their guns as though they were thoroughly familiar with them and showed no nervousness, going about their work in a business-like manner.

One man kept the six covered. The other went through their pockets, taking care never to get between the man and his partner with the revolvers.

"We don't want your watches," he told them. "Nothing but cash and rings."

But all the cash was on the table. Each of the six gave up a ring, however.

Then the robber piled all the loot on the table and divided it into two equal parts. He stuck one part into his own pocket and put the other into that of his partner who was keeping his guns trained on the six players.

"Hate to bust up a perfectly good poker game, but we need the dough," said the fellow. "Good night. And say, if any of you birds poke your heads out that door for the next 15 minutes you'll think the war's still on."

With the muzzle of their guns still covering the party, the robbers backed out the open door and disappeared. McManigal sprang to a telephone but found the robbers had cut the wires.

Now the laugh is on the poker players. The whole town knows of the affair but the six men cannot file complaints without acknowledging that they had been gambling and breaking the law themselves.

FIVE YOUTHS ARE ARRESTED FOR $63,000 BOND HOLD-UP

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Five youths, from 16 to 20, are under arrest today charged with assault and robbery following the daring holdup yesterday in the financial district of Milton Strohm, a broker's messenger, from whom Liberty Bonds and other securities, valued at $63,000, were taken. Strohm was struck on the head and his bag, containing the Liberty Bonds and securities, seized. He was so severely injured that he had to be taken to a hospital.

Information given to the police by Strohm led to the arrest last night of Gustave Mignone, 20 years old, and his brother Anthony, 18, at their home. Another brother, Theodore, 16, was arrested in a lodging house where he sought refuge. Later, Edward Andreas, 20, and Lester Ostertag, 17, were arrested. According to the police, Theodore Mignon confessed to the actual holdup of Strohm, which it was said the boys planned three weeks ago. The police found the bag containing the securities in a subway station and the $49,000 worth of Liberty Bonds were found under the floor of a paint shop owned by Edward Andreas' father.

DIRECT VOTE NOW FOR URUGUAYAN PRESIDENT

Under New Constitution a Council of Administration Does Much Executive Work.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Dr. Balthazar Brum, inaugurated March 1 President of Uruguay, by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, will be the last chief executive of his country elected by Congress. Today the new Constitution of Uruguay goes into effect and it provides for the popular election by direct vote of the people of both the President and the National Council of Administration.

President Brum, whose rise in political office in his country has been remarkable, visited the United States last August as the guest of the nation and created a most favorable impression among officials here by the quickness of his grasp upon the affairs of this country and his sympathy with the ideals which led the United States to take a part in the European war. As Minister of Foreign Affairs of Uruguay he had several diplomatic relations between his country and Germany and had enunciated the principle that no American country that in defense of its own rights finds itself at war with nations of other continents should be considered a belligerent by Uruguay. This made it possible for Uruguay to welcome the American squadron, commanded by Admiral Caperton, to the port of Montevideo, which became the headquarters of the allies in the South Atlantic.

Council's Important Functions.

The National Council of Administration of Uruguay appoints the following members of the President's Cabinet: Ministers of Industries and Labor, Public Instruction, Finance and Public Works. The Public Health Service is also under the Council's control. The President appoints only the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Interior, Army and Marine. The National Council is composed of nine members, each elected for six years, but is renewed every two years by the election of three members. Six members, or two-thirds of the Council, who went into office today, are representatives of the majority party, while one-third represent the minorities.

This council plays an important part in the Government of Uruguay, takes some of the load off the shoulders of the chief executive, and acts as a check upon him. The council may authorize any member to go before Congress and speak on matters pertaining to his department. If he is a member of Congress and is elected to the council his right as Congressman would be suspended. It prepares the budget, collects the taxes, may initiate new laws, arrange foreign or internal loans and provides for the increase or reduction of the national currency.

Curch and State Separated.

Many other important features are contained in the new Constitution. For the first time, beginning today, the church and State are separated in Uruguay. All religious beliefs are free, and on an equal footing in the country. No churches are to be taxed, and, as a measure of fairness, the Government recognizes the title of the Catholic Church, which was the official church, to all churches built or in process of construction with national funds except chapels in asylums, hospitals and prisons controlled by the Government.

The new constitution also provides for compulsory registration of voters, prohibits membership by police or military on active duty in political clubs or their taking part in any political activities except to vote, provides for the secret ballot with full guarantees and integral proportionment representation of all parties.

Woman suffrage is not granted at once to the women of Uruguay by the new constitution, but it provides the right to vote in municipal, Federal or State elections shall be accorded to women when Congress, by a two-thirds vote of the total membership so determines.

WINTER FISHING IN HUDSON'S BAY

Trapper Tells of Catching Halibut in Mild Weather.

By the Associated Press.

THE PAS, Manitoba, March 8.—After a 500-mile journey with his dog team, Horace Halcrow "mushed" into The Pas with the startling information that Hudson's Bay was open when he left its west shore in February.

Halcrow said the water has been open at Port Nelson harbor since last May, and that he heard even the straits were free of ice. Such conditions are considered remarkable, if not historic.

Halcrow said that while the bay region has not suffered from influenza, some settlements between The Pas and Hudson's Bay were almost wiped out.

Because of the mild winter trapping has not been very profitable since Christmas, he declared, adding that fishing has been the big industry on Hudson's Bay all winter.

"Catching halibut off Port Nelson and York Factory has been going on all winter. They just throw halibut into the boats, and when they are filled, they pull ashore."

Since Halcrow left Hudson's Bay, weather conditions have changed. The Pas has experienced 30 below weather, which means that the temperature may have dropped to 50 below in the Port Nelson district.

During the year 1918 the Post-Dispatch printed 9425 Farms—546 more than its nearest competitor and more than TWICE as many as the THREE other St. Louis papers COMBINED.

TODAY'S BEAUTY TALK

You can enjoy a delightful shampoo with very little effort and for a very trifling cost, if you get from your druggist's a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid—enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. Your shampoo is now ready. Just pour a little at a time on the scalp and hair until both are entirely covered by the daintily perfumed preparation that thoroughly dissolves and removes every bit of dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—ADV.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR MAIMED SOLDIERS

Federal Board Will Pay Men and Their Dependents During Entire Education.

The Federal Board for Vocational Education is endeavoring to reach every soldier whose wounds have made him unfit to resume his prewar occupation with the information that it stand ready to train him for new vocations, pay all the bills, including living expenses, and assist in the support of any dependents. It is estimated that 20,000 soldiers who served in France are entitled to such aid. At present but 500 are receiving it.

The Federal board is empowered to see that every disabled soldier, sailor or marine entitled to compensation under the war risk insurance law gets his old job back or a new one. For those unable to take up their old work, training for new work is provided. Tuition, books and other equipment are provided in the technical school or university to which the wounded man is assigned.

Period of Education.

The schools to which the man may go include virtually all the prominent universities of the country and his training may be for a period of but a few months or it may be for four years. The compensation allowed during training equals the amount to which the disabled soldier is entitled under the insurance act or a sum equal to his pay when in active service, but in no case will a man, required during training to live apart from dependents, receive less than $65 a month, exclusive of the sum paid his dependents, nor will a man living with his dependents receive less than $75 a month, inclusive of the amount allowed his dependents.

If a man's disability does not prevent his return to his accustomed employment and he desires to take the Goverment's vocation training, his expenses will be paid, but no allowance will be made to dependents. In addition to other compensation, the family or dependents will continue to receive the monthly allowance that the man received while he was in active service.

Restrictions on Training.

The Federal Board does not specify what training the soldier shall have, except that it discourages training for vocations over-filled or waning. Some of the courses offered are: Agriculture, academic, accounting, architecture, animal husbandry, banking, commercial course, chemistry, drafting, embalming, building construction, civil engineering, dairying, electrical, exporting, automobile driving, bookkeeping, medicine, normal training, office management, salesmanship, lip reading, law, mechanical engineering, motor mechanics, milk inspection, poultry raising, printing, store management, silversmithing, swine raising, show card writing, telegraphy, window dressing and watch repairing.

There is no military discipline during training, but the Federal Board receives reports of progress and the student's diligence. Often men are placed in business houses to learn the avocation they have selected.

Application for training may be made to the Federal Board for Vocational Education direct or through the War Risk Insurance Bureau, the Red Cross or kindred agencies.

LIEUT.-COL. GREEN DOES NOT APPROVE BREST CRITICISM

St. Louisan Was in Charge of Transport at Port for Several Months.

Lieutenant-Colonel Frederick W. Green, 5129 Vernon avenue, who arrived in New York on the transport Mongolia Friday after 18 months' service in France, is expected home within the next few days. He left here in 1917 as Captain of A Company, Twelfth (St. Louis) Engineers. He was at the front three months, and spent seven months in Brest supervising army transport service. He was also in charge of the transport service at St. Nazarre.

While at Brest, Col. Green, who was made General Superintendent of Army Transport Service on Oct. 1, directed the unloading and loading of the Leviathan on her record trip last August, when she was able to leave port 36 hours after her arrival, having unloaded 11,000 men and been again loaded in that time.

"The Leviathan's quick turnabout astounded the British and French experts, just as many of the things the Americans did in France amazed them, and drew their surprised admiration," Col. Green said in New York yesterday.

"Speaking of the criticisms of conditions at Brest, Col. Green said: 'Climatic conditions there are to be held responsible, and they can't be changed very well. The hostile criticism, however, may undermine the American morale. It is a bad thing to be harping on the army that way.' "

Col. Green was assistant to the president of the St. Louis Southwestern Railroad before he went into the army.

LEROY BUNDY'S TRIAL MARCH 18

East St. Louis Negro Dentist Accused in Connection With Race Riot.

The trial of Leroy N. Bundy, negro, formerly a dentist in East St. Louis, charged with murder in connection with the race riots of July, 1917, is docketed for March 18, in the Circuit Court at Waterloo, Ill.

Bundy was a leader among the negroes of East St. Louis and it is charged that he incited them to kill Police Sergeants Samuel Coppedge and Frank Wodley, which resulted in the race riot, when a number of men, women and children, whites and negroes, were killed. Bundy's garage, it is asserted, was used by negroes as a place to store guns and ammunition.

Irishmen to Meet at Banquet.

The Friends of Irish Freedom of St. Louis will give a banquet at the Statler Hotel at 7:30 p. m. March 17 (St. Patrick's day). Women will be invited to attend.

DRAMATIC and MUSICAL EVENTS FOR THE WEEK

MANTELL RETURNS FOR WEEK OF CLASSIC DRAMA

"Merchant of Venice" Opens Series Tonight—Julian Eltinge at American.

Robert Bruce Mantell, whose productions today are the sole refuge of classic drama on the American stage, will begin a week's engagement, mostly of Shakspearian repertory, tonight at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater. His initial offering will be "The Merchant of Venice."

That Shakspeare remains a great box-office attraction was proved during Mantell's engagement at the same theater during February of last year. Nine performances were given, and the attendance was approximately 16,000. The house was twice sold out, and the receipts amounted to $14,050, a financial record surpassed during the season only by the "Follies." The plays this week will be the same as those of last year, save that the veteran tragedian has been so well advised as to omit "Romeo and Juliet." The list is as follows:

Tonight, "Merchant of Venice;" tomorrow night, "Hamlet;" Tuesday night, Delavigne's "Louis XI;" Wednesday matinee, "Merchant of Venice;" Wednesday night, Bulwer Lytton's "Richelieu;" Thursday night, "King Lear;" Friday night, "Macbeth;" Saturday matinee, "Merchant of Venice;" and Saturday night, "Richard III."

The most popular of Mantell's productions last year proved to be "The Merchant of Venice," although the most impressive were his characterizations of the Cardinal-statesman in Lord Lytton's drama, and of the sceptered tiger who for a time reigned over France, in Casimir Delavigne's "Louis XI." Mantell's Lear, Richard and Macbeth found admirers. But his Hamlet was scarcely more adequate than his Romeo. New and more lavish scenic accessories are promised this year.

Romance of Mantell's Life.

Mantell's leading woman is again his wife, Miss Genevieve Hamper, who brings youth, comeliness and enthusiasm to the parts of Shakspeare's heroines. Fritz Leiber, a sterling young actor of romantic appearance, plays the second male parts. The comedy roles are taken by Guy Lindsley, a native of St. Louis and an actor of long experience.

Mantell is now at the height of the second career he has achieved.

As a young man, in one red-letter night, he flashed from obscurity into fame through his portrayal of Loris Ipanoff in Sardou's "Fedora." For several years the handsome young Scotchman was recognized as the pre-eminent romantic actor of the day, and his earnings were for those times munificent. Then misfortune came in such shape that for many years he was unable to set foot in the State of New York without being arrested, owing to an alimony judgment obtained by his first wife. Once the darling of Broadway, he sank into a "barnstormer," touring the "tank towns." In 1898, when he was 44 years old, he was at the nadir of his fortunes, and one day found himself with only 50 cents in his pocket, and $10,000 of debts.

Vaudeville proved the first rung of the ladder up which he climbed once more to prosperity. Finally, in 1904, arrangements were made which enabled him to play again in New York City, and he opened in one of the smallest theaters in "Richard III." The critics proclaimed that in this actor of 50 they had made a new discovery—that of a genuine tragedian. Since then, through the death and retirement of other actors, Mantell has had the classic field all to himself.

Julian Eltinge, who, last year, made a pathetic "farewell" to the stage, and went into the movies, has "reconsidered," and returns tonight at the American Theater in a sketch written by himself and John Mathis, under the title of "Happy Ever After." It affords opportunity for his proclivity for female impersonation and the wearing of handsome gowns. In his supporting company are Marjorie Bennett, sister of Enid Bennett of cinematograph fame; Velma Whitman, who is recruited from the movies; Arthur Shirley and Togo Furo, a Japanese actor. There will be a miscellaneous bill of dancing and other acts, including several songs written especially for Eltinge.

Warfield Coming Next Week.

David Warfield, in a revival of "The Auctioneer," the comedy in which he made his first fame as a star, is announced for the American Theater next week. The Shubert-Jefferson will offer a comedy, "The Climax," featuring Eleanor Painter, who has given up light opera for the spoken drama.

The feature captioned this week at the Orpheum is the Marion Morgan Dancers, a troupe of coryphees who picture in a series of pantomimes the story of the fall of Rome under the sword of Attila. The act is announced as an ambitious undertaking in the dance-drama, with skilled performers and adequate scenic dress. Trixie Friganza, corpulent comedienne, will appear in a funny sketch, "At a Block Party." Then there will be Bob Hall, who promises to extemporize verses on any subject, and to any tune; Ed Gallagher and Joe Rolley in a military travesty; the Kiralfy Kiddies, in songs and dances; Brent Hayes, banjoist; McConnell and Austin, comedy cyclists, and a Travelogue showing scenes made memorable by Longfellow's "Evangeline."

At other downtown theaters this week: Columbia, "A Fraternity Rehearsal," which is a college skit, and other acts; Grand, Lottie Mayer, expert swimmer, and a company of diving girls; Garrick, "Minstrel Revue of 1919;" Gayety, "Liberty Girls," and Standard, "The Trail Hitters."

FRENCH ARMY BAND WILL GIVE CONCERT HERE APRIL 21

First Came to the United States at the Invitation of Secretary Baker.

The French army band, formerly the Guarde Republicaine Band, which visited St. Louis during the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, will give a concert at the Coliseum on the evening of April 21. The band first came to this country by invitation of Secretary of War Baker, and has remained by permission of the French Government.

Its personnel is made up entirely of soldier musicians who were wounded in action or decorated for bravery under fire. In addition, they were chosen for skill in their art, so that, it is declared, any member can at need appear as a soloist. The director is Capt. Fernand Pollain, who wears a wound stripe and the Croix de Guerre.

The first concert given in this country was at Washington, at an official reception tendered to the band by President Wilson. The organization is now on tour, under the auspices of the French High Commission.

35TH DIVISION'S MINSTRELS

Mo-Kan Show to Arrange to Play Here a Week.

Lieut. H. J. Myers Jr., entertainment officer with the American Expeditionary Force, writes the Post-Dispatch that the Mo-Kan Minstrels, the show of the Thirty-fifth Division, will play a week in St. Louis before starting out on a tour of Missouri and Kansas.

The Mo-Kan Minstrels have been declared by general headquarters officials and others the best entertainment in the A. E. F., Lieut Myers says. Its performers are all Thirty-fifth Division men who saw service in the Argonne. After playing in Commercy, France, at the Thirty-fifth Division Theater to an audience of over 30,000, the minstrels took the road on the A. E. F. circuit, and were playing in Luxembourgh on Feb. 10, the date of Lieut. Myers' letter. He said they would play there for three weeks, and then go to Paris for a week's engagement. Permission has been given to bring home all the scenery and costumes.

HEIFETZ, PARAGON OF VIOLIN, HERE MARCH 17

Will Play Mendelssohn Concerto at Second St. Louis Recital.

Jascha Heifetz, the miraculous youth of the violin, who has consistently proved during a year in this country that he is no mere sensational prodigy, but one of the two or three most illustrious violinists now alive, will give his second St. Louis recital at the Odeon on the night of March 17.

His program, the chief offering of which will be the Mendelssohn concerto in E Minor, is announced as follows:

Tartini ....Sonate in G Minor
Mendelssohn....Concerto in E Minor, Op. 64.
  Allegro molto appassionato.
  Andante.
  Allegro, molto vivace.
Chopin-Wilhelmj.......Nocturne in D Major.
Brahms ....Dance No. 7
Paganini ....(a) Caprice No. 13
  (b) Caprice No. 20
Tschaikowsky-Auer—
  Andante Cantabile
Bazzini..........La ronde des lutins

Heifetz is now 18 years old, and his genius—for no lesser word will apply—has enabled him to hold his own with undimmed luster after the furore of his sensational debut in the United States died away.

JEWISH MUSIC FEATURE OF SYMPHONY CONCERT

Ernest Bloch's "Poems" Express "Glowing, Agitated Soul of the Bible."

Instead of the annual all-Wagner program of antebellum days, Director Zach has arranged for the Symphony Orchestra concerts of Friday and Saturday a half-Wagner schedule. The second section of the program will be devoted to the German master's overture to "The Flying Dutchman," the Good Friday music from "The Flying Dutchman," and the prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg."

The concerts will begin with Schubert's lovely "Unfinished" Symphony, No. 8, in B Minor, of which he wrote only two movements, and which he never heard performed. It was found after his death in a batch of manuscript in the custody of a friend. The two movements are lyric with the lovely melodies of which Schubert was the most inspired creator among all musicians.

There will be no soloist, and in lieu of that attraction there will be presented a notable "first time" composition, Ernest Bloch's "Trois Poemes Juifs" ("Three Jewish Poems"). The composer is a Swiss Jew, born in Geneva 39 years ago, who, after many struggles, worked his way up to recognition as a writer of admirable music. These "Poems" are part of a larger work called a "Jewish Cycle," which includes a symphony entitled "Israel;" a "Rhapsodie Hebraique," for violoncello and orchestra; settings of the 137th, 114th and twenty-second Psalms; an "Oriental Symphony," on Jewish themes; a string quartet and an opera, "Jezabel."

"It is not my purpose," Bloch has explained, "to attempt a 'reconstitution' of Jewish music, or to base my work on melodies more or less authentic. I am not an archeologist. I hold it of first importance to write good, genuine music, my music. It is the Jewish soul that interests me, the complex, glowing, agitated soul that I feel vibrating throughout the Bible."

Explanation of the "Poems."

Regarding his three "Poems," the composer has supplied the following notes:

"I. 'Danse'—— This music is all in the coloring; coloring rather somber, mystical, languorous.

"II. 'Rite'—— This movement is more emotional; but there is something solemn and distant, as the ceremonies of a cult.

"III. 'Cortege Funebre'—— This is more human. My father died—these 'Poems' are dedicated to his memory. There is something implacably severe in the rhythms that obstinately repeat themselves. At the end, sorrow bursts forth, and at the idea of an eternal separation the soul breaks down. But a very simple and serene melody arises from the orchestral depths as a consolation, a balm, a gentle faith. The memory of our dear departed ones is not effaced; they live forever in our hearts."

The program in full will be as follows:

Symphony No. 8, in B Minor, "Unfinished" ....Schubert
  I. Allegro moderato.
  II. Andante con moto.
"Trois Poemes Juifs," for Orchestra —Bloch
  I. Danse.
  II. Rite.
  III. Cortege Funebre.
  (First time.)
(a) Overture to "The Flying Dutchman" ....Wagner
(b) Good Friday Music, from "Parsifal."
(c) Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg."

Mary Carson "Pop" Soloist.

The soloist at today's popular concert at the Odeon will be Miss Mary Carson, coloratura soprano, who was born in Texas and who has sung in opera in Italy and London. She was heard here for the first time a few weeks ago, when she sang the role of Gilda in the Creatore Grand Opera Co.'s performance of "Rigoletto." The entire program follows:

Overture to "Rienzi"..........Wagner
"Autumn Leaves," for String Orchestra ....Rebikoff
  (First time.)
Aria, "Ah, fors' e lui," from "La Traviata"................Verdi
Ballet Music from "Feramors" —Rubinstein
  I. Dance of the Bayaderes.
  II. Candle Dance of the Brides of Cashmere.
  III. Wedding Procession.
Suite, "Rococo," for Orchestra, Op. 27 —Saar
  I. Preambule.
  II. Devise Noble.
  III. Contredanse.
  IV. Scene d'Amour.
Waltz song, "Se saran rose"...Arditi
Waltz, "Joys of Life"........Strauss

The suite by Louis Victor Saar of Chicago was performed for the first time in St. Louis at a recent pair of regular concerts, with the composer directing. The work suffered from Saar's eccentricities on the dais, and the wish was expressed to see how it would fare under Director Zach's baton. Such curiosity as there was will be gratified at this afternoon's concert.

The soloist at next Sunday's popular concert will be Miss Edna Stoessel, pianist, formerly of St. Louis, who is a sister of Lieut. Albert Stoessel, one of the best of the younger American violinists.

Dean Langsdorf to Lecture.

Prof. Alexander S. Langsdorf, dean of the Schools of Engineering and Architecture of Washington University, will deliver a lecture on "Industry, Research, and the Engineer," Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the university's School of Medicine, Euclid and Scott avenues.

PAGEANT CHORAL WILL GIVE VERDI'S 'REQUIEM'

Fallen Heroes of War to Be Honored Tuesday Night at the Odeon.

The Pageant Choral Society, directed by Frederick Fischer and accompanied by the Symphony Orchestra, will devote its second concert of the season, at the Odeon, Tuesday night, to a rendition of Verdi's "Requiem," in memory of the fallen heroes of the war.

This great work of genius, characterized by passionate intensity and dramatic power, was written in 1874 as a musical funeral oration in commemoration of the death of Alessandro Manzoni, founder of the romantic school of Italian literature. Its extraordinary musical beauty has been praised by the greatest composers, such as Brahms. Its divisions are as follows:

I. "Requiem e Kyrie"—for soprano, mezzo-soprano, tenor, bass and chorus.
II. "Dies irae"—Four solo parts and chorus.
III. "Domine Jesu"—Offertory for soprano, mezzo-soprano, tenor and bass.
IV. "Sanctus"—Fugue for two choirs.
V. "Agnus Dei"—Soprano, mezzo-soprano and chorus.
VI. "Lux aeterna"—Mezzo-soprano, tenor and bass.
V. "Libera me"—Solo for soprano, chorus and final fugue.

As soloists the management has engaged Lucille Lawrence, soprano; Frederica Downing, mezzo-soprano; Forrest Lamont, tenor, and Henri Scott, bass. All are Americans. Miss Lawrence, who was retained in the place of Myrna Sharlow on account of the latter's illness, was chosen by Puccini to be the first interpreter in Europe of his "Girl of the Golden West," and she sang it in a dozen different cities. She sang the soprano part of the "Requiem" in Italy during the Verdii centennial, and recently made her New York debut in the same part, with Schumann-Heink, Rothier and Zenatello. Miss Downing is a member of the Chicago Opera Association. Lamont and Scott are too favorably known here for further description.

AMBITIOUS PLANS OF ST. LOUIS SYMPHONY

For 1919-20 Expenses Will Be Increased $22,000 to Obtain EXceptional Talent.

In the program books for the Symphony Orchestra concerts last night and Friday afternoon was included the following announcement:

"The concert season of 1919-1920 will mark the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. It will also establish a new record in local musical history. Plans already adopted provide for an increase of $22,000 (25 per cent) in the annual expenses. These funds will be used for two purposes:

"1. The orchestra will be increased from its present strength of 65 to 80 musicians, and the very best players will be secured.

Plans for Soloists.

"2. The appropriation for soloists has been doubled to permit the management to engage the most eminent artists available. The following are already engaged: Fritz Kreisler, the greatest living violinist; Sergei Rachmaninoff, the greatest living pianist; Mabel Garrison, soprano; Sophia Braslau, contralto; Max Rosen, violinist; Albert Spalding violinist.

"The orchestra as it stands today is a monument to the patient and devoted efforts of Mr. Max Zach, who has been re-engaged for next season. With the stimulus of a stronger personnel in the orchestra, Mr. Zach can reasonably be expected to achieve far greater results next season than ever before.

"The entire membership of the Executive Committee and the Board of Management are enthusiastically behind this comprehensive program. We will not fail to 'put it over.' Music, as a necessity to mankind, underwent an acid test during the war. Everyone knows how it stood this test.

Assured of Co-Operation.

"The management is assured of the hearty co-operation of the leading business and civic organizations of the city. All our plans are based on selling every seat in the Odeon before the concerts begin next November. After many years of patient effort the orchestra has at last come into its own, and is recognized by everyone as one of the most important institutions in the life of the community."

Then follows an appeal for immediate subscriptions for season tickets, with a scale of prices. It is asserted that there will be no war tax, but nothing is said of the fact that the prices, except in the case of the boxes, show a substantial increase over all previous admission fees. As before, boxes seating six may be had for the season for $200. But the seats in the entire lower floor are raised from $17.50 to $20; the first row in the balcony is advanced from $12.50 to $14 a seat; the second, third and fourth rows are raised from $9 to $11; and the fifth, sixth and seventh rows are advanced from $7.50 to $9.

WHAT PARIS MAN IN STREET THINKS OF NATIONS' LEAGUE

but I am content to let President Wilson make peace for us.

AN ARISTOCRAT OF FAUBOURG ST. GERMAIN: A league of nations will do for moral protection and the left bank of the Rhine for material protection.

A PORTER AT GARE DE L'EST: President Wilson wants us to do away with armies. Without armies there can be no wars. I am for the Wilson league of nations and no wars, and to hell with the Saar Valley and all the rest.

A MAID OF ALL WORK: Ah, monsieur, I am too ignorant to understand these things. Everybody seems to think M. Wilson has good ideas for preventing war. Perhaps those new ideas are better than the old ones. Who knows?

A LABOR LEADER—If Germany is disarmed and we are disarmed how can we fight? If there is no war, the people who need the Saar Valley or any of the German territories are only capitalists. Working people are interested only in the league of nations.

A TELEPHONE OPERATOR—President Wilson says he wants the poor people to have a better time and not to have war. They had better listen to him at the peace conference unless they want a revolution.

A POLICEMAN — The French Government must know better than any foreign Government what France needs. Premier Clemenceau will accept this league of nations if it is the right thing for France, just as he will demand the Saar Valley and the left bank of the Rhine, if France needs them.

A PORTER AT THE GARE ST. LAZARE—Yes, a society of nations, if it is going to stop wars. The Rhine is our natural frontier.

A MIDINETTE—A society of nations is the Wilson plan, and I am for Wilson. I would like to see the left bank of the Rhine neutralized with no boche soldiers on this side of it. We must have Alsace-Lorraine and the coal from the Saar Valley.

A LOCOMOTIVE STOKER — I have never studied the question of the society of nations, but I imagine it has good points. Let us be content with Alsace-Lorraine, and not trouble about the Rhine just now.

A FRENCH BUSINESS MAN—I think there are too great differences of language and temperament for the formation of an effective society of nations. Let us maintain a powerful Entente alliance, both military and political. We should not annex the left bank of the Rhine, for we could never agree with the German thinking and speaking population.

A SALESWOMAN—I don't quite understand the Society of Nations, but if it means no more wars, I would like to see it constituted. What could we do with the left bank of the Rhine? We ought to be satisfied to get back Alsace-Lorraine.

Military Protection Wanted.

A JANITOR—If the Society of Nations is going to prevent bombs being dropped from airplanes I approve of it. I don't think it necessary for France to have the left bank of the Rhine if the Society of Nations will be strong enough to protect us.

A TAXI DRIVER—I doubt if we will get much good out of a Society of Nations or the left bank of the Rhine. Let us have peace first and we will see later how things will turn out.

A RAILWAY TICKET COLLECTOR—A Society of Nations, yes, but with powerful military support. I don't see why we should claim the left bank of the Rhine. I know of no rights we have to it.

OFFICE BOY OF FOURTEEN—I don't know anything about the Society of Nations, but I think we should not take the left bank of the Rhine because the Germans would want to fight us again for it.

A PHYSICIAN—The Society of Nations is all right, but it must have strong military protection. Germany and her allies fought many powerful nations for four years. I am not an annexationist, but I think we ought to have the left bank of the Rhine, so as to keep Germany in a subdued condition.

A CHEMIST—President Wilson's Society of Nations, yes. We ought to be satisfied, I suppose, with Alsace-Lorraine, but we ought also to have the Saar Valley.

A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER—You may get people to accept the principles of a Society of Nations, but it will be harder to make them respect such principles. France has certain rights to the left bank Rhine, but wouldn't it be necessary to bring back to life the League of the Rhine before introducing the League of Nations?

For and Against Frontier.

A FRENCH ACTRESS—Without a society of nations France will always be at the mercy of German aggression. I do not think that France, unless savagely attacked, will really think of taking over the left bank of the Rhine.

AN EMPLOYE OF THE UNDERGROUND RAILWAY—I don't think a society of nations is realizable. Our frontier should extend as far as the Rhine.

A FRENCH SENATOR—From what is known of the proposed institution of the league of nations, one cannot fortell how it might be used. I must reserve my opinion about the left bank of the Rhine.

A FARMER—I am not interested in these subjects, at my age, and I suppose those who govern us will know what to do.

A FRENCH NEGRO SOLDIER—If the rights of the negroes are to be recognized in the league of nations I will stand by it. I don't live in France usually, so I am not troubled about the left bank of the Rhine.

A MANUFACTURER—On the left bank of the Rhine, with powerful forces at his disposal, a league of nations has a living chance. We could never agree with the German population on the left bank of the Rhine if we took control there.

A MAGISTRATE—I firmly believe in a society of nations, and would advise a plebiscite among the people on the left bank of the Rhine.

A STREET SWEEPER—I have never troubled myself about the society of nations. What I want is adequate protection from the high cost of living. As for the left bank of the Rhine, that also has never troubled me.

During the year 1918 the Post-Dispatch printed 88,511 Female Help "Wants"—8229 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

GIRL ASLEEP 57 DAYS

State of Coma Follows Three Weeks' Illness of Typhoid.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—Fifty-seven days unconscious from the effects of typhoid fever, Adelaide O'Dowd, 16-year-old school girl, is being given liquid food without the aid of a tube.

Miss O'Dowd, however, has shown no signs of returning from the state of coma which has baffled some of the leading specialists here. The food, in small quantities, is placed far down in the girl's mouth and is swallowed instinctively. Eight weeks ago, after three weeks of a severe case of the fever, Miss O'Dowd drifted from delirium into a stupor. Since that time, without a single intermission, the girl has lain unconscious, periods of quiet being broken by restless tossings.

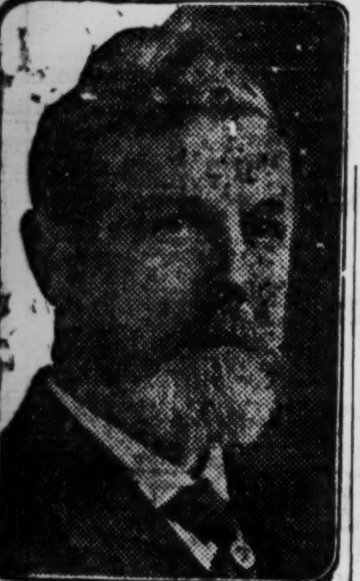
The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker



The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Misery writes: "I have such a very severe cough and cold and have not been able to get anything to help me. It is weakening my system."

Answer: Use the following and your cold and cough will vanish and you will soon be strong again: Get a 2½-oz. bottle of Concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene and take every hour or two. This can be taken pure or made into a full pint of homemade syrup. Full directions as to use will be found on bottle. This is a mild laxative and will drive the cold from the system.

Lucille asks: "I have tried to cure dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and baldness with numerous tonics, etc., but in vain. What do you recommend?"

Answer: I have been recommending Plain Yellow Minyol for the past seven years, and scores of my patients are delighted with the quick, pleasant action of this remedy in stopping itching, falling hair, dandruff, etc. It gives the hair health, luster and vigor as nothing else does. Obtain in 4-oz. jars with full directions.

Maude writes: "Can you please prescribe medicine which will relieve me of such distressing symptoms of kidney and bladder, as well as pains in small of back?"

Answer: Those seeking relief from kidney and bladder disorders should begin taking Balmwort Tablets, a very successful formula sold in sealed tubes with full directions.

Gerry asks: "For several months I have not been feeling well. My skin is sallow, my tongue is coated, have headache, am sleepless, nervous and bothered with chronic constipation. Please help me."

Answer: You need a laxative blood-cleansing treatment in the form of Three-Grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur). Overcome the tendency to constipation and gradually your good health and pure blood will return.

Mrs. B. writes: "I hesitate to ask advice, as my case is so unusual. In a word, I am tired and worn out all the time. Rest does not refresh me. I have been married over a year, and formerly did not know what it was to be tired or nervous. Sometimes I feel hysterical. I fear I will become a nuisance to my husband if this continues."

Answer: Your nervous system has been depleted. You need a tonic invigorating medicine that will aid in supplying more food energy to your nerves. Take Three-Grain Cadomene Tablets regularly for several months.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir: In reading your good advice to others I have found relief. I inclose stamps, and please send me your "Great Guide Book, Health and Beauty," and I thank you for advice to others which so helped me. May your good work go on. You will get better reward than money in helping so many who suffer and often cannot get a doctor, as there is no money to pay one. One of your many well-wishers. Sincerely,

MISS C. H. WHITE,

SIDELIGHTS ON LIFE IN PARIS DURING PEACE CONFERENCE

the cultivation and upturning of the soil will yield a steady harvest in the "relic" line, but long before the organized armies of tourists are turned loose everything in the way of visible relics will have disappeared. This is not to say, however, that the day of souvenirs is drawing to a close. There will be a thriving trade for a long time—the demand will be supplied.

The enemies and critics of President Wilson would be satisfied and silenced, for a day at least, if they could wander around France and note what French art, in its lower forms, has done to the face of the apostle of the league of nations.

Soliloquy of a doughboy on the Rhine, after gazing for some moments upon the enormous bronze statue of the forebear of William Hohenzollern at Coblenz: "I'll bet you're sorry now you raised that boy to be a soldier."

The American officers and men who are daily arriving home by the thousands are returning with impressions that will remain indelible. Many illusions have been shattered. Never again will a great American force cross the Atlantic with such inspiration and zeal as animated the army that is now returning. In the returning army is the finest of young American manhood. The homecoming Captains, Lieutenants and doughboys will be the men largely in control of the United States and its affairs 20 years hence. From among them will come future Governors of states, members of Congress and, quite possibly, Presidents. The lessons they have learned will play a large part in the determination of this nation's policies and attitudes as regards the affairs of Europe in future wars.

The daily cost to the United State of the army of occupation in the Rhine provinces is approximately $1,000,000 for pay and subsistence. The item of pay is said to be about $725,000 a day on the average and the cost of subsistence around $300,000. These figures are based on a force of 450,000 officers and men. They do not take in the cost of subsisting animals, maintaining motor cars, motor trucks and other necessary equipment. The total cost is around $1,500,000 a day on an average. The figures are being kept in France to the last detail, and when a responsible Government shall have arisen in Germany and the army withdrawn, the United States' bill for it will be included in the final reckoning.

It is not surprising that the officers and men comprising the American army of occupation find life in the Rhine provinces in Germany more agreeable than life in France during the last year of the war. Hundreds of thousands of our soldiers saw France at its very worst. They now have cleanliness and comforts and they would be less than human if they did not express pleasure at the change. It is a surface expression, however, and officers and men generally recognize the unfairness of serious comparison between cities and people personally untouched by war and what was left of Northern France after four years of the conflict.

Coblenz, a city of about 50,000, is nearly as lively and busy as it was in pre-war days. If one is in a hurry it is necessary, often, to leave the sidewalks and take the streets for it, and the evening crowds are often of a density. It was rather surprising to find cafes open until midnight and to hear the productions of Sousa and Cohan on the Rhine's banks. There are few food restrictions and prices are reasonable. There is no butter, but there is sugar in plenty. Linen has long since disappeared from the hotels, enormous counterpanes serving the bedchambers as sheets for the beds and counterpanes also serve as towels for the bathrooms.

Whatever may be the future of Germany, or of its component parts, the German as an individual remains unbeaten. He is no way penitent. His chin is still up. As a rule the average German is not looking ahead. He is doing what he can with each day as it comes, in his customary, methodical way, and thinking as little as possible about what next week or next month may bring. And he is taking his regular pleasures as he goes along.

In the grand ducal palace of Hesse at Mayence sits Mangin, the French General who commanded the American divisions in the Chauteau-Thierry-Soissons fighting. He commands in the French area of occupied Germany. He is a small man in stature, but of a most dominating presence. He has a face that indicates strongly the possession, by the man back of it, of all of the desirable qualities of a bulldog and of a fox terrier as well. Mangin has been styled "The Butcher." He is proud of the conduct of his men in the occupied area. Forty-eight hours after arrival the French troops were practically without their food supplies. But there was no raiding of German stores. "The Rhine was our food," said Mangin proudly.

The caretaker of the Cathedral of Rheims places in your hand a fragment of the shattered glass of the edifice, and in return you, of course, place some of the coin of the country in his. Relics of Rheims promise, in the course of time, to equal the output of "pieces of the true cross."

The Cathedral of Arras has suffered far more severely than that of Rheims. The famous edifice of the latter city is capable of repair and restoration. The Arras Cathedral has the blue sky only for a roof.

President Wilson has dominated the sessions of the peace conference thus far, and it is not to be doubted that he will again become the central figure of the deliberations on his return. There is a genuine eagerness to listen to him; to know him; to get his opinion on everything. There may be mental reservations, here and there, as the President goes his way, that may come out into the open in the later discussions, but thus far, as far as the formal sittings are concerned, it has been a Wilson conference.

While Wilson, Lloyd George and Clemenceau are the present outstanding figures at the conference, there are others that have either made an impression or are to be reckoned with. Venizelos of Greece is distinctly of a mentality not to be confined within the boundaries of his country. Sazanoff, from Rus-

ST. LOUIS WIRELESS TO WILSON

Albanians Here Send Message Pleading Country's Cause.

A message from St. Louis Albanians, pleading the cause of their birthplace, was wirelessed to President Wilson yesterday. Simultaneously the St. Louisans sent cablegrams to Secretary of State Lansing and Henry White, American delegates to the peace conference, and to Premier Clemenceau. The message to President Wilson was as follows:

"As supplicant adoring for your feats. The entire world pays attention to your voice. Considering your quietest time begging you to take the Albanian affairs before you. The heart burnt people of five centuries tolerating under black Turkish servitude. As Filologe, an instructor of humanity, beg you for Albanian rights.

The message was signed by Nick Andon, Nick Khambazi, Thoma S. Tota, Kolia Katro, Vangel Liasko and Dimitir Bimbly.

THOROUGH INQUIRY INTO PARDON

Iowa Legislature to Investigate Gov. Harding's Action.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Io., March 8.—Thorough investigation will be made by the Iowa Legislature of Gov. W. L Harding's action in pardoning Ernest Rathbun, son of an Ida County farmer, before he had served a day of a life sentence for criminal assault.

Without a dissenting vote, the House of Representatives today adopted a resolution presented by its Judiciary Committee, authorizing that committee to incur the expense necessary for summoning and examining witnesses and procuring desired documentary evidence.

sia, is probably the wisest man from Eastern Europe; Sonnino of Italy, a determined man from whom little has been heard thus far, will undoubtedly make as strong a fight for Italy's claims as any man could make. Jonescu of Rumania is another interesting figure. On his recent arrival in Paris he submitted for consideration a proposition calling for the amalgamation into one nation of all the Balkan states, his argument being that if such a nation could be established and supported it would form a solid bloc to offset in southeastern Europe possible encroachments a generation hence by the Teutonic bloc of Central Europe. Hughes of Australia is an outspoken man who has not hesitated to give his opinions. There is little of the diplomat about Hughes. He seems to be strongly in favor of "open covenants, openly arrived at."

The men who are really in control of the peace conference are no more numerous than one's fingers. And there are, altogether, at least 5000 men, as a total, in all the delegations from the different nations of the world. Each delegation is a small army, practically commanded by a General who is supplied with all kinds of ammunition by the army under him to back up the claims of his country. Altogether, the total expense of all the delegations and of the months of deliberations of the conference itself will be not far from $50,000,000.

The busiest man in Europe is Lloyd George. The little rosy-cheeked man stands up well under his troubles and worries. He has an energy and an endurance strongly suggestive of the late Col. Roosevelt. He hurries back and forth between London and Paris with all the abandon of a hardened New York commuter. He has said very little in the peace conference thus far, but has been a powerful influence none the less. He is supported by a very able delegation.

The British delegation has the entire Hotel Majestic, the American the Crillon, the Japanese the Bristol, the Belgian the Lotti, and so on. The Majestic has certainly been transformed into British soil, and its interior is about as accessible as is Buckingham Palace. It is just off the Champs Elysees, near the Arc de Triomphe. It is a large, handsome structure of recent erection, and it is occupied from cellar to roof by British only; scoffers say there isn't an individual in the hotel with less than six generations of British ancestry back of him. A Reception Committee of four, all on the Bombardier Wells order, is ever in wait, just inside the main entrance. The delegations of the different nations are all protected. The only differences are in degrees.

American officers will tell you, and not in any boastful way, that there is not bronze enough in France to provide war decorations for the doughboys who really merit them. That is the one thing you hear from the Atlantic to the Rhine—the story of our doughboys and their platoon leaders, the First and Second Lieutenants. There were many mistakes made "higher up," naturally, in the confusion of our unripe effort, but the army proper, the fighting men, was "all there," as the boys say. A Major-General said to me: "Mistakes were made I made mistakes. This was because of the way we had to rush things. But with the way in which we were coming along, I really believe we could have gone right across Europe in 1919."

Paris has seen the sun very rarely during the last three months. Gray skies, fogs and an almost constant chilling drizzle has marked nearly all the days. The sunshine of New York is almost dazzling after three months of French weather.

One of the German novelties in the conflict's closing days was a phosphorescent sight for rifles, for night firing. By means of this clever device the German infantryman could regulate the elevation or depression of his weapon. And the phosphorous in the sight was so arranged that it was only visible to the rifleman.

The war has produced some remarkable doughboy bands, which unfortunately, are now in the way of being broken up. It was sometimes rather astonishing to hear, "Everything is Peaches Down in Georgia," followed by a really capital rendition of a group by Grieg.

In the Rhine provinces the wines of the Rhine and of the Moselle are still plentiful, and the prices are only slightly in excess of normal times. Vintage wines, however, have almost completely disappeared from the cards of Trier, Coblenz and Mainz, at least.

Wooden shoes are far more frequently seen and heard in Northeastern France than they are in Western Germany.

On an army transport which returned a few days ago, a group of officers was discussing "the next war" and the parts the United States and they as individuals would play in it. The discussion was concluded by this remark by one of the officers: "Well, if the thing's in Europe, I am going to 'give till it hurts.'" As uttered it was the sentiment of the entire group.

The German love of music has not suffered. It manifests itself at every opportunity. Not long ago a visit of doughboys, in column of fours, was swinging through Coblenz. Suddenly the small but effective band at its head spiritedly began, "Onward, Christian Soldiers." As the inspiring hymn—a wonderful march by the way—swelled through the streets—the doughboys found themselves accompanied by hundreds of the inhabitants. They marched along the sidewalks and in the rear of our men, in perfect step with them, until the last note of the hymn had been sounded, and "fell out" regretfully as the doughboys proceeded to the drum only.

SAYS SERGEANT KILLED SPY REFUSING BARRAGE

St. Louis Member of 35th Division Relates Gossip Version of Artillery Lack in Argonne.

A new version of the story that the Thirty-fifth Division, including St. Louis National Guard units, was not properly supported by artillery in the Argonne, is related by Private Virgil F. Rose, 30 years old, of 2816 North Thirteenth street, who was a member of E Company, 138th Regiment. He was gassed Nov. 5 and later contracted influenza. He arrived home with his discharge papers Thursday. Rose was part of the regiment to which Major-General Peter Traub, at the Odeon last week, referred to as "that wonderful unit which took Cheppy."

Rose's version is one of many based on gossip among the soldiers who participated in the battle of the Argonne. He said that it was whispered about among the survivors of a 10-day drive into the forest that a German spy, posing as an American Captain of Artillery, had been shot and killed by an American Sergeant for refusing to lay down a barrage when it was badly needed.

He also told of a German aviator flying above the American forces in an airplane disguised as an American machine. A few minutes after the German had flown back to the enemy lines the Americans became a target for a heavy German shell attack. It was reported in the ranks, Rose said, that the German aviator later was killed in an air battle with an American aviator.

Rose was one of the first of the Americans to set foot in Cheppy after it had been wrested from the Germans. He said the town was in ruins and was still under German fire when the Americans reached it. Dead and wounded filled the streets, he said. Americans feasted on wine, cake and butter which they found in dugouts that had been occupied by the enemy. He told of seeing a French soldier shoot and kill a German prisoner, later remarking "That boche killed my pal when they bombarded our tank."

Rose became lost from his outfit during a retreat. A German high-explosive shell burst in a ravine. Two men at his side were killed and he was knocked unconscious. When he recovered his senses he fell in with the 139th Regiment, and it was several days later before he got back with his own contingent.

Rose brought home a revolver which he proudly exhibits and relates how he had taken it from a German officer whom he had engaged in a hand-to-hand fight, and which ended when Rose bayoneted his man.

Before his enlistment in the old National Guard First Regiment, Rose was employed at the Brown shoe factory at Eighteenth and Wash streets.

STRONG PARTISAN SPIRIT PROBABLE IN NEXT CONGRESS

litical parties. The ablest men in the Democratic party have been called upon to be candidates against him during period, but no one has succeeded in winning his seat from him. At the election just held no one was nominated to oppose him. This was partially due to the fact that long experience had shown the Democrats it was impossible to defeat him, but principally because his district had come to recognize in Mr. Gillett a man worthy of the confidence and support of both political parties.

"Mr. Gillett has been during his time a member of nearly all the important committees. During the latter part of the time the Republicans were in power he was chairman of the Committee on Reform of the Civil Service. He made the work of that committee a deep and careful study, bringing the civil service to a high state of efficiency, from which it has unfortunately fallen since the Democratic party has been in power. For many years he has been a member of the Committee on Appropriations, by some regarded as even more important than the Committee on Ways and Means. Certainly it is more continuously active. For the last three Congresses he has been at the head of the minority of the committee serving with Chairman Fitzgerald of New York and later with Chairman Sherley of Kentucky. Those two are men of marked ability, but are very different in personal characteristics. Mr. Gillett worked in complete harmony with both and upheld and supported them through this trying period in our country's history. If my memory serves me correctly, he has never filed a minority report on any measure from the committee during this time."

NEW TREATMENT THAT KNOCKS RHEUMATISM

75c BOX FREE TO ANY SUFFERER

Up in Syracuse, N. Y., a treatment for rheumatism has been found that hundreds of users say is a wonder, reporting cases that seem little short of miraculous. Just a few treatments even in the very worst cases seem to accomplish wonders even after other remedies have failed entirely. It seems to neutralize the uric acid and lime salt deposits in the blood, driving all the poisonous clogging waste from the system. Soreness, pain, stiffness, swelling just seem to melt away and vanish.

The treatment first introduced by Mr. Delano is so good that its owner wants everybody that suffers from rheumatism or who has a friend so afflicted, to get a free 75c package from him to prove just what it will do in every case before a penny is spent. Mr. Delano says: "To prove that the Delano treatment will positively overcome rheumatism, no matter how severe, stubborn or long standing the case, and even after all other treatments have failed, I will, if you have never previously used the treatment, send you a full-size 75c package free if you will just cut out this notice and send it with your name and address with 10c to help pay postage and distribution expense to me personally."

F. H. Delano, 339-V Wood Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y. I can send only one Free Package to an address.—ADV.

Will War Help Make New Race Of Super-men with Strength AND ENDURANCE LIKE ATHLETES OF OLD

By Putting More Iron Into the Blood of Modern Men and Women on Account of Their Eating Coarse Foods and Leading a Rigorous Outdoor Life? Physician Says Iron Is Absolutely Essential to Greatest Development of Physical and Mental Power.

Why Nuxated Iron by Helping to Supply the Iron Deficiency in the Blood Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Run-Down Folks in Two Weeks' Time.

The men of blood and iron whose indomitable force and tireless energy helped win the war owe much to the strength obtained by eating coarse foods and leading a rigorous out-door life, is the opinion of Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey.

Dr. Baker believes that these same conditions on a lesser scale have been of tremendous help to the health of men and women in civil life. In commenting upon this, he says: "Just as lack of proper foods for its soldiers saps the strength of a nation, so does want of sufficient iron in the blood of men and women reduce their power and make them an easy prey to the thousands of disease germs constantly around us and always ready to attack the constitutions of the weak and run down. It is not the quantity of food you eat which makes you strong, but it is the amount which is assimilated and taken up by the blood.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive, and there is no doubt in my mind that the coarse foods of war time, with their greater percentage of strength-giving iron, have materially aided in building up a stronger race of people. But unless this iron is obtained from our food it must be supplied in some form that is easily assimilated if we want to possess power, energy and endurance. For supplying that deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles, I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula, and my own tests of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results. The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood builder, is in itself an evidence of tremendous public confidence, and I am convinced that if others would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run down it would help make a nation of stronger, healthier men and women."

In commenting upon these conditions and the probability of building up a stronger race of people by increasing the supply of iron in their blood, Dr. Ferdinand King, New York physician and medical author, says: "I fully agree with Dr. Baker. In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another great iron loss.

"Therefore, you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt. I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe aggravated conditions, with unfailing results."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, was asked for an opinion. Dr. Sullivan said: "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood—and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. But in my opinion, you can't make strong, sturdy men of blood and iron—the kind that helped win the war—by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the packages. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recomended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store Co. and other druggists. —ADVERTISEMENT.

J. W. DOOLEY AUTO KILLING INQUEST TO BE TOMORROW

Twin Says He Was Going Not More Than 20 Miles an Hour When Discharged Sailor Was Struck.

MAN HAD JUST GOT OFF STREET CAR

Body Identified at Morgue by Lee W. Van Cleave, at Whose Home Naval Man Had Been Temporarily.

The Coroner will hold an inquest tomorrow into the death of Milton G. Miles, 23 years old, a discharged sailor, who was killed at 12:30 a. m., yesterday, by an automobile driven by Joseph W. Dooley, 24 years old, of 8121 Russell avenue, one of the "Dooley twins," who married Miss Edmee Anheuser. Miles had just alighted from an eastbound Page car at Twentieth street and Washington avenue, and Dooley was driving east alongside the street car.

The body was identified at the morgue by Lee W. Van Cleave, 4782 Westminster place, president of the Buck Stove and Range Co., at whose home Miles had been a guest for the past week, while searching for employment. According to Van Cleave, Miles was on his way to the Railroad Y. M. C. A. hut, Twentieth and Eugenia streets, when the accident occurred.

Dooley Hysterical.

Miles, after alighting from the car, started to cross to the south curb. Dooley's machine struck him, the front wheels passing over his body, breaking his neck.

When taken to Central Police Station, Dooley became hysterical after being informed Miles was dead. He was examined by a physician at the central dispensary, who said that he appeared to have been drinking, but that he was not intoxicated.

Dooley, in his statement to the police, said he was taking Joseph Plischke, a soldier, whom he had met at Camp Pike, Ark., to Plischke's home in the vicinity of Eighteenth street and Cass avenue, after entertaining Plischke at his home. Plischke, who was in the machine at the time, was not held.

Tells of Accident.

Dooley said he had been trailing the street car for several blocks, and at Twentieth street, seeing that it did not stop on the near side, at the west corner, he started to pass it. The car stopped at the east corner, the motorman opening the door before it came to a full stop, according to Dooley, and Miles jumped out in front of the automobile.

The street car did not stop at the west side of Twentieth street because at that point there is a fire engine house and city ordinances prohibit the stopping of street cars in front of such engine houses.

F. X. Rickenback, 514 North Spring avenue, conductor of the street car, told the police that, in his opinion, Dooley was traveling at least 40 miles an hour. He said that Miles was dragged about 70 feet before the automobile was stopped. Dooley insisted he was not driving more than 20 miles an hour, and said he stopped his machine before the rear wheels touched Miles.

Bond Fixed at $2500.

The police questioned Dooley about the fact that his automobile bore a United States army license plate. He explained that he used the car in the military service and that since his discharge from the army he did not have time to get a State license. He served as a Sergeant with a vocational training unit at the Junior High School here, and was discharged several weeks ago.

Several friends of Dooley, among them Justice of the Peace Andrew Gazzalo and former Justice Anthony O'Halloran, called at the police station after his arrest. Several bondsmen tendered their services and he was released on a $2500 bond to appear at the inquest.

Was Guest of Van Cleave.

Van Cleave, after identifying the body, left instructions at the Coroner's office as to where Miles' parents could be reached. The sailor, he said, had been honorably discharged from the navy Jan. 13 after having served on the U. S. S. Tacoma.

Miles, he said, came to St. Louis in search of employment and registered at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club in the Post-Dispatch Building, when Mrs. Van Cleave was in charge. She took an interest in him when she learned of his efforts to find work. Van Cleave said he had been trying to find a job for the young man.

Miles also registered at the Knights of Columbus Soldiers' and Sailors' Club, where he said he was a member of the Des Moines (Io.) branch of that order, and at the United States Employment Agency for Soldiers, Sailors and Marines, 920 Olive street. There he said that before joining the navy he was a salesman for the Hume Grocery Co., Muskegon, Mich., and formerly attended the University of Illinois.

PART TWO. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 9, 1919. PAGES 1—14B.

Nurse in Hospital Unit 21 Writes Vivid Account of Red Cross' Heroic Work

Mrs. Sadie Hausman, in Letter, Tells of Hardships Endured in Ministering to the Wounded in German Drive of Last Spring

A vivid description of the heroic work of Red Cross nurses and the great hardships they endured day after day in France is given in a letter received by Mrs. James Nolan, 5827 Arsenal street, from her daughter, Mrs. Sadie Hausman, supervisor of nurses in France, a graduate of St. Luke's Hospital and superintendent of the St. Louis Maternity Hospital at the time she enteed the service. She went to France with Hospital Unit No. 21, organized at Washington University, and served with the British army and later with the American army.

How the nurses worked calmly beside the army surgeons in the operating rooms while shells burst around them, bambs crashed outside and bombing planes roared overhead, how they went for days with practically no sleep; how they traveled in box cars crowded in with fleeing civilian refugees almost to the point of suffocation, is recounted by Mrs. Hausmen, who went through all these experiences. Her narrative covers a part of the time last spring when the Germans made their drive for Paris, Amiens and the channel ports, and includes a description of the evacuation of a casualty clearing station under fire of the enemy and a retreat with the British army, which was falling back to a new line of defense.

Thirty Minutes to Get Ready.

"As I was going to lunch," writes Mrs. Hausman, "Capt. Post came to meet me and asked if I had been 'warned.' We were to start for the casualty clearing station as soon as we could get ready. The assistant chief nurse told me I would have to pack my trunk and be in the ambulance within 30 minutes. One year ago such a requirement would have seemed impossible. However, army life does much for one, and at the specified time I was ready and waiting for the ambulance and the 'team.'

"A 'team' is composed of two medical officers' (a surgeon and an anaesthetist), nurse, two orderlies and the officer's batsman. When we started I found we were to be accompanied by another team from No. 9 hospital, so there were in our party three ambulances, one of which carried all of our trunks and camp kits."

The convoy arrived at the town of Neuchatel about 4 o'clock that afternoon, Mrs. Hausman writes, and after having tea and some sandwiches brought along by the other nurse, they resumed their journey toward the front. They arrived at Amiens at 9:30 p. m. The nurses were given 10 minutes' leisure, and the two teams then pushed on at increased speed, for Capt. Post had been informed 1500 wounded men awaited them for surgical attention.

Tells of Reaching Wounded.

Continuing, Mrs. Hausman says:

"Presently a thick, drenching fog settled down, chilling me through two coats, one a heavy leather one. We could only see our guide just ahead on his motor cycle. About midnight I began to wonder if the driver on my right was asleep, or how he could keep to the road without being able to see. British ambulance drivers know no speed limit and we went until at last, at 1 a. m., we reached our destination, Marche-Le-Pot. Lorries and ambulances lined both sides of the road.

"As Capt. Post went in to report I looked about me and oh, such a sight as met my eyes! As far as I could see in either direction the road was almost blocked with ambulances and lorries full of wounded men, lying, sitting and standing. The ground was covered with stretchers; they were on the duckboards and between the tents—anywhere there was room was a stretcher with wounded awaiting attention in that dismal, cold fog.

"Capt. Post brought the matron and presented me, bidding me good night as he must go still farther on to take the other team to another C. C. S. Following the matron, dazed by the distance we had come, we picked our way among the strechers. As we passed I could see that the floors of the tents as well as all of the beds were full and men by the hundreds, standing, holding injured hands and arms, patiently waiting until some attention could be given them. The matron told me that 40 operating teams had come to their assistance that day, and all were working just as hard as possible, frightened by the thundering guns that were so very near (we were only a short distance from Perrone).

The First Day's Work.

"That weary matron, who had been on duty 36 hours on a hard run and who was much distressed by the physical impossibility of giving the injured attention as soon as we arrived, led me to the cot of a night sister and asked me to "tuck in" while she tried to get me some food. I assured her I was not needing food just then; in fact, I was so cold and tired I would soon be asleep. Still, she returned with her own dressing gown and eiderdown quilt, a hot water bag and a cup of soup which had once been hot. She insisted on tucking me in as if I were a child and then hurried away, promising to call at 7 a. m.

"Nothing I could say would describe the guns throughout that whole night. The noise of airplanes flying low was also terrifying, but by 2 a. m. I was asleep, listening the while. At 7 o'clock the matron found me awake and remarked that the guns were much worse than ever before, and much larger than those previously used.

"We started to operate about 9 a. m. It was just 1:30 a. m. the next day when the two orderlies and myself left the operating room to the team just coming on. As I found my way to the sister's quarters after getting lost twice among the ever-increasing number of stretchers and walking cases, how I did bless my surgeon's thoughtfulness for sending his batman up to the tent in the afternoon to unpack my camp kit and camp bed.

Tells of Heavy Cannonading.

"When I reached the tent which I was to share with five other nurses at 1:45 a. m. it was, of course, without light or heat, so with the aid of my flash I found my way past the other five cots to my corner. Unwashed, only partially undressed, I rolled most gratefully into my sleeping bag, counting joyfully the hours that I would have to rest before beginning another day. The official British report claims that never in the history of this war was the heavy gun firing and bombing as fierce as that night. The Germans had taken Peronne, just three miles away, and what was left of previous fighting (only a skeleton city) was burning.

When they went to breakfast on the morning of March 23, Mrs Hausman writes, they were told the field ambulance and dressing stations had retreated, and that the casualty clearing station would have to be evacuated at once. It seemed a pity, she writes, for it had been built only a few weeks before and a few elementary conveniences had been provided, all of which had to be abandoned. The surgeons, nurses and hospital attendants continued their work at top speed while preparations were being made to move. The operating rooms were scenes of calm but utmost activity. A battery of anti-aircraft guns was stationed just across the road and began to roar.

The Journey to Amiens.

At 11 a. m. the nurses received their orders to pack up a few things—only what they could carry on their backs—and be ready to retreat. The last operation was finished at 1 p. m., and as the surgical instruments were washed and packed and operating tables taken apart and folded up, Mrs. Hausman saw the floor of the pre-operating room covered with stretchers on which rested wounded men who had not received attention. All the morphine in the hospital was gathered up, some administered by mouth to the most miserable of the wounded men, and the balance given to the surgeon to administer to the men on the train that carried them from the front.

The retreat along with the weary, begrimed British soldiers was fraught with hardships, cold, weariness and hunger. Amiens was reached at 9:30 p. m., and after waiting outside the city for half an hour until the Germans' bombardment had died down, they rode on into the town in their ambulances, and had tea and a slice of bread each, followed by six hours of sleep. The next day the nurses found a bath house and enjoyed the first good, warm bath in days. That afternoon the wounded men they had left behind arrived. Eight had died on the way.

"Supper on a Tablecloth."

About 5 p. m. that day Mrs. Hausman left for Abbeyville. She arrived at 8 p. m. and had "a good supper on a white tablecloth!" Moreover, she slept on the floor of the living room, and had a pillow. The next afternoon she received orders to return to Amiens, and after waiting at the station from 11 p. m. until noon the next day, the train came along, and she was fortunate enough to obtain a seat for the entire trip.

MRS. SADIE HAUSMAN

Graphic Picture of the Flight of Aged French Peasants and Women With Babes.

There she almost immediately had to prepare for another long trip, which was perhaps the most tiresome of all. A crowd had assembled at the station that would have filled two trains, and the nurses almost despaired of getting even standing room. When the train pulled in they noticed two box cars next to the locomotive, and realizing that would be their best chance, they made a mad rush for it. Mrs. Hausman describes what followed in these words:

We ran up the track a long way to reach the engine and saw a royal train officer and two church army officers had the same thought and were already in the freight car. They saw us heavily burdened and leaned out and dragged two of us aboard with our baggage. Instantly the people saw what we had done and they swarmed, handing up bundles and babies, reaching up their hands to be helped. Almost in an instant the car was so full that we tried to prevent more from crowding in. To cap the climax a French freight handler, swearing at us, threw two cases of vile smelling fish into the car, some of which were still alive.

12-Hour Trip Standing.

Presently the train moved on, leaving many frantic people weeping behind. They had seen the Germans advance before and knew what to expect this time. I wish I could picture for you the people in that train, the old, old people, the mothers whose husbands were fighting up the line, having picked up their children and a handful of clothes, going they knew not where. How wonderful they were. Bravely they stood through the whole night holding a sleeping child in an unlighted freight train where the crowding together of many humans, plus the vile fish, added to the fatigue and trembling excitement. Their only sigh was for the children, who fretted as the night grew colder. We of the army, warmly clad, gladly covered them in whatever way we could manage.

"After a while the French people wanted the door of the train closed, fish to the contrary notwithstanding. The mothers said it was too cold for the children, so the church army men stripped off their coats, then their tunics and wrapped up the kiddies. The old people protested that the cold was bad for their rheumatism. I wrapped up one old cronie's knees in my sleeping bag. In vain did we explain that we would die for lack of air; they did not mind the fish.

"We should have reached Rouen at 11 p. m., but it was the following morning when we got in, nearly exhausted from 12 hours of that awful standing journey, following two days and one night of walking up and down Abbeville station.

"When we crawled stiffly from the train the royal train officer asked the interpreter to take up his office where there was a fire to warm us while awaiting the coming of an ambulance to take us out to the camp. We were almost asleep on our feet. At 5:45 I stepped out of the ambulance in our own dear camp only to receive a great shock. The other members of our team had not been heard from. This was alarming because from the train door I had watched all through the night the barrage which was put down at Amiens, and when the train would stop we could hear the bombing of the town we had just left. Two of our boys helped me out of the ambulance and up to my hut. Never, never, will I forget the comfort of little Miss Taylor hopping out of her warm bed and putting me in her place with a comforting hot water bag and a cup of warm cocoa. Home among dear friends at last!

Operations Day and Night.

"Another day dragged by and no news of the team, but at last they straggled in, weary, dirty but safe. We had indeed been lucky. Capt. Post brought the news of a bomb injury to two American officers, an American nurse and a Canadian sister who had operated at the next table to ours at the C. C. S.

"I found our hospital full, even to the grandstand, where about 150 patients able to walk had been put as we had not enough room to take care of all the wounded. The tables in tho surgical dining room were used to hold the wounded just as they had been brought in from the field.

"Our operating room was running day and night—never a stop. Doctors and nurses working hour upon hour with never a thought of rest. The enlisted men carried stretchers of wounded men until they could no longer feel fatigue. Our chief nurse, Miss Stimson, and her wonderful little assistant, Miss Taylor, were a joy and an inspiration, working into the night to keep the hospital business straight and never going to bed until the last letter had been written to mothers and wives of all the patients on "dangerously" or "seriously" ill lists.

"It was a wonderful thing to see several hundred good Americans working together in the splendid way people work when there is too much to do to grouch or complain about the trifles which we feel it our duty to grumble about when there is little else to do.

"It was an awful time. It was a sad time, but it was a glorious time. We saw just what we were capable of and always will we be proud of Hospital Unit 21 in the push of March 21, 1918."

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph With a Soul"

Entertain the boy from "Over There" with real music

Every home in the U. S. A. needs a phonograph, the cheering, soothing, refining influence of good music will be appreciated by the boys from "over there," because every transport had a new Edison.

How can you tell which is the best? Easy—if you use common sense. Difficult—if you trust to the claims of numerous manufacturers.

Look for the man behind the phonograph—the brain that evolved it and perfected it. If you cannot discover any personality behind an instrument you may well doubt its perfection.

The brain of Thomas A. Edison, the greatest inventive genius in the world, is the birthplace of the New Edison.

Go, listen to other phonographs and "talking machines" if you will—then come here and listen to the wonderful New Edison. Above all remember that the name and fame of the greatest inventor of the age guarantee its superiority.

Last, but not least, we have succeeded in making this remarkable phonograph to sell at prices and terms to make it possible for every home to have an Edison.

Our Club Plan

HOW TO PREVENT APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis is primarily due to the poisons formed by decaying food in the bowels. It is a disease caused by improper and insufficient bowel elimination. The waste food matter is allowed to stay in the system for weeks and months, poisoning the body and causing headaches and stomach trouble and often developing acute or chronic appendicitis.

The only way to avoid appendicitis and other trouble and to keep feeling in the best condition is to watch your bowels. Just as you keep the outside of your body clean, you should also KEEP THE INSIDE CLEAN. It is even more important to keep the bowels clean than it is to keep your body washed, because the millions of pores in the long alimentary canal quickly absorb poisons generated by decaying food left carelessly in the bowels. Don't allow the old, fermenting waste matter to stay in your bowels for weeks, but GET IT OUT and keep it out. Remember, unclean bowels are the cause of most sickness—no stomach or liver or any other organ can do its work with old waste food matter sending out gases and poisons. Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH, complete cleansing to rid the system of all accumulated waste food matter.

TO CLEAN BOWELS THOROUGHLY

The MOST COMPLETE bowel cleanser known is a mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine and ten other ingredients, put up in ready-prepared form under the trade name of Adler-i-ka. This mixture is so powerful a bowel cleanser that it ALWAYS does its work properly and thoroughly. It removes foul and poisonous matter which other cathartic or laxative mixtures are unable to dislodge. It does a COMPLETE job and it works QUICKLY and without the least discomfort or trouble. It is so gentle that one forgets he has taken it. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous waste matter a SINGLE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka draws from the alimentary canal—matter you would never have thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural bowel movement and notice how much MORE waste matter will be brought out which was poisoning your system. In slight disorders such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, "gas on the stomach" or sick headache, one spoonful brings relief almost INSTANTLY. Adler-i-ka is the MOST THOROUGH bowel cleanser and antisepticizer ever offered in ready prepared form. It is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines and the various oils and waters.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS

Dr. James Weaver, Lea, Utah: "I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adler-i-ka."

Dr. W. A. Line, West Baden, Ind.: "I use Adler-i-ka in my practice and have found nothing to excel it."

Dr. F. M. Prettyman, Mallard, Minn.: "I use Adler-i-ka in all bowel cases and have been very successful with it. Some cases require only one dose."

Druggist D. Hawks, Goshen, Ind.: "One of our leading doctors has used Adler-i-ka in cases of stomach trouble with wonderful success. He has not lost a patient and saved many operations."

J. E. Puckett, Gilliham, Ark.: "I had bad stomach trouble. After taking Adler-i-ka feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the awful impurities which were eliminated from my system."

Cora E. Noblett, Sageeyah, Okla.: "Thanks to Adler-i-ka I can sleep all night now, something I could not do for years."

Mrs. L. A. Austin, Ausland, Minn.: "I could not eat a thing, my stomach was so weak. Adler-i-ka made me feel better and am now able to work and gaining."

Adler-i-ka is sold by leading druggists in each city. In St. Louis by Johnson Bros., 7th and St. Charles; Wolff-Wilson, and other druggists. Large bottle sent express prepaid for $1.25. Interesting book about appendicitis free. Address ADLERIKA CO., Dept. B, St. Paul, Minn. —ADVERTISEMENT.

SECOND MEETING OF MISSISSIPPI RIVER BODY HERE APRIL 17

Governors of 15 States and Mayors of 100 Cities Have Been Invited to Be Present at Convention.

FOREIGN TRADE TO BE TAKEN UP

Specific Subjects to Be Discussed Include Extension of St. Louis-New Orleans Barge Service.

The Governors of 15 states touching the Mississippi River, the Mayors of 100 cities in the Mississippi Valley and the heads of more than 500 commercial organizations in the 21 states between the Allegheny and Rocky Mountains have been asked to come to St. Louis April 17 and 18 in invitations to its second annual convention mailed by the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association yesterday. In addition Governors, Mayors and commercial organization heads were asked to name their prominent citizens as delegates to the convention.

The invitation list is larger than for any previous river meeting held in the valley, because the purposes are estimated as transcending those of any similar convention.

The general subject for action will be the development of foreign trade, the establishment of a merchant marine and the utilization of inland waterways. The specific subjects for action will be solidifying sentiment for the governmental development and equipment of the 16,000 miles of waterways in the Mississippi Valley, the establishment of regular foreign sailings from Southern ports, the extension of the benefits of the Federal River Service between St. Louis and New Orleans, and plans to impress upon the representatives of the valley in Congress that their future political fortunes are linked with their support of these measures.

Lane and Hurley Invited.

Invitations to speak here have been extended to Secretary of the Interior Lane, Edward M. Hurley, chairman of the Shipping Board, Senator Spencer of Missouri and Senator McCormick of Illinois. The program will be completed as soon as replies from the Governors and Mayors are received.

In separate letters mailed by James E. Smith, president of the association, the attendance of Mayors is particularly urged that the subject of river terminals may be considered. Engineers will advise the conference upon the best methods of dock construction, and it is hoped a uniform plan for terminal construction will be the result. As is known by experience, the success of river transportation is dependant as much upon terminal facilities being modern as upon freight being consigned to the river.

The Question of Rates.

Separate letters have been mailed to commercial organizations in Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida informing them that the matter of obtaining river and rail rates into their territories will be taken up. Such tariffs, much sought now are being prepared, but their adoption has been delayed for reasons not yet definnitely explained.

One of the definite projects to be considered is the future improvement of rivers under a definite national program, not by promiscuous appropriation, as in the past. James E. Smith will submit his project of the expenditure of $100,000,000 in five years, not only to make the chief waters of the Mississippi navigable, but to put upon them Government-operated barge lines, such as that now operating between St. Louis and New Orleans. This plan has been approved at recent river meetings in other cities, as far east as Pittsburg, and caused more discussion before the last Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington than any subject that most powerful of waterways bodies considered.

PLANS FOR LONG TRADE TRIP

C. of C. Committee Arranging for Journey to South America.

A meeting of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Tuesday to determine how many St. Louis manufacturers and jobbers will join a party now forming in the Mississippi Valley to visit Central and South American points next autumn for the purpose of cultivating markets for valley products.

F. Ernest Cramer, chairman of the bureau, said it would be pointed out at the meeting that St. Louis, as the valley's center, should have a strong representation in the party. Chicago and New Orleans business men already have signified their desire to go. The trip will be under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Association, of which Cramer is a vice president.

'UNION' OF WOMEN TO BE PLANNED IN CONVENTION HERE

National Suffrage Association's Working Plans Provide for Formation of Congress With 2 Houses.

SEMBLANCE ONLY OF POLITICAL PARTY

Pan-Partisan and Nonmilitant Purpose Proclaimed in Official Announcement—Features of Program.

The organization of women of the United States into a "union" having the semblance of a political party is the chief enterprise of the convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association in St. Louis, March 24-29.

The "union" will, in effect, be the reorganization of an association having the enfranchisement of women as its chief purpose into one having the pursuit of the advantages of possessing that franchise as its aim. The association began its fight for the ballot 50 years ago, and this "jubilee" convention, as it has been named, will be in the nature of a celebration of victory.

Working plans for the new organization "of women citizens" have been suggested. One is that a sort of congress be formed, one house to be composed of representatives of the 7,300,000 women from states which have granted full suffrage, the other to be composed of representatives from nonvoting states. It has been suggested that one be called the House of Voters, the other the House of Delegates. It is suggested that each house consider its own peculiar problems, but when questions of national policy arise the two should sit together. The plan of having such houses composed of representatives is predicated, of course, upon the organization of "unions" within each state.

Purposes of "Union."

The announcement from headquarters of the association on the purposes of the proposed "union" follows:

"If the proposed coalition-organization should be effected it would be pan-partisan and non-militant. Its immediate purpose, so far as America is concerned, would be to further the complete enfranchisement of all American women; its farther reaching purpose to equalize the democracy of the country, especially as regards conditions governing women and children. The same purposes, immediate and ultimate, would hold good so far as the world is concerned—enfranchisement for all women and improvement in the conditions of life governing women and children the world over.

"Does this mean to form a new party exclusively of women? If a party is "a body of persons united for some purpose," it does. The proposed coalition also seems to be a party insofar as it aims to be a "part or portion" of the Government.

"In the sense that a party aims at 'political ascendency,' the new union would not be a party. There would be no intention of massing women against men; its object would be to utilize the tendency, already existing among enfranchised women, of turning their vote-seeking associations into law-seeking agencies for better social conditions."

In support of the theory that the purposes of the association have been changed by the success of its past campaigns, it is pointed out that 12,000,000 women in 24 states have the right to vote for President, and of that number 7,300,000 in 15 states have full suffrage.

Convention Program.

The program for the St. Louis convention is about complete. All meetings will be in Hotel Statler except those of Thursday and Friday, March 27 and 28, which will be in the Odeon. The convention will be preceded on March 22 by a meeting of the Executive Council.

The address of the president, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, has been advanced from its usual place to the first day, to permit her to outline the need of a coalition of women. The final decision on the plan has been reserved until the last day, that the questions which have come in a flood from all parts of the country may be answered.

Much of the discussion of other matters of the convention will be taken up in sectional meetings. The subjects of discussion for the section of voting women are "How Can the Laws of Several States Defining the Legal Status of Women Be Unified and Approved?" "What Can Women Voters Do Toward the Improvement of Election Methods?" and "What Can the Women Voters Do to Make the United States More Worthy of World Leadership?"

Stockyards Road Common Carrier.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Union Stockyards and Transit Co. of Chicago was held to be a common carrier subject to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce, in a decision today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was held, however, that livestock shippers had not been discriminated against unduly by the company's failure to absorb all charges for loading and unloading livestock at the Chicago yards, while absorbing such charges at other markets.

YOU MEN WHO PAY THE FAMILY SHOE BILLS

Tramping 18 miles a day, Mr. H. M. Bareman, a mail carrier of Allentown, Pa., found that shoes with ordinary soles last about one month. But he says a pair of Neōlin-soled shoes gave him more than nine months of service, in which time he walked over 4,000 miles.

His experience shows how you may save shoe money by providing your family with Neōlin-soled shoes, which give extra wear where other shoes wear out quickest.

You can get Neōlin-soled shoes in any type of shoe you want. Prices are about the same as for shoes that give only ordinary wear, sometimes they are even less. If your dealer hasn't the style you want, he can get it for you quickly. Remember, Neōlin Soles are created by science to be what soles should be. They are available everywhere for re-soling as well as on new shoes. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

Check and Abort a Bad Cold

In Five Hours With MENTHO-LAXENE.

You Buy It Concentrated and Mix With Pint of Syrup.

Doubtless every reader recalls having neglected a slight cold until in 24 hours it settled into a "Bad Cold" and then about 72 hours of distress, discomfort, if not weeks of bronchitis or pneumonia or catarrh. Now confess, if you've had such an experience, and take time by the forelock by preparing to check and abort colds, coughs, catarrh, difficult breathing, watering eyes and painful headaches.

It can be done, by taking Mentho-Laxene either in its raw state—ten drops to the dose—or by making a granulated sugar syrup and mixing in a pint bottle or jar. A pint will last a whole family for a long time and keeps every member free from the distressing after-effects of a bad cold. Mentho-Laxene is guaranteed to please or money back by The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, and any well stocked druggist can supply you. Don't take a substitute. There is really nothing to compare with Mentho-Laxene.—ADV.

GARDNER'S TAX PLAN OPPOSED BY SENATORS

McKnight, From Country District, Says It Is Unfair to Put Burden on Cities.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 8.—Organized opposition in the State Senate to the enactment of Gov. Gardner's revenue-producing program, which would make St. Louis, Kansas City and the other large cities of the State bear virtually all the cost of prohibition in Missouri is developing under the leadership of Senator James W. McKnight of Gentry County. He declares that the country sections of the State forced prohibition on the cities and that it is unfair to compel the cities to pay the cost and permit rural Missouri to escape its proportion of the taxes.

McKnight is from a country district, one of the most prosperous in the State, and for years has been an unusually active advocate of all manner of prohibition legislation.

In a statement to the Post-Dispatch correspondent he expressed the opinion that all the proposed revenue measures should be defeated, that the Senate should refuse to vote to abolish the State Tax Commission, and that the result must be that the State Board of Equalization would be compelled to equalize assessments at actual value to meet the revenue needs of the State.

Loss of $1,500,000 in Revenue.

"Missouri stands to lose approximately $1,500,000 a year in revenue through the ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment," the Senator said. "This amendment was ratified by the members of the Legislature from rural districts and was over the protests of the cities.

"I believed prohibition to be in the best interests of the people of the State and voted for it, but, although I am from a farming community and a district which contains no large cities, I am opposed to compelling the cities to pay all the cost of prohibition, particularly as prohibition is going to greatly reduce their municipal revenues.

"Several measures have been proposed to get State funds to make up the loss, among them an increase in the corporation tax and an increase in the income tax. Nearly all the revenue derived from such sources would come from the cities. Comparatively little corporation tax and income tax comes from the country.

"If all of the property in the State were assessed on a proper basis there would not be the slightest occasion for increasing these indirect taxes, and I am confident the State Board of Equalization, if it faces the emergency, will meet the issue and so assess properly. It is not going to bankrupt the State.

"There has been a great deal of talk that the country districts will not stand for proper assessments. I do not believe that. I rather think it is the misguided opinion of politicians who do not think their constituents will stand for full valuation assessments.

People Support Stand.

"I have taken the trouble to sound out public opinion in my district. I have written bankers, business men and other large taxpayers throughout the district to learn whether they favor continuing the State Tax Commission and whether they favor assessments at real value. Without exception, the answers I have received support the proposition of standing by the Tax Commission and assessing property at its real value.

"I can see no reason why the people in other parts of the State should be different from the people in my district in Northwest Missouri, and I am in favor of checking this taxation matter right up to the Board of Equalization, where it belongs, and putting the responsibility on those whose duty it is to bear it. I have no fear that the board will fail to meet the emergency and so assess property that sufficient revenue for the State's needs will be provided."

The Board of Equalization is holding daily sessions, but is unable to proceed with the equalization of assessments because all the counties have not yet reported their assessments. The records of the commission reveal that a vast majority of the Assessors throughout the State are honestly endeavoring to comply with their oaths of office and are assessing property at its actual value.

Assessments Increased.

So far 110 of the 114 counties have reported, and with the exception of seven counties, the returns are from two to three times the assessment last year when the State Board of Equalization arbitrarily reduced assessors' returns to assess property at about one-third its value. Of the returns from 70 counties which have been tabulated by the Tax Commission, the total assessments returned by assessors are $1,318,855,027. Last year the State Board of Equalization arbitrarily fixed the assessments of these counties at only $480,540,-C72. The assessors who are familiar with property values in their counties have this year voluntarily increased assessed valuations notwithstanding the action of the board last year, slightly less than 200 per cent.

McKnight said that if property were assessed at its true value the State tax rate could be reduced to not to exceed 12 cents on the $100 valuation.

Will Lecture on Pompeii.

Prof. F. W. Shipley, head of the Latin department of Washington University, will lecture on "Pompeii" before the St. Louis Society of the Archeological Institute of America, at Jefferson Memorial Building, Lindell boulevard and De Baliviere avenue, at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow. Prof. Shipley is a former president of the institute. The lecture will be illustrated. Admission is by card.

G. O. P. MUST AID 2 AT ELECTION IT FOUGHT AT PRIMARY

Organization Defeated Julius Haller, Only Alderman to Vote Against Kiel's U. R. Deal.

ONLY DEMOCRATIC CONTEST IN 20TH

Total Vote 36,016 of Which 28,481 Was Republican—Union Men Helped Two Nonmachine Republicans.

The Republican city organization, in the three weeks' campaign which will precede the election of April 1, for President and 14 members of the Board of Aldermen, will have the task of supporting two candidates whom it opposed in Friday's primary. They are Aldermen William F. Otto of the Fourth Ward and Alderman Gus Baur of the Fourteenth, who won renomination over the opposition of the organization.

Returns compiled yesterday showed that the total vote cast was 36,016. As there were Republican contests for seven nominations, and only one Democratic contest, and as city employes were working in nearly every precinct to get out Republican votes, nearly four times as many Republicans as Democrats voted in the primary.

The Republican organization succeeded in defeating Alderman Julius Haller of the Twenty-fourth Ward, who was the only member of the board to oppose Mayor Kiel's United Railways policy. C. A. Groeschel, who had the organization's support, beat Haller by a vote of 16,970 to 11,362.

Organization Winners.

Aldermen Otto Hampe of the Tenth Ward, Wilbur O. Schwartz of the Twentieth Ward and R. H. Eilers of the Twenty-sixth Ward, all had the active support of the Republican organization, and were renominated over opponents.

The Twelfth Ward nomination, which was not sought by the present Alderman for that ward, Dr. Edward Richter, was won by Charles A. Neumann, member of the Republican City Committee from that ward, who had the support of the organization.

The Republican nomination for the seven other even-numbered wards were won without opposition, six of them by the present Aldermen. Edward Hirth was unopposed for the nomination to succeed Alderman Bergt of the Eighth Ward.

The only Democratic contest was for the Twentieth Ward nomination, and Henry J. Grimm won this nomination by 4201 to 3334 for William Krummenacher.

The Aldermen were nominated, as they will be elected, by city-wide vote for the entire ticket. Alderman Otto, who had a plurality of 2287 over Solomon Goldman in the city-wide vote, ran 456 votes behind Goldman in their ward, the Fourth.

Louis P. Aloe, President of the board, was renominated on the Republican ticket without opposition, and Flint Garrison won the Democratic nomination for the same office without a contest.

The Socialists are making an effort to place their ticket on the official ballot by means of a petition signed by two per cent of the registered voters.

Vote in Wards.

Second Ward, Ald. Edward Scholl (R), James J. Walsh (D); Fourth, Ald. William F. Otto (R), John P. Connor (D); Sixth, Ald. William L. Tamme (R), Frank R. Moser (D); Eighth, Edward Hirth (R), Thomas Bastian (D); Tenth, Ald. Otto A. Hampe (R), Charles J. Doran (D); Twelfth, Charles A. Neumann (R), C. E. Walker (D); Fourteenth, Ald. Gus A. Baur (R), Jerome L. Fuerst (D); Sixteenth, Ald. Adam Reis (R), Samuel E. Snyder (D); Eighteenth, Ald. Alfred Bergmann (R), Frank Korasick (D); Twentieth, Ald. Wilbur C. Schwartz (R), Henry J. Grimm (D); Twenty-second, Ald. H. C. Kralemann (R), John F. Hines (D); Twenty-fourth, C. A. Groeschel (R), Nils Grant (D); Twenty-sixth, Ald. R. H. Eilers (R), David Nelson (D); Twenty-eight, Ald. Luke E. Hart (R), George P. Dougherty (D).

Schwartz of the Twentieth was renominated by largest majority, having 21,288 votes to 7077 for Charles J. Eisenring. Hampe got 19,816 votes against 6082 and 2476 for C. E. Anderson and C. H. Demuith, his opponents. Baur also had two opponents, but he got less than their total vote, having 13,303 to 11,688 for H. P. Riefling and 3490 for George T. Kollas. Groeschel got the Twenty-fourth Ward nomination by 16,970 to 11,302 for Haller.

Politicians said Baur and Otto were aided in their victory over organization opposition, by the Municipal Clerks' Association and the City Firemen's Union. These organizations, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, favored Baur and Otto because they voted for salary increase bills favored by the unions.

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out the poisons.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results both in regard to health and appearance.—ADV.

WAR HERO SUPPRESSED EAST ST. LOUIS RIOTS

Maj. H. R. Hill Was Brigadier-General Then—Posthumous Award of the D. S. C.

Maj. Henry R. Hill of Quincy, Ill., to whom the posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Cross was announced yesterday, was the Illinois National Guard officer who commanded the militia in East St. Louis for several weeks following the race riots of July, 1917. He was then a Brigadier-General. He was killed in action Oct. 16, in performing the feat for which the decoration was awarded. The citation follows:

Maj. Henry R. Hill, deceased, 128th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, Oct. 16. With absolute disregard for his personal safety, Maj. Hill led his battalion over the top personally, reached the objective and cleaned out enemy machine-gun nests. When a group of enemy machine gunners were about to open fire on his flank, Maj. Hill noticed them, and, armed only with a captured pistol, he immediately went forward to engage them. Taken by surprise, three of the crew surrendered, but one, remaining in the pit, turned the machine gun on him; and as Maj. Hill's pistol failed to work he was instantly killed by the machine-gun fire. Mrs. Cecilia R. Hill, mother, 516 Maine street, Quincy, Ill.

Accepted Reduced Rank.

Brigadier-General Hill accepted a reduction to the rank of Major to get to France early. He previously had served on the border, and was known throughout the National Guard establishment as one of the most efficient milita officers in the country. He went to France in command of a battalion of Wisconsin National Guard troops, which went before the Illinois troops.

He was sent to East St. Louis at the time of the riots, following the failure of two Colonels to restore order there. He immediately took a firm grasp of the situation, organized a regular system of patrols, ordered his men to fire or use their bayonets if necessary to keep order, and superintended the aiding of refugees. His vigorous methods and use of plain, homely language in issuing his instructions excited much favorable comment.

Instance of His Vigor.

An instance of his methods was given when John Eisinger, an East St. Louis boy, was fatally stabbed by a guardsman. After several Captains and Lieutenants had made perfunctory reports that they were unable to find the man who did the stabbing, Gen. Hill called two reporters who had been present and had them go with him and point out all the soldiers who were around at the time. He personally took all of them into custody, and in half an hour had found the guilty man and obtained a confession from him.

RAILWAY CLERKS APPEAL TO REED ON LEAGUE CONSTITUTION

Resolution Adopted by Lodge Points Out That Opponents Have Found No Objections.

A resolution calling upon Senator Reed and Spencer to indorse and ultimately ratify the proposed constitution of the league of nations in its present form was adopted by Union Station Lodge No. 20, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, at a meeting at West End Hall, Vandeventer and Finney avenues, Tuesday night.

The resolution states that only by indorsing and ratifying the proposed constitution can the Senators truly represent the will of the citizens of Missouri. It declares that unless the promise of the President that such a league be established is carried out, our soldiers who died in France will have died in vain.

The resolution points out that the 37 Senators who recently signed Senator Lodge's protest against the present form of the league's constitution took no exception to the President's pledges during the war.

LIQUOR DEALERS WILL ASK VOTE ON NATIONAL AMENDMENT

State-Wide Referendum Is Favored by Committee Considering Probable Action.

A demand for a referendum on the vote of the Missouri Legislature for the adoption of the constitutional amendment for national prohibition probably will be made at 2:30 p. m. today by the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association at a meeting at 200 South Broadway.

The matter was referred at the last meeting to the association's Executive Committee, which has indicated that its report will be for a fight on the Legislature's action. John P. Pensa, president, said that the association would adopt the report.

He said that the measures to bring about a referendum would be determined after today's meeting.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is no respector of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out through the pores of the skin as a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Good News for Fat Folks!

If You Want to Reduce Ten to Sixty Pounds Easily and Quickly, Read This

Most fat people would like to enjoy healthful, normal weight. After unpleasant experiences with starvation dieting, drastic drugging and tiresome exercising, most of those burdened with surplus weight give up hope of ever finding relief.

At last a home treatment has been evolved, which is so simple that some may doubt its efficacy for that reason alone. But don't pass judgment until you know more.

One very easy requirement of this unique system of fat reduction is that you take seven deep breaths each morning and evening in the open air or standing by an open window. Take one oil of korein capsule after each meal and before retiring at night; also follow the other simple directions that come with the capsules.

This treatment often shows a noticeable reduction in a very few days. Its consistent use should greatly improve the general health, overcome sluggishness and reduce your weight to normal. Beautify figure; add to vitality and efficiency; become genuinely happy! The oil of korein capsules may be obtained at the drug store. It is certainly a happy feeling to have a lithe, natural figure.—ADV.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excesive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases, if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off the next morning, flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No harm or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

For deep wrinkles or crowsfeet, a solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce dissolved in a half pint of witch-hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.—ADV.

POST-DISPATCH POPULAR WITH MEN OVERSEAS

Hospital Unit Member Says 70 Boys Often Read Single Copy —Writes of Burying a St. Louisan.

Private Cleveland Rutledge of Evacuation Hospital No. 20, A. P. O. 705, Beau Desert, France, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch says there are 70 boys of Evacuation Hospital 20 who are readers of the Post-Dispatch—whenever one of them is lucky enough to receive a copy.

"If the parents knew how glad their boys were to get a home paper they would send more of them," he wrote. "One of the boys, Clarence Reppy, received a Post-Dispatch today, and he had an awful time reading it. Just as soon as the boys learned of the paper's arrival they all crowded around him, until, finally, being a good-natured boy, Clarence laid it down and said, 'Well, boys, just save it for me when you are through with it.'"

Rutledge said when he and his associates first reached the battle zone he was among those assigned to working in the morgue and burying the dead.

Buried St. Louis Officer.

"The first dead hero I helped put in his last resting place," he writes, "was Lieut. Clarence W. Schnelle of 3128 Allen avenue, St. Louis. He was brought to our hospital and died of his wounds. He was with the 138th Infantry of St. Louis. It sure was hard to have to bury one of the brave men from our own home city, but he had the honor of fighting and dying alongside St. Louis boys, and St. Louis boys laid him to rest. The man who buried his were Corp. Anthony Traufler of 1548 South Seventh street, Elmer Block of North St. Louis and myself, Cleveland Rutledge, of 1415 Dillon street.

FARM ORGANIZATION LOOKING FOR A PERMANENT LOCATION

International Congress Considering St. Louis Among Other Cities.

The Board of Governors of the International Farm Congress will soon select a permanent location for the general offices, the annual sessions and for holding of the annual International Soil-Products Exposition. In addition, a permanent exposition probably will be added.

Before making its decision the Board of Governors is to advise each city which is considered available by reason of its location and general features, of the proposed action and will consider all suggestion or propositions made by each. St. Louis is one of these cities.

The financial requirements of the congress are very modest. The first consideration is adequate housing facilities, properly located. The congress and exposition are to be held in Kansas City this year in September. It is desired that the matter of a permanent location be settled as soon as possible.

CITATION OF OFFICER KILLED

A copy of a brigade citation, issued after the death of First Lieutenant Elden S. Betts by Brigadier-General Parker of the First Division, has been received by the officer's father, P. L. Betts of 234 Twelfth street, Alton. Lieut. Betts was commanding the machine gun company of the Sixteenth Infantry when he was killed in the Argonne-Meuse fighting, Oct. 9. The citation says:

"An officer of the finest personal and military qualities, from the beginning of the operations of the First Division until killed while leading his company in the desperate fighting between the Argonne and the Meuse, he was conspicuous for his courage, zeal, efficiency and loyalty, consistently setting the finest example to his subordinates, and possessing at all times the complete confidence of his superiors.

30,000 GARMENTS SOUGHT

At the February meeting of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, at Sodality Hall, 44 branch conferences reported giving relief to 268 families in provisions, fuel, medical attendance, shoes, clothing and household goods. Five families were supplied with furniture to start housekeeping.

The drain on the stock of clothing and furniture has been heavy and a week's campaign to obtain 50,000 pieces of clothing is in progress. All kinds of household furniture is also needed. Persons who desire to contribute are requested to call Olive 1743, or drop postal to the society at 413 South Fourteenth street.

REPORT ON C. OF C.'S WORK DURING THE WAR

Aided 250 St. Louis Industries to Get War Contracts Amounting to $360,000,000.

A record of the war activities of the Chamber of Comerce and an outline of the assistance given by that organization in developing war industries here to a point where St. Louis finally ranked fifth among the cities of the country in the matter of materials furnished the War Department, are contained in the annual report of officers of that body for 1918, which has just been prepared for submission to members.

The Chamber of Commerce, according to the report, through its War Industries Committee, aided 250 St. Louis industries in getting war orders. The total amount of supplies furnished the Government through these industries amounted to $360,000,000, exclusive of the horses, mules and packing house products supplied from East St. Louis.

One of the most important undertakings of the chamber during the year was the organization of a regional division of the War Industries Board for the district comprising Missouri, Arkansas and Southern Illinois. Jackson Johnson, president of the chamber, was appointed regional director and supervised the work of the regional division, which included the handling of priority applications, the allocation of material, providing construction authorities, specifications and prints and outlining war material requirements.

Kept Arsenal Here.

The report states that the chamber, after learning that pressure was being brought to bear upon the War Department for the removal from St. Louis of the Quartermaster's depot at the Arsenal, sent committees to Washington, the result of which was assurance that the arsenal would be maintained here. In addition, appropriations totaling $1,723,000 were obtained for building extensions at the depot.

The importance of the depot is evidenced by the fact that in peace times it handles $150,000,000 of supplies for the army and $250,000,000 or more in war times, a large percentage of the supplies thus handled being obtained from St. Louis manufacturers.

President Johnson, in concluding his portion of the report, makes an appeal for additional members, pointing out that the reconstruction period presents problems as difficult as those of the war, which, he declares, were only successfully handled because of the well-organized condition of the Chamber. More members, he states, will mean wider influence, greater financial resources and greater capacity for getting results.

The membership of the Chamber of Comerce, according to the report of its Membership Bureau, is now 3589, a gain of 915 since Jan. 1, 1918. Members who resigned during the year numbered 462, of which 93 were railroad memberships discontinued by order of the Director-General of Railroads.

Conventions Held Last Year.

Included in the annual report is an account prepared by the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, a separate organization, of the conventions held here last year. More than 200 such meetings were held, the report states, and this figure would have been increased by 17 had not the influenza interfered.

The Chamber's financial report shows that its funds total $195,513.17, of which $41,979.81 is balance from 1917 and $147,869.08 dues collected from members. The total disbursements during 1918 were $176,385.12, leaving a balance of $19,128.05.

Among the disbursements listed are: Salaries and administrative expenses, $25,504.36; publicity and advertising, $7743.96; legal expenses (including the effort to remove the Terminal bridge arbitrary on coal), $21,375.55; Liberty Bonds, for investment, $3000; Liberty Bonds, for sale to employes, $3158.24; traffic bureau, $17,433.93.

How long?

—how long will its tone last? That is a question which you should ask of any new piano, the tone of which charms and delights you. It will last as long as the sounding-board retains its arch. There is but one piano in the world—the

ST. LOUIS CHARTER SECTION ON RECALL CALLED A BURDEN

A. R. Hatton, Rated an Expert on Fundamental Laws, Declares Requirements Make It Almost Unworkable.

STIPULATION AS TO SIGNATURES SEVERE

Straight 25 Per Cent of Voters Probably Easier to Get Than Percentage Fixed With Restrictions as to Distribution.

The recall section of the St. Louis city charter is so burdensome in its requirements as to be almost unworkable, in the opinion of Augustus R. Hatton, head of the department of political science in Western Reserve University, Cleveland, and professional framer and repairer of charters and constitutions, who was at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

"If I had framed the recall provision of the St. Louis charter," Dr. Hatton said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "I would think I had put up a fake on the people, by causing them to believe they had the recall when they haven't it in a practicable form.

"The requirement of the signatures of 20 per cent of the voters is in itself severe; 15 per cent is generally considered reasonable. But when to a 20 per cent requirement is added the stipulation that the 20 per cent must include 20 per cent in two-thirds of the wards, why, it looks as if the framers of the charter were trying to see how difficult they could make it.

"A straight requirement of 25 per cent would probably be easier to meet than 20 per cent, with the restrictions made here as to distribution of the signatures.

Requirements Elsewhere.

"The Cleveland charter requires 15,000 signatures to a petition for the recall of an official elected by the city, and 600 for the recall of an Alderman representing one ward. That is about a 15 per cent requirement. The new charter of Memphis, now before the Tennessee Legislature, contains a recall section with a 15 per cent requirement. In Springfield, O., the requirement is 15 per cent, in Akron 20, and in Dayton 25. In Los Angeles, where a Mayor resigned a few years ago while a recall vote was pending, the percentage is 25. But I know of no restrictions anywhere on distribution such as are made here.

"Experience has shown that signatures to recall petitions are more difficult to get than signatures to initiative or referendum petitions. In the case of the recall, the signer feels that he is attacking an individual, and personal sympathy is likely to overbalance the strict consideration of official acts."

Some of Dr. Hatton's Work.

Dr. Hatton framed the new charter of Memphis, which the Tennessee Legislature is expected to ratify. It will not be voted on by the people of Memphis, as this is not required under the State Constitution. He drafted the present charter of Cleveland, and framed the present home rule provisions of the Ohio State Constitution, which was a part of the extensive program of amendments adopted in 1912.

Other recent work which he has done has been in the movements, in New Hampshire and Indiana, for authorization by the Legislatures, of the city manager form of municipal government, which is authorized by the Constitution of Ohio and which Dr. Hatton believes will supersede the commission form of government in many cities. The best known example of the city manager form of government has been furnished by Dayton, O., under Henry Waite as manager. Waite is now in France as a Lieutenant-Colonel of the Army.

Dr. Hatton is field director of the Short Ballot Organization, with headquarters in New York, and spends a considerable part of his time in the work of that organization, and in advisory work in connection with the drafting of city charters.

ASKS DIVORCE FOR DESERTION

Mrs. L. M. Wagner Says Husband Left Her After Two Days.

Mrs. Loretto M. Wagner of 4241 Athlone avenue yesterday filed suit to divorce John Joseph Wagner, formerly of 4303 College avenue, to whom she was married Feb. 8 last. The plaintiff, who was a widow with two children, avers that Wagner told her he was earning $12 a day as promoter of an iron workers' union, and that he wanted to marry and settle down. She says she was employed to help support her family and she consented to wed the defendant, believing his representations true, but that she since has learned that he misrepresented conditions.

Two days after the marriage, she alleges, he left the house to take $30 to the bride's landlord which she had saved for the rent, and she has not seen him since. He also took with him an overcoat which he borrowed from a cousin of his wife, and which he wore when he was married, the petition recites. The plaintiff describes her husband as "a rover over the world." She asks for the restoration of her former name, Young.

TO TAKE UP CHINA CLAIMS AT PEACE TABLE THIS WEEK

Dr. Wang, Second Member of Delegation, Tells of Matters to Come Before the Paris Conference.

WANTS GERMANY TO MAKE RESTORATION

Tells of Valuable Instruments Taken by Kaiser's Representatives From Peking—Talks of Japan Controversy.

By JAMES M. TUOHY,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1919, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

PARIS, March 7.—China's claims are to be considered by the Big Five next week. Dr. Wang, the second member of the Chinese delegation and a member of China's first Senate, one of the brilliant and distinguished Chinese educated in America, today gave me for the Post-Dispatch an extremely interesting statement of China's position before the peace conference. He said:

"We have come here to settle our differences with Germany along the same lines as all other Powers. We want the cancellation of the treaties under which Germany unjustly enjoyed certain rights in China, reparation of damage done our property and in addition we seek ratification by Germany of The Hague convention of 1912 for the suppression of the opium traffic, which, owing to Germany's opposition, has never come into operation.

"We furthermore demand the return of instruments looted by Germany in 1900 from the Imperial Observatory in Peking, which are of incalculable historic value. For us to deal with Japan over Kaiochow would be equivalent to France treating through America for the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine by Germany. To that China will never under any conditions consent.

Talks of Japan.

"Japan took Kaichow in the interests of all the allies, with the help of Great Britain. There is no question of Japan taking it unaided, for it is to be supposed that if Germany were not tied down in Europe by the allied armies she would not have failed to send reinforcements to safeguard Kaichow."

"What is China's claim respecting Japan's 21 demands?"

"We contend they are absolutely contrary to the principles of justice and equity. They were formulated because of the state of war and if refused were to be effectuated by force. Premier Okuma justified them by declaring that Japan then had an opportunity that would not come again in a thousand years.

"What was the opportunity? Nothing but Europe's precccupation in war.

"We demand these agreements shall be abrogated and revised—abrogated where they unjustly affect China's soverign rights and revised where we assent to their principles, as for example the opening of Chinese ports to foreign trade, a policy having been pursued by China for 20 years.

"The Japanese demands were arranged in five groups and we were warned to preserve silence respecting them, but when something became known abroad and questions were asked, Japan gave an incomplete version to her allies, wholly suppressing the 'group of five' which would have made China a mere vassal of Japan."

"But surely now they have consented to hand over Kiaochow?"

Doesn't Want the Shell.

"Yes, they propose to eat the oyster and give us the shell. They propose to return Kiaochow, the husk, while they propose to retain the kernel, the most valuable section of the Shantung peninsula adjoining Tsingtau, including the terminus of the railroad, which with its branches dominates the whole peninsula and takes in all Chinese railroads serving the richest areas of our country."

"I notice that the first article of the 21 demands that the Chinese Government 'engages to give full assent to all matters upon which the Japanese Government may hereafter agree with the German Government' in relation to Shantung province. Doesn't this seem to invite the hypothesis of a German victory?"

"If Germany won it would apparently be a different matter. If the peace conference accepted Japan's claims on Shantung Province it would only make the foundation of a future war of justice. China is slow, but tenacious. She has twice been overrun by aliens in her 3000 years of recorded history, but in the end the conquerors became the conquered. If the conference confirms China's demands, then Japan will have an equal opportunity with all the world in our trade. If Japan succeeds it will become the exclusive privilege of one—Japan."

"Does not Japan claim that her greater proximity to China gives her a special interest toward you?"

Call It Dangerous Doctrine.

"That's a most dangerous and fallacious doctrine.

"That is what Germany said about Belgium. If by reason of the proximity nations had special rights the world would be warring all the time.

"That the proximity of the United States and her 100,000,000 to Canada with her 8,000,000 population. Yet on all their 4000-mile frontier there is not a single fort or warship, except a few revenue cutters. That is an idea to which the world should work.

"One word in conclusion: It is urged against China that she did not come into the war. Why?

"When Krupensky, the Russian Ambassador at Tokio urged on the Foreign Minister Motono the importance of China coming into the war, Motono significantly replied that 'Japan would have to consider the full import of the possible moral awakening of a race of 400,000,000! But for Japan, China would have been in the war."

Don't worry. Let a Post-Dispatch lost ad bring back that lost article.

GIRLS! IT'S CHEAP! USE LEMON JUICE TO MAKE A LOTION

Nothing else bleaches the skin so white and beautiful or creates such a clear, spotless complexion.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin bleach and beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, blackheads, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier which absorbs readily and is not sticky or greasy.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this harmless lemon lotion and apply it daily to the face, neck, arms and hands. It really does soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin.—ADV.

ENDS STUBBORN COUGHS IN A HURRY

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all their air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

EASE THE PAINFUL RHEUMATIC TWINGE

Sloan's Liniment will relieve it on one application.

It's the world's most popular counter irritant for the shooting, darting pains and aches of those numerous external attacks which every man, woman, and child suffers from at one time or another.

By penetrating without rubbing, it helps to scatter the congestion, resulting in a warm, tingling glow of comfort and ease. Takes little to turn the trick quick. Won't stain the skin. Get a big bottle today for economy's sake. All druggists everywhere sell it. 30c, 60c, $1.20.

Sloan's Liniment Kills Pain

Rupture Kills 7000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction by paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you to choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place; therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended, so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.—ADV.

USED CAR VALUE GROWS WITH CAR'S FAME

"During the time a motor car is establishing a reputation for being thoroughly worthy and dependable, it is interesting to observe how its used-car value advances," says Frank Bishop of the Briscoe Motor Sales Co.

An illustration of how the selling price of such used cars increases with public confidence in the company and its product is seen in the experience of a Liberty distributer, R. A. Brower of Salt Lake City, in connection with the repeated selling of a used Liberty Six. Says Brower, "Liberty Sixes perform and stand up in a most excellent manner in these rugged and rough mountains of Utah. On April, 1918, we secured the Liberty agency from the Salt Lake Auto and Garage Co. In the transaction, $900 was paid for a demonstrator dubbed 'Old Blackie' which at that time showed signs of much use. It was sold as our initial sale for $900. Several months after we bought it back paying the owner $950 cash.

A few days following, "Blackie" sold for $1250 and on Dec. 12 was turned in at the same price on a new model. On going over it, grinding the valves, we found all bearings and mechanical parts perfect. Since then it has been put on the demonstrating list where it performed well, making State street hill to the capitol on high gear, which is a very severe test. Jan. 24, 1919, a stage driver who wished a car to haul passengers in the Deep Creek mining district came in the office, bringing a mechanic with him to select a car for his purpose. He paid $900 and a popular truck worth $600 and took "Old Blackie." Thus the last sale price was $1500. Up to date "Blackie" has covered 30,000 miles.

BRIGHT PAINT AND INSPECTED CARS AT USED CAR SHOW

Big Sales Event for Exchanged Automobiles Will Open at Exhibit Bldg. Monday Night for Week's Run.

Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as will be most of the used cars which will be exhibited at the Used Car Sales Show at the Exhibit Building this week. The show begins at 7 o'clock Monday night and will continue each day thereafter from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m., until Saturday night, March 15.

Over 200 exchanged automobiles will be exhibited by 22 St. Louis firms, who have taken them in trade on new cars. The range of makes will be almost as great as the range of prices, for in the 225 or more used cars which will be shown almost every known automobile name will be represented. There will be Cadillacs and Dodges, Pierce-Arrows and Fords, Mitchells and Maxwells, Reos and Jordans, Packards and Premiers, Dorrises and Davises, and practically every othed named automobile that has been before the public for the last three or four years.

An important feature of the show, and one which has aimed particularly to give confidence to the public in the cars offered for sale will be that every car in the show has been carefully inspected by a committee of expert motor-car mechanics headed by W. L. Patterson of the St. Louis Motor Service Co., an automotive engineer of high standing. This inspection will include careful going over of the springs, transmission, engine and other parts, and the committee will drive the car in each instance. The chairman of the committee will then affix to the car two tags with a lead seal certifying to this inspection.

Every paint shop in St. Louis has been busy for the last two weeks refinishing used automobiles for this show, and before going to the paint shop in nearly every instance they have been overhauled and in some cases rebuilt.

Admission at the gate to the show will be 25 cents and war tax, to those not holding tickets. Tickets may be had from any of the exhibitors or from any of the accessory houses in St. Louis. The show is under the auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, and a Show Committee has been appointed, consisting of Edward Weber, president of the Weber Motor Car Co.; R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co.; H. R. Henry, sales manager of the Overland Automobile Co., and Joseph A. Schlect, president of the Mound City Auto Co. The general manager of the show is Capt. R. E. Lee of the Chamber of Commerce and editor of the Auto Review.

Exhibitors at the show are: Newell Motor Car Co., Weber Implement and Auto Co., Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Lewis Automobile Co., St. Louis Motor Car Co., Weber Motor Car Co., Overland Automobile Co., Dorris Motor Car Co., Velie Automobile Co., De Luxe Automobile Co., St. Louis Nash Auto Co., Rettersman Automobile Co., Barth Motor Car Co., Knight Motor Car Co., Briscoe Motor Sales Co., Cadillac Automobile Co., Scudders Motor Truck Co., Chevrolet Motor Car Co., Wilson Motor Car Co., Welling Motor Co. and J. "But," you will ask, "will the car stand up?"

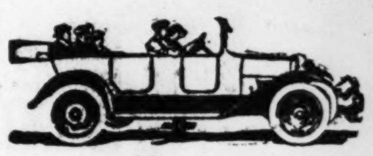
And to answer that question truthfully and satisfactorily to the purchaser, is the problem we're solving today.



To do it we built a plant and went to rebuilding motor cars, the element of chance is gradually disappearing.

A large percentage of these rebuilt motor cars could pass for new, so skilfully the rebuilding, so handsome the refinish.

Special Prices During USED CAR SHOW.

When you purchase such a rebuilt car you do not feel as tho' you were getting someone's worn-out, cast-off property.

—But, instead, a car that has been made over and refinished in such a way that it looks and operates like new—a car distinctly your own.

As to prices. Cost of rebuilding is kept reasonably low by careful management, an accurately planned factory system and a large working force.

PART THREE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 9, 1919. PAGES 1—8

"Eddie" Rickenbacker, American Ace of Aces

Became Conveniently Sick to Get Relief From Ground Duty

Seemed Hopelessly Tied to Earth on Mechanical Assignment to Which He Was regarded as Indispensable Until, in the Period of His "Illness," Another Man Did His Work Better Than He Had Been Able to Do It.

Famous Automobile Driver Was Angry When Rejected for Air Service in This Country, but Soon Learned There Was Good Reason for This When He Reached France in Another Branch of Service—Writes of Aces' Luck.

(The following article is reprinted from the March number of "U. S. Air Service," which was issued yesterday. "U. S. Air" is a non-commercial organ of the air service of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, published in Washington by the Army and Navy Air Service Association.)

By Capt. "Eddie" Rickenbacker.

Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre.

AN officer who had the job of giving preliminary examinations to the young men who wanted to fly, once complained to me that two answers to his well-meant questions got to be exasperatingly common. The first was to the effect that the candidate didn't know anything about aviation, but had always dreamed of doing it. The second came when he was asked if he knew the names of any of the men who were piloting fighting airplanes over in France. Usually, according to this officer, he said "Eddie Rickenbacker," and stopped there.

The examiner was sure it proved that the average American youth read the sporting page of the newspaper more carefully than the front page. A racing automobile driver's name caught his attention even in the war news, and stuck—and I got the benefit. If it had been a baseball player it would have been the same way.

I mention the matter here because, as it happens, when I started in I was like those boys. I knew nothing about aviation and had only dreamed about it. I went over to France as a chauffeur, after trying to get up a flying unit which the Government refused to be interested in for some reasons that I now see were entirely good, though I did not see it so clearly then. Once over there, I would not let them rest until they gave me a Lieutenant's commission and sent me to Tours to see if I could learn to fly.

Dare-Devil Racer Learned Fast

I learned pretty fast. Long practice in driving a racing car at a hundred miles an hour or so gives a first-class traiing in control and judging distances at high speed and helps tremendously in getting motor sense, which is rather the feel of your engine than the sound of it, a thing you get through your bones and nerves rather than simply your ears.

All this is part of the physical equipment of handling an airplane, and it makes a lot of difference if the fellow with the stick knows how to make a turn at 100 miles an hour or to allow for passing aonther fellow at twice that. The proof of this is that after five and a half hours' duel with an instructor they let me solo. But because I was a good mechanic and knew about motors they sent me to Issoudan to be an engineer officer. Being an engineer officer, I never had any regular advanced flying training according to rule. But I took up a ship whenever I could and learned that way.

I remember when I thought it was time to try a vrille or tail spin. I knew what I was supposed to do. I knew you put the stick over and crossed the controls, but I'd never seen anybody do it. I went up about 12,000 feet, got off some distance from the field and flew around there for every bit of 30 minutes trying to get up my nerve to try the trick, but too scared to begin.

At last I said to myself, "What's the matter with you? You've got to do this," and threw the stick. She went into the spin all right, but I had her back to neutral after just one whirl, and I tell you I was glad when she righted. Next day I went out and it took 20 minutes to make up my mind to try it again. It was only on the third day that I went at the job with any confidence and let her do a real spin.

One Whirl Was Enough

That is still more or less the way I feel about doing a new stunt, after all the flying I have done at the front since. When you try a new thing you are never quite certain how the machine will behave, and though you may have confidence in your ability to get out of anything as long as you have the altitude, there is a sort of hesitation both in the machine and in you. The trouble is, you do not know what the strains will be on, either.

The next thing was to get away with Issoudun. The men who had to stick over on this side as flying instructors know how hard it is to get away from a field when they've got you tied down to a job there. Those fellows are the ones that have my sympathy, because they have done the work and missed the credit. They have stayed home—and not really home, either, but in some particularly hot place down in Texas, most likely—stayed there and made aces when they were themselves stuff of which aces are made, and but for the luck of it would be, a lot of them, coming back here now with as many ribbons and decorations and Huns to their credit as any one of us.

Instead, they have stuck on the job full of dangers and responsibilities with little chance of promotion and none of fighting or of fame. And, the better they were the more certain they were stuck. Because pilots had to be trained in a hurry, and the very best men were none too good for the task of training them.

I was not an instructor over there at Issoudun. But even an engineer officer in France could not afford to be too good. I don't think I was. Still, when I asked to go to the front the C. O. said I could not be spared.

So I conspired with the medical officer. He does not know it yet, but I did. I got myself sent to the hospital for two weeks and at the end of that time I went to the C. O. and told him that it had been proved that I wasn't indispensable—because the other fellow had done the job better than I had. He could not deny it and he let me go.

That gave me my chance to try my luck as a fighting pilot. I have had extraordinary good luck. Every man who has been flying for any length of time at the front and it still alive has had good luck.

But fighting in the air is not a sport. It is scientific murder. The men who have learned their trade go at it that way, and as long as they do go at it that way they have an excellent chance to accumulate victories and survive, nevertheless.

Doesn't Take Needless Risks

The experienced fighting pilot does not take unnecessary risks. His business is to shoot down enemy planes, not to get shot down. His trained eye and hand and judgment are as much a part of his armament as his machine gun, and a 50-50 chance is the worst he will or should take except where the show is of the kind that either for offense or defense justifies the sacrifice of plane and pilot.

It is not the old hand and the expert flyer and air fighter who gets another of the same sort. Both are wise and shy birds. You will see a couple of that kind meet now and then over the line and watch them circling experimentally around each other. The next thing you know, each has sized up his antagonist as just as good or better than himself, and both have sheered off and are flying away to look for a more promising victim. What each is hunting for is an enemy who can be pounced on suddenly unawares and a getaway made before his comrades are on the victor's tail.

The obviously inexperienced pilot is the game the scientific air fighter goes after, and the majority of victories are won that way. But on the other hand, it is the novice usually who gets the famous ace by doing at some moment the unexpected thing. He rashly attempts or blunders into a maneuver which is dead against all the sane rules, and that is something against which the master of the game has not provided and is not forearmed.

Sheer foolhardiness or plain clumsiness has done what skill and experience could not do. Or else accident does it, engine trouble, a jammed machine gun or an oversight. I remember an incident which might easily have made an end of me.

An approved method of attack was to dive out of the sun at the rearmost boche of a Hun formaiton, shoot him down if you had the luck, chandelle or spiral upward and dive again at the next tailender. I tried the trick once and got as far as the first act on the program, but I had shut off my pressure and forgot about it, and when, after crashing my first Hun, I tried to regain my altitude, the Spad refused to climb. I had to go into a roll, which got my gravity feed into action, but by that time the boches were all coming at me in a bunch, with their guns spitting.

There was nothing for it but to dive with full power, which, in the case of a Spad, means going down at the rate of about 300 miles an hour, and fortunately we were pretty high up. With half a dozen Huns after me, I went down 8000 feet that way, and though I had some trouble getting her out of the dive, I managed it and got away in spite of the fine target I made.

This narrow escape may be used to bring out a point illustrated by the case of the doughboy who got tired of marching and dropped out by the roadside. An officer ordered him to get back to his place, and added that he had better be glad he was in the infantry, because if he had been in the air and dropped out he couldn't get back. Flying is one of the safest jobs in the army as long as you don't drop out. If you do drop out, you are a dead man, and dropping out means, usually, that you have made a mistake or let go of your grip.

French Cautious, British Reckless.

There have been stories about the recklessness of the American flyers, and no doubt they went for the Hun wherever they could get at him, and some took very long chances, but on the front, as I saw it, the American aviators in this regard came between the French and the British. The French were inclined to be cautious as a settled military policy of getting the best results with the least expenditure of valuable lives and costly planes. The British were foolhardy as a matter of principle and morale, because they found that they got the best results with their people in that way.

Compared with the French, playing their own game in the way they had settled down to it toward the end of the war, our men seemed reckless. Compared with the British, they seemed cautious. But, of course, the three systems had nothing to do with the courage of the three nations or of individual Frenchmen or Americans. The French and English had each worked out a method of scientific murder that did the job. We were working out ours with the experience of both to help us and the methods of both to choose from. The result was, generally, a sort of compromise.

Right here I may mention as a matter of interest that in point of maturity for this work the Englishman of 18 is about even with the American of 22. Our men are generally at their best as flyers between the ages of 22 and 26; the English are best between 18 and 22. I have been asked why, and I think it is due to differences in early education in the two countries rather than to anything directly connected with the British and American practice of training flyers.

Returning for a moment to the stories of recklessness on the part of our aviators, there were men like Frank Luke, whose record is one of the brightest glories of our air service, and who gave his all, his life, to the cause. Luke's 18 Huns included 11 balloons, and to get a balloon you have to go through the anti-aircraft and machine-gun barrage and the flaming onions they send up to protect it. Getting a balloon is so much more difficult than getting a plane, in fact, that the Germans credit a pilot with two victories for every balloon brought down.

A Wild Man in the Air.

Luke, from the beginning, was a wild man in the air. He would take off and playfully do a series of loops within a few hundred feet of the ground. That sort of thing was strictly forbidden in my own squadron. Men and planes are too valuable and too difficult to replace at the front to be risked unless there is a real reason for the risk.

But after a run of hard luck such as came along sometimes—when we had lost a lot of men and Former Empire to Lose 13,000,000 of Her Population, Her Threatened Supremacy in Russia Will Be Ended by the Erection of Strong Polish and Czecho-Slovak States, and France Will Get Alsace-Lorraine and the Saar Basin Outright, While a Rhenish Republic, Under French Protection, Will Put the Teutons Back of the Rhine Everywhere.

The single line shading represents France's regained "lost provinces." The cross line shading indicates the Saar basin region to be awarded to France in return for the wanton destruction by Germany of France's mineral and coal deposits. The region in solid black is the proposed new Republic of the Rhine, which will be under French protection until Germany pays all reparation claims. Thus, it will be noted, France and Belgium are protected against invasion from Germany by a buffer state and by the Rhine River, the latter being the frontier line for Alsace.

This Arrangement Will So Tie Them Up That Never Again Will They Be Able to Prosecute a War of Aggression and Will Make the Military Disaster That Has Overcome Them Permanent.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.

PARIS, March 1.

THE next two weeks are not, impossibly, to see the solution of two great problems before the Paris conference—the fixing of the western and of the eastern frontiers of Germany. The decision with regard to the frontiers means, in some respects, more than any other decision the Paris conference can take, because it means on the one side, the giving of security to France against a possible return of German aggression, the creation on the other side of a Poland capable alike of resisting German and Bolshevik attack, and of becoming a considerable and important European force.

Discussion of the western frontier of Germany remains open at the moment this article is written, but I learn from unquestioned American sources that very little progress has been made towards an agreement. As a matter of fact, the appearance of any question upon the calendar of the peace conference is fairly good indication that the great Powers are already so near an agreement that discussion can be had without any peril of division. In a word, the conference only discusses after the conference has agreed.

Many times in the course of my correspondence I have pointed out that there never was any question on the part of the French of the annexation of purely German territory on the left bank of the Rhine. Despite certain ill-natured suspicions, and despite certain extreme statements in the most imperialistic of French quarters, not in the least indicative of the wish of the people, there has been from the very beginning perfectly frank renunciation on the part of the French Government of any claim to annex German territory, except in the case of Alsace-Lorraine, which was French until 1871, and the Saar coal district, part of which was French until 1815, and all of which was French up to the treaty of Paris in 1814. The whole spirit and the whole purpose of France has been to seek protection against a new German attack by achieving some form of neutralization of German territory between the Saar and the Rhine, so that in case of another war the struggle would begin not in the heart of French territory, but in German territory.

French Demand Security.

Throughout the course of the conference there have been marked differences in the American point of view as to the question of financial payments which Germany should make to the countries she has devastated, but co-existent with this difference of view, which in reality leaves opportunity for satisfactory compromise, there has been developing in American quarters a very profound sympathy with the French desire for security and an increasing understanding of the French mood in this respect.

As we stay longer in Europe we Americans grow to appreciate the European problem with more accuracy. A result of this development of American understanding of French feeling with respect to the western frontier of Germany is now found in the very general expectation that within the next two weeks the whole question will be resolved in the following manner: In the first place, despite German bluff and menace in recent days, the question of Alsace-Lorraine will not be reopened and the preposterous German demand for plebiscite in Alsace-Lorraine will not be granted. In a word, Alsace-Lorraine will be regarded henceforth as French territory stolen from France in 1871, regained for France at the moment of the German surrender in November, 1918.

In the second place, France will be permitted to annex without qualification the relatively restricted Saar Valley area, important because of its great coal deposits, and necessary to French industries, now that the Germans have put the French coal-producing territories on the north out of business for a period of at least five or 10 years. Thirdly, between Belgium and France on the west and the Rhine on the east, there will be created a Rhenish republic which will serve as a buffer state between Germany and the countries which she invaded in 1914, and I am informed that while there has been no decision in the matter of the Saar and of the Rhenish republic, there is no longer any real question of America opposing this solution.

The question of a Rhenish republic is to be solved in the following manner: First of all, there is no question of French or Belgian annexation of any of this territory apart from the Saar Valley and two or three French-speaking towns on the Belgian frontier, of which Malmedy is the most considerable. This is the decision both of the present and of the future. There is no idea that at any time this country will be absorbed either by the French or by the Germans. It is recognized that to annex it to France would be to create a new and dangerous Alsace-Lorraine and to arouse German patriotic emotion which might prove as legitimate an obstacle to future peace as the annexation of Alsace-Lorraine constituted after 1871.

Palatinate As a Buffer.

By contrast, there is belief that separated from Prussian influence—which, save in the Palatinate, has prevailed on the western bank of the Rhine for a hundred years—inhabitants of the region who were naturally unsympathetic with the Prussian idea and were once permeated with the spirit of the French revolution, will achieve a degree of independence from the evil influence of the Prussian idea and that they will in time arrive at sympathetic relations with the Latin countries of the west. But it is recognized that it would be impossible and inequitable permanently to deprive their people of the right of self-determination. As a result, it is agreed that the Rhenish republic shall be created, to exist only until such time as Germany has paid her financial debts to France and Belgium, and discharged all obligations which will be fixed by the new treaty of Versailles. When this has been accomplished, the armies of occupation, which will, up to that time, stand guard on the Rhine, will be withdrawn, and it will be for the people of the Rhenish republic to decide of their free will whether they will rejoin Germany or continue as an independent state.

The extreme hope of the French is that the period of separation from Germany and the extent of friendly relations with France may bring about a desire on the part of the Rhenish districts to continue an independent existence. If this shall happen, then there will for the future exist a considerable state separating Germany from France and Belgium and abolishing the immediate peril of a German invasion.

A simple fashion in which to make clear the real meaning for France and for Belgium of the creation of this new Rhenish republic, is to take a map of Western Europe and outline in black the regions between Belgium, Luxemburg, Alsace-Lorraine and the Rhine. By doing this it is made perfectly clear that so long as this state stands, France and Belgium have between themselves and German invasion a wide belt of territory containing between four and five millions of people, a new state which, like Switzerland, separates effectually rival nations and removes immediate danger of collision from the frontier incident.

Future of Buffer State.

If this state shall, when the hour of self-determination arrives, vote to continue its separate existence, it will become one more of the small nations whose existence will be guaranteed by the league of nations. If, on the other hand, it chooses to return to Germany, it will unquestionably, after its years of separation from Prussian influence, contribute materially to the re-inforcement of the liberal element in Germany, and thus to modification of the peril of new attack upon the west by German imperialism and German militarism. The presence of the allied armies of occupation will insure the escape of this district from any revolution with Bolshevik consequences which now threaten Germany, and it will also enable the inhabitants to escape the burden of conscription and acquire a habit of peace. It must be clear that such a republic will have to expect only the most friendly treatment from France, because the whole object of French policy must be to win the sympathy of this buffer state, but it should be said again that there is not the slightest French purpose to seek to annex this territory, either now or hereafter. In sum, the Rhenish republic is not to be a disguised imperialist venture of France, but a solution, adopted by the entire league of nations, of the problem presented by the French need for security growing out of the injuries of the last war.

The question of the Saar Valley has been discussed in this corespondence many times. The territory affected is an area rather less than a thousand square miles on either side of the Saar River, north of the point where the stream crosses the old frontier of Alsace-Lorraine—as fixing in 1815. Practically all the territory affected was once a portion of the old Province of Lorraine, which came to France not by conquest but by peaceable agreement in the eighteenth century. It was for many centuries before permeated by French culture and, in fact, although not by law, part of France. In 100 years following its annexation to Prussia and the Bavarian palatinate, this region has become totally German. Three hundred thousand inhabitants would unquestionably choose German rather than French nationality at this time, but the question of self-determination in this specific case is affected by other considerations.

When Germany invaded Northern France she came with the express purpose of annexing all the industrial and mineral regions north of the Somme. When she found such annexations would be impossible, since there was no possibility that she could win the war so completely as to draw the frontiers as she chose, Germany undertook systematic destruction of French factories and French mines, which resulted in depriving France of her coal supplies for a period of between five and 10 years, and of making her dependent either upon Germany or England for the coal necessary to her industries. Unless this condition were modified in the French favor, Germany would to this extent win the war.

In weighing arguments on the Saar Valley, the claim of France, based upon ancient possession prior to German spoliation of 1814 and 1815, has only a restricted influence upon the American mind. It is clearly recognized that if claims as old as these which no longer find support among inhabitants of the region were to form the basis of a new Europe, endless future trouble would be assured. By contrast, the American mind has been deeply impressed by the fact that Germany has not fought this war as a civilized nation, that her depredations in Northern France were designed to produce paralysis of French industry to the profit of Germany, and that, as a result of destruction in the Lens coal area, France will be at the mercy of her neighbors in the matter of coal for long years to come, unless she receive the Saar coal region.

Considerations Weighed.

Clearly, American sympathy and influence in Paris lean towards accepting the following solution: First, annexation without reservation of the whole Saar coal area amounting to some thousand square miles and containing some 300,000 inhabitants. Second, valuation of this region in terms of money and subtraction of this sum from the total damage claim which is to be brought by France against Germany—in a word, the Saar coal region is to be regarded purely and simply as payment by Germany for destruction, wanton and indefensible destruction, in Northern France, and France is to accept this payment as a partial discharge of German obligations.

Unless all signs fail, this is to be the western solution. Pending the discharge of her obligations, Germany will have to consent to the occupation of her Rhine territory comparable to her occupation of the eastern department of France after 1871, until France had paid the indemnity imposed upon her by Bismarck. During the period of occupation, the Rhine territories are to be separated from Germany and to be permitted to have their own political organizations, their own political life, but not as a part of Germany. Instead, they are to unite in an independent state of their own, in which order will be assured by allied armies of occupation, and they will be equally guaranteed against the dangers of German revolution and against the possibilities of annexation by France or Belgium. In a word, they become for that indefinite period of allied occupation which may last for a decade, the joint mandatory of all the nations who subscribed to the league; and during this whole time Germany will end at the Rhine and France, while she is recovering from the wound of the last war, will have nothing to fear from a new German attack and French and Belgian restoration can proceed without any hesitation resulting from German anxieties.

This will, I think, prove to be the settlement which will be agreed upon by all the allied nations within the next two weeks. The realization that the American commissioners here are sympathetic with such a settlement, which from the French point of view is a matter of life and death, has resulted in a very great modification of feeling on the part of the French, who in recent weeks have had a fear that Americans too little appreciated the problems which were vital to France; and no one could fail to have remarked the very great improvement in the atmosphere of Paris within the last 10 days. From the beginning to the end, all France, radical and conservative, royalist and socialist, has been equally concerned with obtaining for his country security against Germany.

Plan Satisfies French.

There has been joint recognition that for France the war with all its terrible sacrifices, would prove a lost war if its security were not obtained, and the new plan, backed by American as well as British aprpoval, satisfied all legitimate French requirements, and as I have said many times before, neither Government nor the masses of the people have ever favored annexation, real or covert, of German territory beyond the old frontiers of France of 1814; that is, beyond the boundaries of Alsace and the Saar district.

With the western frontier of Germany fixed, there remains only the Polish question to be determined in order to give Germany her new boundaries. Posen was included in the Polish area. Similar disposition of Upper Silesia, which is purely Polish, in its population, raises no difficult problem. By contrast, the question of the Dantzig and the territory between Posen and Russian Poland on the south and the Baltic Sea on the north, remains one of the most difficult questions before the peace conference, and one on which agreement has not yet been reached. More and more, however, the Paris conference is recognizing the necessity of creating a strong and enduring Poland and all present indications are that the final decision reached here will be to give Dantzig, together with practically all the territories of East and West Prussia to new Poland, thus creating a state of nearly 30,000,000 of people possessed of all the necessary circumstances of national and economic life, and capable of becoming a barrier alike to Bolshevism of the East and Prussian militarism on the west.

Already the Paris Conference has decided that a new Czecho Slovak State shall preserve the frontiers of Bohemia and Moravia, that is, that Germany will not be permitted to take any of the frontier districts in which there is a strong German element, and this means that except in the case of German Austria, the southern frontier of Germany will remain as it was before the war.

Totals of Agreement.

In sum, the decisions which are now foreshadowed indicate that Germany will be called upon to surrender permanently some two and a half millions of people on the French frontier, and in the Schleswig area; and not less than five or six millions of people on the Polish frontier. She will be compelled in addition at least temporarily to surrender some four millions and a half of people in the Rhenish region. She will therefore find herself after the signature of the treaty of peace deprived of some 12,000,000 or 13,000,000 persons on her various frontiers and this loss will only be offset in part by the acquisition of 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 Austrian Germans.

She can, however, hope to reclaim the people of the Rhenish region. The plan is not to make any new armistice arrangements with Germany until such time as the real decision of the allies on all German questions has been reached, and at that time Germany will be summoned to Paris and will be told what she must surrender in territory, what she must pay in money, and she will be asked to sign a preliminary peace which will in all respects, except as to minor details, constitute a definitive peace arrangement. It will be seen, then, that very great and very rapid progress is at last being made in the direction of settlement with Germany, and that in all probability before the present month is over, the German phase of the new settlement will have been closed, and the allies will be ready to pronounce their sentence upon their one surviving enemy.

The disposition of the French claims marks the greatest single step towards final settlement on the material side, exactly as the adoption of the agreement upon the project of the league of nations marks the greatest step of the moral side. Impatient as the world is of the seeming slowness of the Paris negotiations, the fact seems to be that we are passing out of the disappointing state where discussion alone prevails, into the period where decisions are being reached daily and the whole character of ultimate settlement is becoming clear.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

GEORGIA HAMILTON.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive, and is sold by Judge & Dolph, Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros.' Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., in St. Louis, and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health. Miss Georgia Hamilton, who was once thin and frail, reporting her own experience, writes: "Bitro-Phosphate has brought about a magic transformation with me. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh. —ADV.

Drive the Liquor Habit From Your Home

Can Be Done Secretly

Physicians and druggists unhesitatingly recommend Tescum Powders for the liquor habit in any form. They quickly destroy the craving and make whisky and other alcoholic beverages repugnant. Druggists will tell you Tescum is selling better than any other remedy for the liquor habit. There is a reason for this. It is because it gives better satisfaction. One physician says: "I can stand in the door of my home and throw a stone into a neighbor's yard to whom I gave Tescum powders for drunkenness, and he was completely cured. Have also cured a large number of other patients." A druggist reports: "Tescum is having an enormous sale. It gives excellent satisfaction." A lady recently wrote: "I have used Tescum on my husband secretly and he has not taken a drink in three months." Another lady says: "I only wish I had known of Tescum before." Here is another who has tried it: "After taking two boxes of Tescum I did not crave liquor." Another writes: "I don't think it expensive at all. Just think of the thousands of dollars he has spent for whisky. The few dollars I spent for Tescum has been worth thousands." Here is an extract from another letter: "I sent a box of Tescum to my friend, Mrs. C. M., for her to try on her husband. Hope she will be as successful as I have been, for it's wonderful. I will never tell my husband what cured him." And so on it goes, one enthusiastic report after another. If you have a relative or friend who drinks just try it for a few weeks and note the marvelous change. They will soon complain that drink does not taste the same, and in a short time they will stop altogether and never know the reason why.

NOTE.—A leading druggist, when shown the above article, said: "Yes, Tescum is a very remarkable remedy for the drink habit. It is harmless, wonderfully effective and is having an enormous sale. I advise everyone who wishes to destroy the liquor habit to give it a trial." You take no risk with Tescum, as it is sold in this city under a steel-bound money-refund guarantee by all druggists, including Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley and Wolff-Wilson.—ADV.

A Woman's Verdjct

Tells of Suffering Greatly With Kidney and Bladder Trouble and How Balmwort Brought Relief.

Her Letter Well Worth Reading

Mrs. Nellie McGinn, 609 East 138th street, New York City, writes:

"For the last year I had suffered greatly from Kidney and Bladder trouble, distressing pain in the back and hips, with rheumatic twinges and frequent severe headache, accompanied by nervousness, chills, and fever, and a pain in the region of the bladder. I would have to arise at night, my sleep being disturbed by the inflammation in bladder. Beginning the use of Balmwort Tablets I noticed almost instant relief, and continuing to use them I am now totally well and relieved of all pain and distress from which I suffered. I am glad to recommend Balmwort Tablets as a reliable, beneficial medicine and trust others may find relief and freedom from pain and distress as I did, etc."

The above letter is a true statement and is on file in our offices. Balmwort Tablets bring relief when other medicine has failed. Sold by leading druggists, $1.00 per tube.—ADVERTISEMENT.

It's Dangerous to Keep "Taking Something" for Rheumatism

Any physician will tell you that many of the so-called "cures" for rheumatism are made up principally of strong chemicals or contain opiates which only serve to allay the suffering temporarily and eventually do harm.

The safest and surest way to secure relief from rheumatism is to get a bottle of Miller's famous Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) and bathe the aching muscles and joints. This wonderful oil immediately penetrates to the affected tissues or muscles and soothes out every ache and pain.

Get a bottle of Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) from your druggist today—and remember, this great oil is guaranteed to do what we claim or you get your money back. Sold in 30c, 60c and $1.00 bottles. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo.—ADV.

RUSSIANS SOURCE OF WONDER TO AMERICANS

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORTH RUSSIA, Jan. 10.—The habits and customs of the north Russian peasant are sources of unceasing wonder to the American soldier. The peasants are primitive and are content to reside where the average American housewife would roll up her sleeves and spend many days in scrubbing before she would live. In these wooden or log huts hundreds of Yankee infantrymen and engineers are billeted this winter.

The Americans, generally speaking, occupy one-half of the house and the family the other. The American's half is as clean as constant "policing" can make it. But as for the other half, there are chickens, "husky" dogs of the arctic type, and from two to four generations of peasants wandering more or less miscellaneously.

The Russian Kitchen Police.

"But they keep the chickens cooped up part of the day," one Detroit private told the Associated Press correspondent. "You see," he added, "they only let them out in the morning to 'police' the kitchen. That's easier than sweeping out."

The Russian family's side of all these houses is airtight. It is bitterly cold up here in the forests during the six months' winter, and the peasant doesn't believe in wasting heat. His windows are sealed up tight and never, never opened. He doesn't mind the resultant odor.

But the American does and opens the windows on his side of the house and the peasant shakes his head gravely and worries for fear his strange khaki-clad guests will catch cold.

Sleeping on th[illegible]e.

But the American [illegible]t catch cold and neither does t[illegible] peasant, for that matter, in his airtight rooms. Both systems seem to work equally well. Since the cold weather has really set in the soldier and civilian populations have both been surprisingly healthy.

One peasant habit which the American makes countless jokes about is as time-honored and unswervable among the Russians as it is strange to the Americans. That is sleeping on the stove. The Russian village stoves are built of brick or clay or porcelain. They are about as large as an ordinary American bath room and flat on top, except where the brick chimney pokes through. One stokes them once or twice a day until all the wood is burned out, and then closes them up, letting the heated bricks radiate their warmth. The flat tops of these stoves are bed spaces for the eldest or most honored of the families. American officers have surprised many peasant hosts by declining invitations to use these choicest of all beds.

RICKENBACKER'S OWN STORY OF HIS BREAT CAREER AS FLYER

the spirits of others were beginning to show the strain—I used to go out myself and do all sorts of stunts right out in front of them. It had a surprising moral effect. The men said: "Anyway, they haven't got Rickenbacker's goat." On the next sortie they went up full of pep and snap and ready to go anywhere and do anything.

My own squadron, the Ninety-fourth (Hat-in-the-Ring), had a fine record. We were the first American squadron in the game; we had the first ace and the highest record of air victories of any American squadron at the end of the war, and finally, we had a chance to go into Germany at the head of the American army, which was a magnificent climax to the unit's active career and an experience not to be forgotten by any of us—flying over those cities and castles and vineyards along the Rhine that we had been thinking of as the distant goal of all the fighting that went before.

Some of the men who have been flying over there in France came back saying they are fed up and have had enough of the air. But I do not think I am one of them. The sky means something to me it never meant before. When I look up and see the sun shining on the patch of white clouds up in the blue, I begin to think how it would feel to be up somewhere above it winging swiftly through the clear air, watching the earth below and the men on it, no bigger than ants.

I rarely go to church except with my mother when I am at home, to show that a plain Ohio raising has not been wasted on her boy; but there is something spiritual—I don't know what else to call it—in the feeling you get up there. At least it seems so to me, though somebody suggested that it was just—in a much magnified form—the feeling of superiority, or exaltation, or whatever it is, of the man on horseback or in a swift automobile as he looks down, as he sweeps past, upon the man on foot.

At all events, I expect to keep on flying, and I expect a part of the future of flying to lie in the scope it gives to the initiative of the American boy in the sort of thing that hunting used to mean to him in the days when there was hunting close at hand for almost every boy, and that sport in many forms still means to him and always will mean to him.

In a very real sense, the future of aviation in this country is in the hands of the men who have been trained to fly in the army, who have mastered the art either on fields on this side or at the front, not without paying a heavy price for it in the lives of comrades just as good but not so lucky as themselves.

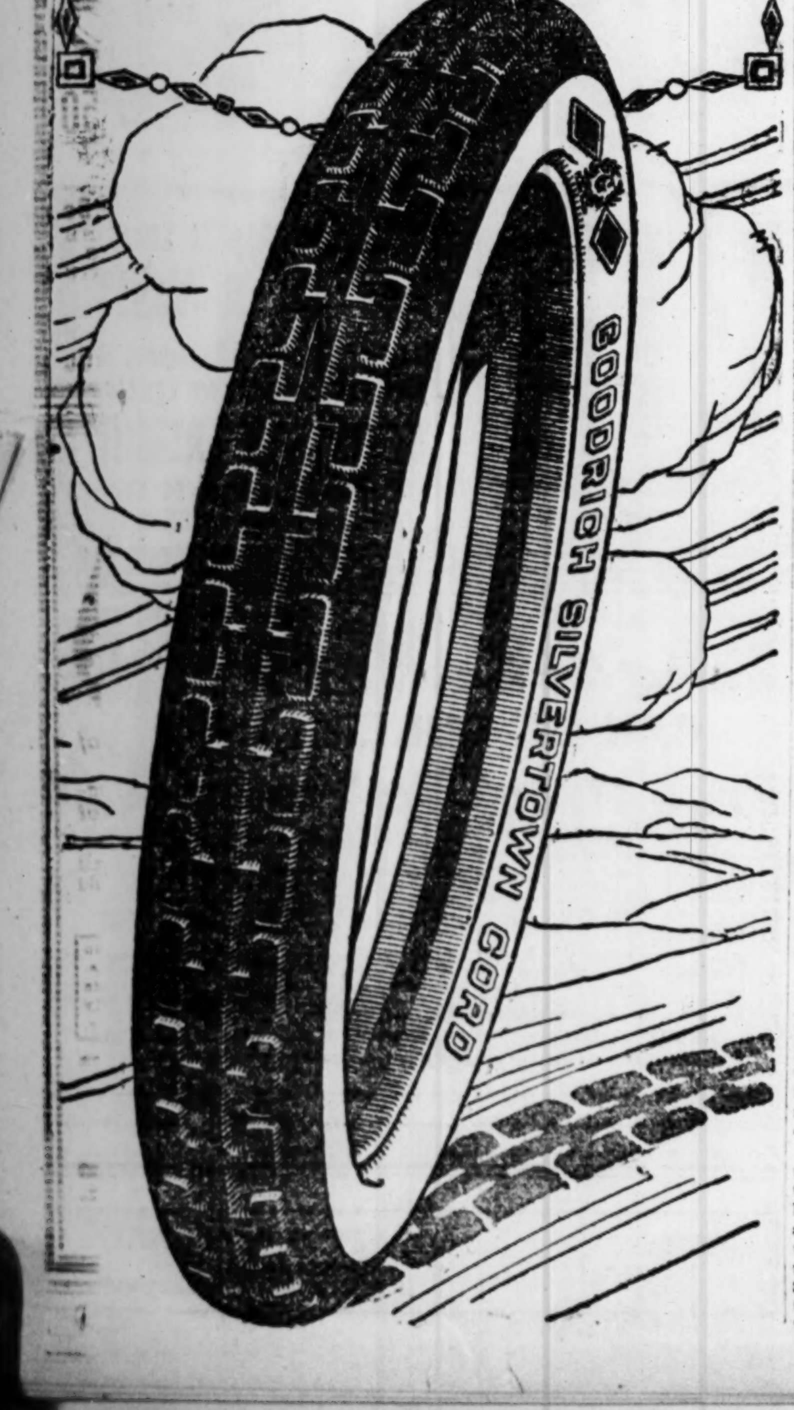
"BEST IN THE LONG RUN"



LE MANS A CITY RICH IN HISTORICAL LORE

35th Divisions's Concentration Point Was Encircled by Romans in 2d Century.

Soldiers of the Thirty-fifth Division concentrating at Le Mans, France, where they will prepare to embark for home, will have the privilege of becoming acquainted with a little city that is rich in French historical lore, and whose people have frequently felt the heavy hand of war. A bulletin of the National Geographic Society has the following to say about the place:

"Le Mans, taken and occupied by the Germans shortly before the armistice which ended the Franco-German War was signed in 1871, today is the busy, bustling embarkation center for homeward-bound American troops.

History Made There.

"French history often has been made at Le Mans. It was there the valiant Gen. Chanzy made the last stand against Prince Frederick Charles in 1871 and his defeat marked the passing of the last hope of retaking Paris. Gen. Chanzy, memorialized by a statue in Le Mans, made the historic comment, when he heard that Paris had capitulated, 'We still have France,' a remark which lives in French history alongside the Verdun slogan, 'They shall not pass.'

"Nearly a century earlier Le Mans marked the final defeat of the Vendeans, those counter-revolutionists, who adhered to the royalists not so much through loyalty as through ignorance of what the revolution meant; just as Russians outside of Petrograd sensed little of the significance of the overthrow of the Czar while Kerensky was struggling to establish a constitutional government.

"The peasants of Le Mans, like those of Vendee, declined to serve in the army of the new-born republic. They did not oppose the new Government, but they recalled that the royal army had been made up of adventurers, profligates and ne'er-do-wells, and they did not consider army barracks a proper place for Christians.

"After successive defeats a remnant of the Vendeans put up their last fight at Le Mans, and were defeated by Westermann.

A City of Sieges.

"In ancient times Le Mans was the capital of the Aulerici Cenomani and in the second century the Romans encircled the town with walls. Traces of them remain. St. Julian evangelized Le Mans and became its first Bishop.

"Le Mans might well be known as a city of sieges. Some estimates place the number of times it has been besieged as high as twenty. Among those who held it for varying periods were William the Conqueror, Philip Augustus and King John. While Richard Coeur-de-Lion was crusading the city was bestowed upon his accomplished and beautiful wife, Queen Berengaria, whose tomb is in the city's splendid cathedral, founded by the above mentioned St. Julian. This cathedral contains windows made of the oldest stained glass in France. The church of La Couture and Notre Dame du Pre are two other noted churches. The former dates back to the twelfth century, but still has two unfinished towers.

"Le Mans is on the railway line from Paris to Brest, near the point where the Huisne River flows into the Sarthe. No larger than Holyoke, Mass. (60,000), or Bayonne, N. J., before the war, it was a busy manufacturing center for a wide variety of products, ranging from preserving vegetables and fish, tanning and hemp spinning to flour milling, manufacture of machinery, engineering material and stained glass."

PLANS MADE FOR THE W. C. T. U. CONVENTION HERE IN NOVEMBER

Women Engaged to Direct Canvass of City for Members and Donations of Money.

Following the selection of St. Louis as the convention city for the forty-fifth annual convention of the National Christian Temperance Union, in November, the St. Louis Federation has engaged the services of Miss Minnie Sigler of Parma, Mo., for a three weeks' systematic house-to-house canvass for members and financial donations.

The various local unions have had assigned to them certain portions of Mrs. Sigler's time. Each union specifies the locality in which work for specified days shall be done, the worker to be furnished with proper credentials and lists of streets to be canvassed, the result of each day's work being credited to the local union employing her for the day. The canvass started Thursday. It is planned for some local member living in each locality canvassed to act as hostess for the noon lunch.

WHISKY FOR STATE'S MUSEUM

3 Quarts Will Be Preserved That Future West Virginian May See It.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 28. —Three quarts of whisky—rye, bourbon and Scotch—will be placed in the archives of West Virginia for the reference of future generations, if Gov. John J. Cornwell signs a bill recently passed by the Senate and concurred in by the House.

The bill was passed, it is said, by pressing upon the Senate the fact that John Barleycorn is due to draw his "last breath" in the near future, and that, as whisky will become a thought of the past, it would be well to place the three samples in the State archives, so that generations to be may look upon them and say "We have seen it."

If your Child is Cross, Sick, Feverish and Constipated.

Look, Mother! If Little Tongue is Coated, Cleanse the Inactive Bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is that they become clogged with waste, the liver becomes sluggish, the stomach is disordered and then your little one becomes cross, feverish and does not eat, sleep or behave naturally. Often the breath is bad and system "stuffy" with cold; the child has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste-matter, sour bile and undigested food pass out of the system, and you have a healthy, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," made by the California Fig Syrup Co., which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Look for name, "California." Accept No Fig Syrup but "California."—ADV.

Overblouse No. 4725. Skirt No. 4726. The overblouse may be of brocaded Chinese crepe, the underblouse of sheer organdy, the skirt of tub flannel—which will make an ideal summer costume.

A complete showing of new pattern designs, charming hand-colored sketches of every design, the favored materials for Spring, are now on exhibition at the Vogue Pattern Room.

The line of the new silhouette—interpreted in the straight, slim frock, and the softly draped, graceful, essentially feminine one, both markedly different from war-time fashions—is embodied in these new spring patterns, modified to suit the requirements of the woman who wishes to be correct, but not extreme.

Vogue Patterns are easy to follow. Every difficulty of cutting, fitting, and combining is forestalled. Every piece is marked in plain English with full directions. Every seam is indicated with a perforated line. Lining, goods, and trimming are cut in paper of three different colors. There is no endless changing and trying on and refitting. Just follow directions and the result is a success.

Thousands of women bridge the gap between a limited and an unlimited allowance by the use of Vogue Patterns. By using Vogue Patterns you halve your dress expense and double your dress distinction.

Y. M. C. A. WORK IN WAR COST 57 LIVES

Fatalities Were Proportionately One-Fourth as Great as Those of Army.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The Young Men's Christian Association carried the red triangle into the camps and trenches abroad at a cost of 57 lives, a sacrifice proportionately one-quarter as great as that in the American army, according to a statement issued today by the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. Of these fatalities 39 were due to disease and the remainder to shell fire, bombs, gas fever, drowning and wounds. Ten of these were women, one of whom was killed by shell fire and another in a German air raid.

There were also 55 non-fatal casualties. These were due principally to machine-gun fire, gas shell fire and motor transport accidents. Numerous cases of slight wounds and gassings which were attended at dressing stations but were not reported to headquarters, are not included.

These casualties occurred in a force which at no time exceeded 9000 workers, of whom it is reckoned that more than one-half were never sent to the front, being employed in the hundreds of huts maintained throughout the training areas and the "leave areas."

63 Workers Decorated.

Sixty-three "Y" workers were decorated, while more than 152 received official recognition for distinguished service. Thirteen of these were decorated with Croix de Guerre. Of the others, three received Distinguished Service Cross; three the Order of St. Stanislaus; five the Italian Cavaliere del Corona; 38 the Italian war cross, and one the French decoration of the Corps d'Armee. Seven were cited for the Croix de Guerre, and seven for other decorations, six commended for meritorious conduct, and 29 received honorable mention in dispatches. Several units were cited in their entirety, those serving with the Third Division being cited twice. More than a score more reported decorations have not yet been confirmed.

Not one of these men under 30 was fit for military duty, but the citations show that they carried on with the same courage and spirit that identified Amercan throughout the war. These records show that they went over the top with the assaulting waves, that they exposed themselves under machine gun and shell fire to minister to the wounded that they worked indefatigably as stretcher bearers and that they drove ambulances into the midst of battle to rescue the wounded.

Women Killed.

Others were sacrificed in the less heroic but no less necessary work behind the lines. Among these stands out Miss Winona Martin of Rockville Center, L. I., a Y. M. C. A. secretary, who was the first American woman killed in the war. She was killed by a bomb during a German air raid and her death made a deep impression on American minds.

Miss Marion G. Crandell of Alameda, Cal., killed by shell fire near Chalons, March 26, 1918, was another of the women sacrificed in helping the soldiers.

The citation of the units attached to the Third Division, consisting of 34 men and six women, by Major-General Dickman, reads in part:

"The commanding General desires to make record in the general orders of this division his appreciation of the part taken by the members of the Y. M. C. A. who have been attached to this division and actively carried on their work in all its phases during the time that this division was in contact with the enemy. While the men of the Y. M. C. A. were with the troops in the front line, the young women of the Y. M. C. A. were detailed with the hospitals, and the medical staff of this division bears testimony of their most efficient help during these two weeks of great strain."

AMERICANS BREAK RAPIDLY AFTER 21, DRAFT FIGURES SHOW

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Vital statistics made available to the Government as a result of the selective draft processes—especially from the scientific physical examination of 3,208,446 men—will be the means of saving a hundred times as many lives as were lost in the war, Major-General Enoch Crowder, Provost Marshal-General believes.

Comparison of the age groups of regstrants is said to have indicated material deterioriation in the average American soon after he reaches his majority. Of every 100 men 21 years old who were examined, 76.89 were found physically fit, while in the 21-30-year class only 69.17 were thus classified; while only a small increase was noted in the remedials, the disqualified group rose from 23.11 to 30.83 per hundred.

Analysis of the figures and percentages of men rejected because of deficient mentality and because of mental and nervous disorders afforded interesting data. Most of the Southern states showed high figures for the mentality deficient—probably, it was explained, because of the large negro population. Vermont was the only Northern State in the first 10 states in this respect. On the other hand, mental and nervous disorders were far more prevalent in the Northern states.

"New Hair Will Start Growing Today!"

By Valeska Suratt.

A Powerful Secret for Hair-Root Developing. Also the New Way of Positively Removing Wrinkles by Refining the Texture of the Skin.

IT SEEMS almost a shame to see how much valuable time is lost in an effort to save the wasting away of a formerly beautiful head of hair. A great many use materials which are absolutely ineffective; they believe they are nourishing the hair, but instead they starve it. Premature grayness of hair is one result. How wonderful it is, then, that the hair can be so treated that it will immediately take on new life by being given the very materials which it readily takes into its own cell life. This, for instance, is what occurs when the following formula is used on the hair for even a short time. It is a tremendous hair-forcer, it infuses new vigor in the hair-roots, so that the difference is easily seen in a few weeks. Get from your druggist for about fifty cents a one-ounce package of beta-quinol and mix the contents with a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum. Use often and liberally. Your hair, for one thing, will at once begin to stop falling.

ACACIA—Any skin will respond quickly to the following treatment. The cream given below should be made up by yourself, which you can do in a few moment. It makes the texture of the skin very fine, and as a result you will soon note what the small and deep wrinkles, crow's-feet and the sagging of the flesh will leave and in its place bring a splendid youthful plumpness and vigor to the skin. To a half pint of water add two ounces of eptol, and add also one tablespoonful of glycerine. This cream is remarkably nutritious to the skin, and after a few days you will be able to say that you have found the secret of keeping the face young. Any druggist will supply you with the eptol for about fifty cents.

MISS B. O. H.—You remember once before I told you that you were wasting time using what you mention. Why not make up this cream yourself, and then you will be absolutely certain that your complexion will be wonderfully beautified in a few weeks? Mix together an ounce of zintone and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water, to form a cream. Rub in well, and use twice a day at least, if you can. Your freckles and all muddiness and blemishes will very soon give way to the exquisite tint and spotless loveliness you have so long wished for. The zintone will cost about fifty cents at any drug store.

LOOK—Blackheads? It is very easy to get rid of them. I will tell you how, and you will get rid of them in only a few moments, too. On a wet cloth sprinkle some neroxin, costing about fifty cents at your druggist. Rub this on the blackheads, and then look in your mirror and see if I am not right.

MISS E. E.—Fatty accumulations are constantly forming on every scalp. Soap cannot remove them: it simply removes the looser dirt. Dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of water and use as a head wash. This will dissolve away all these accumulations and leave the hair with a splendid sheen just like silk. You can get enough eggol for twenty-five cents to give you over a dozen shampoos.

MRS. GRUMBLE—Your complaint about chalky face powder is well taken. I want you to try the face powder which I had made up for myself in order to avoid this very chalkiness. It is "Valeska Suratt Face Powder," and is sold at drug stores in any tint for fifty cents.

MISS G. O'C.—Here is the best way in the world to get rid of any superfluous hair and do it without reddening or irritating the skin. It is the only way known to "dissolve" the hair. It leaves the skin in perfect condition and leaves no spot or redness whatever. It is glorious to use. Get a one-dollar bottle of sulfo solution. It is a liquid which you apply to the hairs. It is all ready to use. In a few moments the hairs dissolve completely away, and the "work" is entirely done.

DIMPLES—Apply some hydrolized talc to the armpits and you will find that it will do more than anything else to regulate that excessive perspiration in the armpits and destroy all odors completely. You can obtain the hydrolized talc for fifty cents at any drug store.—ADVERTISEMENT.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist
for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now; your very life may be at stake.

Why Gray Hair Is No Longer Necessary

New, Clean, Easy, Harmless Treatment—First Bottle Gives SATISFACTION

After having been tried and proven successful by hundreds of their customers, leading stores are recommending "Canute Water for Gray Hair" to those who wish the color of their hair restored. Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Famous & Barr sell it, and all questions one naturally asks are here plainly answered.

IS IT ABSOLUTELY SAFE TO USE? By all means—yes. You may use Canute Water for gray hair without the slightest fear of injury to the hair, scalp or eyes, as it contains none of the injurious elements of the ordinary hair dye, being entirely FREE from acid, sugar of lead, sulphur or coal tar products of any kind—making it as harmless to the hair and scalp as ordinary water. It is for external use only.

WILL IT SOIL THE HANDS OR SCALP? No it will not. Our own patented process prevents it from staining the hands or scalp. Canute Water for Gray Hair is an especially clean, convenient treatment — not being sticky or greasy, it restores so naturally and evenly no one will be able to tell you are using anything.

IS IT A CRUDE DYE? Positively not. That is just the thing it isn't. Canute Water is a simple method of reviving the youthful color of hair that has turned gray from age, illness or other cause. Proof that Canute Water is not a crude dye is that it has no numbered shades—the same bottle is good for all shades of hair, while, as the reader knows, crude dyes are numbered 1, 2 or 3.

HOW IS IT APPLIED? Very easily. Just wet your hair with it and allow to dry in good, fresh air. Nothing hard about that, is there? Apply on hair once daily and day by day observe the hair becoming darker and darker. And by the time you have finished the first bottle the youthful color of your hair will be restored. It will then remain that way, and simply require a retouching once every week or two as the hair grows.

CAN THE DARKENED COLOR WASH OR RUB OFF? The color will not wash off. Shampoo the hair all you like—you may even use a hot curling iron, as not even that will affect the color. On the contrary the more you shampoo the hair the softer and fluffier the hair will become. Remember, it will only be necessary to use Canute Water for Gray Hair afterward once every week or two on the new hair that grows.

Believe us, after a week you'll thank yourself for having tried it. Sold at the above-mentioned stores for $1.10 a bottle, or by mail direct. Friedman Canute Co., 18 East 17th st., New York City.

DONATIONS EXEMPTED ON INCOME RETURNS

War Contributions Excepted From Payment of Levy—Other Allowances Explained.

Donations to war chests, war camp community funds and other war reliefs are regarded as deductable contributions in ascertaining net incomes for 1918, according to instructions on doubtful points received from the Bureau of Internal Revenue by Collector Moore.

They define the head of a family as one who supports in one household one or more persons connected by blood relationship, marriage or adoption. If separated from the household his eligibility depends on the nature of the separation.

If the benefactor is absent on business or military or naval service, or a dependent is absent at school or on a visit, the common home being maintained, the exemption of $2000 applies. If, however, the dependent continuously makes his home elsewhere, the benefactor, irrespective of the question of support, is not the head of a family.

Exemptions Allowed.

In the case of man and wife, the joint exemption of $2000 allowed a married couple replaces the individual exemption allowed each only if they live together. Unavoidable absence of a wife or husband at a sanitarium or asylum on account of illness does not preclude claiming the exemption. If, however, the husband continuously and voluntarily makes his home at one place and the wife at another, each must file an individual return of net income of $1000 or more, and each is assessed on the amount of net income in excess of $1000.

Those under 21 or their guardians are required to make returns if their 1918 income exceeded $1000.

Inquiries concerning allowance for bad debts are answered by the following ruling:

"Bad debts recognized as such prior to 1918 are not deductible. Only such debts as have been charged off as worthless within that year may be claimed. Where circumstances indicate that a debt is uncollectible and that legal action to enforce payment would be useless, a showing of these facts is sufficient evidence of the worthlessness of the debt.

Bankruptcy Settlements.

Bankruptcy may not be an indication of worthlessness. Actual determination of worthlessness is possible only when settlement in bankruptcy is made. Only the difference between the amount received in distribution and the amount of the claim may be considered a bad debt. The difference between the amount received by a creditor in distribution of a decedent's estate and the amount of the creditor's claim may be considered a worthless debt. Taxpayers are cautioned to answer fully all questions of which they are not doubtful, leaving these to be filled in by the revenue experts.

HIGH WAR DEATH RATE AMONG FRENCH INTELLECTUAL CLASSES

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—That French intellectual classes have paid in lives to a fearful extent in the war, was disclosed in the casualty returns now being analyzed, according to professions, is stated in the Paris journal Intransigeant. The records show that 6227 Frenchmen promient in educational pursuits have been killed on the battlefield.

Paris, alone, the paper adds, has lost 3378 students of different universities and colleges, besides 350 journalists and men of letter. The figures for provincial France are not yet available, but they are said to be very large.

Since Aug. 2, 1914, most of France's great educational institutions practically have been closed, only a few elderly professors and a limited number of younger men, physically unfit for military service, remaining.

To repopulate universities and colleges without delay, is, in the view of the authorities, imperative if France is to remain in the forefront of intellectual life. M. Lafferre, Minister of Public Instruction, promises special facilities for students "as soon as they are demobilized," but the machinery by which men are returned to civilian life is working very slowly.

128TH ARTILLERY (ST. LOUIS) BAND SENT TO MONTE CARLO

Wins Out in Competition to Go on Two Weeks' Concert Tour in South of France.

The band of the 128th (St. Louis) Field Artillery has been accorded the honor of representing the Thirty-fifth Division as a divisional band, and has gone to the Monte Carlo leave area to play two weeks' concerts. This news has been received by Victor Lichtenstein, 4328 Maryland avenue, from his former pupil, Jules F. Silberberg, leader of the band of the 128th, who was formerly first violin in the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and lived at 4221 Page boulevard.

Silberberg said the three bands of the artillery brigade played a competition, and a like contest was held between the bands of the engineer regiment and four infantry regiments of the division. The winners of the two contests then met to decide divisional honors and the 128th Artillery band "came out on top."

In a postscript Silberberg said orders to leave Commercy for Nice at once were received on Feb. 2, and the members of the band were all excitement in preparing for the concert tour.

$250,000 TO BE SOUGHT IN ONE DAY BY PRESBYTERY HERE

Sunday, March 23, Set Aside to Raise Part of National Rehabilitation Fund of $35,000,000.

The churches of the St. Louis Presbytery will undertake on Sunday, March 23, to raise $250,000. This is the St. Louis Presbytery's quota of the $35,000,000 to be raised in the United States for church purposes, benevolence and missions this year, under the New Era Movement. Half a million of this is to be used in financing returning soldiers to get started again and another half million is to be given for the restoration of Protestant churches in Belgium, France and Italy. However, the larger portion, a total of $25,000,000, is to be used for the support of the home churches and their local work.

Dr. W. R. King of the First Presbyterian Church is the synod chairman of the movement, and Dr. F. W. Russell of the West Presbyterian Church is the presbytery chairman.

The Mississippi Valley

The Road Builders

"Westward the Star of Empire takes its way."

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY TRUST CO

Just such a flood tide of national energy as we are witnessing today was the one that followed the close of the Civil War.

The soldier of the South came back to a ruined home, to devastated fields, to a whole system of living and thinking that had been crushed to pieces and burnt to cinders. But the creative energy of America was his and the new South rose on shining wings above the ashes of the old.

The Northern soldier returned to communities that had not changed at all. But he had changed, and the old conservative towns were too slow to keep pace with him. He turned westward, to face the deserts, the mountains, the hurricanes of Kansas and the blizzards of Montana.

Our fighting blood was up in those days. We wanted hard things to do. We built splendidly on the ruins of a burned and conquered land and we built just as splendidly in the wildernesses of a virgin country. Only a step behind the prairie schooner came the railroad gang—startling the solitudes of the desert with the clang of their sledges—scaring the mountain eagles with the thunder of their blasts. The Mississippi Valley, from rugged Montana in the far west to ruined Alabama on the Gulf, built roads and roads and roads.

St. Louis was in the direct east and west line between the country's geographical center and its center of population. It was in the direct north and south line between the Gulf and the Great Lakes. Only its affiliations with the conquered South prevented it from becoming at once the central railroad terminus of the West.

But St. Louisans were Northerners as well as Southerners, Westerners as well as Easterners. Some of them pushed out across Kansas with the Missouri Pacific and the M., K. & T. Others struggled southward through the Ozarks with the Iron Mountain and the Frisco. Others again rebuilt the business of St. Louis, so that when river traffic died our city was already a strong railroad and jobbing center.

In those days there was not a single bridge across the Mississippi at St. Louis where now there are four. In those days Illinois cities were the terminal points for all Mississipi Valley freight. Today St. Louis is the terminus of twenty-eight railroad systems.

And something more about today. Today, this people feels the same upsurge of the old creative spirit that it felt after the Civil War.

That spirit is alive and alight in St. Louis today. It is up to us to give it the wings of credit, to harden it into concrete, profit-paying form, to help St. Louis and the Mississippi Valley with all our might and main.

Our next article will discuss the period from 1890 to 1917, when the Mississippi Valley came into its own.

NOTED ENGLISH CRITIC'S BOOK ON WILSON

Spectacle of Son of Democracy Dominating World Destinies Beyond Words, Says Archer.

"To us in England," writes William Archer, eminent English critic, in his new book, "The Peace President," (Henry Holt & Co.) "the war has brought one inestimable and imperishable joy in the generous comradeship of a reconciled America. Had a pedantic or a pusillanimous President sat in Woodrow Wilson's seat, it might never have been achieved. So far as any one man may be called the author of the great reconcilement, it is beyond all doubt the President who has been so steadfastly and so magnanimously faithful to the great traditions of his race."

This comes as practically the final sentence to Mr. Archer's biography and estimate of Woodrow Wilson, "The Peace President." Of all contemporary attempts to analyze the President's career and place in history, it is perhaps the most interesting, because it comes from an outsider, who is presumably unswayed by the political bias which is apt to operate in the case of an American writing of President Wilson.

Wth the cultivated English critic's true appreciation of literary achievement, Archer dwells at length on Wilson as a literary man—a side of our President which we in America are apt to overlook. "I have not," he says, "attempted any critical estimate of President Wilson's place in American literature. My object has been simply to show that, whatever else he may be, he is a man of letters to the finger tips—a man steeped in literary traditions and possessed of fine literary gifts. He can make political science readable to the layman and he can make history fascinating without imparting to it the cheap overcoloring of fiction, or the hectic fervor of partisanship. This aspect of his genius is not sufficiently recognized either here or in his own country. His administrative achievements, both in education and politics, and his fame as a statesman, have eclipsed his repute as an author. But there can be little doubt that if he had not abandoned the contemplative for the active life, he would have taken a high place among contemporary writers of the English language; and even as it is, it ought not to be forgotten that this great Presiden is at the same time an accomplished and atractive men of letters."

"Nothing in President Wilson's career," says Archer further on in his book, "has been more bitterly criticized both in his own country and abroad than his treatment of the Mexican problem. It is probable that when the time for dispassionate judgment arrives nothing will be found to give clearer evidence of his strength of character and his political insight."

"What was the alternative to President Wilson's policy? It could only have been, in the first place, a great and bloody war. All parties in Mexico—as was clear from the declarations of Madero and the action of Carranza—would have made common cause against an invader, and the United States would have had on their hands a problem vaster and more difficult than that which Britain encountered in South Africa. In the second place, this war would have worn the appearance, at any rate, of a war of conquest, and would have alienated once for all the other Spanish-American states, already sufficiently prone to question the disinterestedness of their great neighbor of the North. In the third place, the utmost success attainable would have left the United States saddled with the charge of a vassal republic, resentful, turbulent, entirely indisposed to accept and profit by the tutelage of its conqueror. It would have had to be controlled, for a long time at any rate, by American proconsuls, who, if they acted honestly in the interests of the people, could not possibly have revived the system of exploitation which had flourished under Diaz, and which was the very thing that those who clamoured for intervention were longing to see revived."

After a careful analysis of the difficult position in which America was placed with the outbreak of the world war and the provocations which Germany gave us, Archer says of President Wilson's final decision:

"He had borne injury and covert insult while that seemed the lesser of two evils; but when open insult to the United States was combined with a no less cynical disavowal of all restraint in the pursuit of the interests of Germany's ruling caste, he saw that with that caste no free man or free nation could live at peace. He declared for war, and the country rose at his summons. He had throughout played the part of a resolute, far-seeing, plain-speaking democratic statesman; in the final moment of decision he proved himself a great leader of men." * * *

"Since the great turn of fortune in July, 1918—since the Landslide of Autocracy set in—Mr. Wilson's position has been unique and unparalleled. In virtue of the mandate of a great people; in virtue, too, of his own character, he has at more than one juncture been in very truth the arbiter of the destinies of the world. In the name of democracy, he has spoken the doom of empires. To this man of plain Scotch-Irish parentage, this son of an obscure Presbyterian minister, Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns have come truckling for mercy only to be told, calmly and sternly, that mankind has no longer any use for them. The wonderful and incredible drama is a theme for an Aeschylus or a Shakspeare. We, its living spectators, can find no adequate words for the emotion it excites in us."

HOW SOLDIERS MAY OBTAIN $60 BONUS FOR SERVICE

Draft Boards and Camp Commanders Notified of Requirements Under New Act of Congress.

Draft boards and commanders of military units have received a circular from the War Department informing discharged soldiers how to get the $60 bonus approved by Congress in the revenue bill. Those entitled to the bonus are all persons serving in the military or naval forces during the present war, who have, since April 16, 1917, resigned or been honorably discharged; who have been placed on the reserve or inactive list, or who at any time hereafter, but not later than the termination of the current enlistment of term of service, may resign or be honorably discharged.

The bonus shall not be paid to any person appointed to or inducted into the service on or prior to Nov. 11, 1918, who failed to report for duty on or prior to that date, nor shall it be paid to any person who is entitled to retired pay, nor to any person who has already received one month's pay under provisions of section 9 of the act entitled "An act to authorize the President to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States," approved May 18, 1917.

Claim for the bonus must be made to the zone finance officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C. The applications must contain the discharge certificate, or order for discharge or relief if no certificate was issued, but both certificate and order if both were issued, the paper bearing indorsement of final payment being required; a statement of all military service since April 16, 1917, showing place and date of reporting at first military station, and address to which check is to be sent.

When settlement has been made all personal papers will be returned to the applicant with check. No further correspondence is necessary, except to advise of change of address of applicant.

No other disbursing officers are authorized to pay the $60 bonus.

When the Baby Needs a Laxative---

No one knows better than the ever-watchful mother—the natural doctor of the family in all the small ills—that when the baby is out of sorts it is usually due to indigestion or constipation.

It is always well, in any of its illnesses, to look for this cause. The diet may have to be changed, but before good can result from it, the bowels must be moved.

The mother has the choice of many medicines—cathartics, purgatives, bitter-waters, pills, physics, etc. But the little body doesn't need such harsh remedies for they wrench the system and do only temporary good, so often followed by an unpleasant reaction.

A better plan is to employ a mild, gentle laxative of which only a little is required. There is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that thousands of mothers have used successfully for baby's constipation and its accompanying ills, such as belching, wind colic, restlessness, sleeplessness, etc.

The nursing mother will also find it ideal for herself, and it is especially important that she be free from constipation.

Syrup Pepsin is guaranteed to do as promised or the druggist will refund the money. Thousands of cautious families have it in the house, secure against the little ills.

Children Love Candy Cascarets

Careful mothers know that Cascarets in the home mean less sickness, less trouble, less worry, less cost. When one of the kiddies has a white tongue, feverish breath, sour stomach or a cold, a Cascaret quickly and harmlessly "works" the poisons from the liver and bowels and all is well again.

TO MOTHERS! While all children detest castor oil, calomel, pills and laxatives, they really love to take Cascarets because they taste like candy. Cascarets "work" the nasty bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison from the child's tender stomach, liver and bowels without pain or griping. Cascarets never disappoint the worried mother. Each 10 cent box contains directions for children aged one year old and upwards.

BROTHER WRITES OF COL. M'MAHON'S DUTIES

Former Leader of the 138th Infantry Commands St. Sulfice, Important Base of Supply.

An interesting letter describing the activities of Col. Edmund J. McMahon, who formerly commanded the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, has been received from his brother, Capt. James J. McMahon, who is with the Fifty-second Pioneer Infantry in France. Col. McMahon is in charge of St. Sulpice, one of the biggest bases of supplies of the A. E. F. An effort is being made to have him transferred to the 138th Infantry, as former commander of the regiment, in time for the regiment's homecoming

The letter in part follows:

"As you know, I visited Ed at St. Sulpice and, take it from me, he has one of the biggest jobs in the A. E. F. The camp is about three miles long by a mile wide. Under his command are 109 warehouses housing stores for all principal branches of the service, including quartermaster, ordnance, chemical warfare, engineers, motor transportation, etc. There are about 200 officers and 1100 men under his command, also about 1800 German prisoners (out of whom they get more actual work than any other place I have been) and some Chinese who, as far as work is concerned, would be overpaid at one cent a day.

Is Busy Place.

"St. Sulpice is one of the busiest little places you would want to see. Before the armistice they were busy pushing needed supplies to the front; now they catch it both ways, with supplies going up and guns, ammunition, chemical warfare supplies and so on coming back. The spirit of co-operation among the different departments at the camp is what impresses one. You undoubtedly know that you generally find jealousy among the different departments, a sort of each-man-for-himself attitude. At St. Sulpice they are working more like a big family. If the chemical warfare has a shipment coming in and is crowded for warehouse space the Q. M. makes room, the ordance helps out the Q. M. and that's the way it goes.

"The men are housed in barracks and it certainly is a delight to go through their quarters, kitchens and baths. The inspectors have reported it as the cleanest camp in the A. E. F.

Food Is Important.

"Especial attention is paid to the quality, quantity and proper preparation of food. As for amusement, they have a building erected out of lumber supplied by the "Y," with a large stage and a capacity of 3000. Several real wide-awake officers constitute the Committee on Entertainment, and nothing worth while in this line that comes within several miles of Bordeaux escapes them. St. Sulpice is 15 miles from Bordeaux.

"They recently have had a 'Y' man sent out there to look after entertainment and athletics. He comes in handy in securing the 'movies.' There is something worth while on the progra mevery evening. As a matter of fact, I had just come from the 'woolly' part of the country—the deserted villages, dugouts and so on. I had figured on spending most of my evenings in Bordeaux. Instead, I was very much in evidence at the auditorium, enjoying boxing bouts, theatricals and movies.

"They also have their own bakery in camp and get fresh bread every day. Boy, it almost seemed like home to me. Sometimes, up in our territory, bread is so hard by the time it reaches us we almost have to use a saw on it."

LONDON "BOBBIES" UNARMED

Order to Police to Turn in All Swords.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The last vestige of military equipment was taken from the London police today when an order was issued by the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Force for the return to the stores of all swords and scabbards.

In the old days superintendents, inspectors and all mounted men carried swords and were instructed in cutlass drill. The weapons were occasionally used in the suppression of riots. Years ago the inspectors were deprived of their swords, which they hung in the police stations. The order withdrawing the swords will not lead to the withdrawal of automatic pistols, a supply of which is kept in every police station for use in cases of emergency. In ordinary times the London "Bobby" goes out for duty armed with no more effective weapon than the law and the impressive dignity of his six-foot personality.

The Aeolian Company Announces Two

His Own Famous "Minuet" and the Chopin "Butterfly" Etude

Being the first to be completed of the series played by the master under his contract to record his interpretations exclusively for the Duo-Art Piano in the future

A Letter From Paderewski to the President of The Aeolian Company

My dear Mr. Tremaine:—

I am sending you herewith my signed contract under the terms of which I agree to produce music rolls for the Duo-Art exclusively in the future.

I avail myself of this opportunity to again congratulate you on your splendid achievement in the production of the Duo-Art Piano. This instrument is without question greatly superior to any other of its kind and I shall be glad indeed to have my playing reproduced with such manifest fidelity.

Very sincerely,
I. J. Paderewski (Signed)

What the DUO-ART Is

The Duo-Art Piano is the most remarkable musical instrument the genius of man has yet produced. With its development and final perfection the ultimate stage in the evolution of the piano has been attained.

It is difficult, indeed it is not possible, to convey in words an adequate description of the Duo-Art Piano. This is because its great outstanding feature is its reproduction of the performances of the great pianists; and the character and excellence of an interpretative musical performance cannot be conveyed by any written or verbal description. It must be heard to be understood and appreciated.

The Duo-Art Piano reproduces the actual playing of the great pianists. Let your imagination have rein for a moment and realize what this means.

Suppose you owned a piano on which Paderewski had played the great masterpieces of music; compositions of Liszt, Chopin, Beethoven and all the other immortal composers. And suppose that right in your own home, whenever you desired, this miraculous instrument would repeat these performances as the master himself played them.

This is precisely what the Duo-Art Piano does. It produces the playing of Paderewski and not Paderewski alone, but all the other great pianists, and does it with absolute fidelity. Every element of tone, technique and expression is preserved, giving you a perfect reproduction of the artist's original performance.

FRANCIS FREELY USES "HELL" IN TELLING SENATE OF BOLSHEVIKI

Everybody Wearing a White Collar Is Being Killed, Ambassador Testifies Before Overman Committee as He Warns Allies Against Letting Lenine-Trotzky Outfit Have Its Way.

ONLY FEW RUSSIANS FAVOR BOLSHEVISM

St. Louisan Declares Not More Than Tenth of People Sympathize With Radical Rule—Sees Spread of German Influence.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Ambassador David R. Francis of St. Louis, obeying literally the committee's injunction to another witness to stick the facts and not paint pictures, found it impossible to keep the word "hell" out of his testimony today before the Senate Committee investigating Bolshevik propaganda. He gave an unexpurgated version of what he said on several occasions in Russia.

Most of the Ambassador's statement, which occupied the greater part of the day, followed closely the lines of the interview with him which was published in the Post-Dispatch the day of his arrival in Washington after three years in Russia.

He interpolated some stories by way of giving the committee an accurate understanding of the feelings of a Missourian in a country where, after the Bolsheviki came into power, he wasn't wanted, but where he was determined to stay as the representative of his country.

"I didn't have any personal fear while I was in Russia," he said, "but as I look back over my experiences I marvel that I didn't."

He added that, if it had not been for the ailment that caused him to go to London for an operation, he would probably be there yet.

He Learns of a Revolution.

While Francis was in Archangel Gen. Poole, the commander of the Allied forces there, said to him: "There was a revolution here last year." The Ambassador replied, according to his testimony. "The hell you say, who pulled it off?"

"I did," replied Chaplin, a Russian naval officer on Poole's staff. The "revolution" was a coup d'etat by which the Government at Archangel was temporarily kidnaped. Chaplin reasoned that there was no further use for the Government, since the allied forces had arrived, and took the quickest means of getting rid of it. Francis told him that he had been guilty of gross usurpation of power and directed that he should not further circulate the proclamation of the revolution which he still had.

Francis heard that American soldiers at Archangel were running the street cars. He called Maj. Nichols on the telephone and said, "Don't you know that that will raise hell in America?" The Major said that he had been asked whether he had any men who could operate cars. As most of the battalion had been recruited in Detroit, he replied that he had. For 30 hours the cars were run by American soldiers and because no fares were charged other soldiers had to be stationed at the street corners to handle the crowds that wanted to ride.

Praises American Soldiers.

"The American soldiers in Russia," said Francis, "showed the same spirit as our soldiers on the western front. They wanted to get into a fight."

Soon after the Americans arrived, Francis met two soldiers on the street. He told them how glad he was to see them. They were polite, but showed no particular interest. Then he said that he was the American Ambassador. They remained polite, but unresponsive. As he turned away one of them stopped a man who was with him and said: "Who is that fellow?" "That," replied the Ambassador's companion, "is Gov. Francis."

"Well," said one of the soldiers, "why in the hell didn't he say so?"

"You see," said the Ambassador, in telling the story, "these men were from the Middle West and they knew me by reputation."

Francis declared that not more than one-tenth of the people of Russia were in sympathy with Bolshevism. He said that the present Bol-

Robins Would Testify to Refute Francis' "False Statements"

CHICAGO, March 8.

RAYMOND ROBINS, former American Red Cross commissioner to Russia, sent a telegram tonight to Chairman Overman of the committee investigating lawless propaganda, requesting permission to again appear before the committee and refute "false statements" reported to have been made before the committee by Ambassador Francis.

'RING 'ROUND ROSY' CHASE OF THIEF SEEN BY CROWD

Negro Captured by Two Detectives After Humorous Spectacle in Union Station Midway.

Two detectives played "Ring Around Rosy" with a negro purse snatcher in the midway at Union Station at 7 o'clock last night in the presence of a highly entertained crowd, some persons in which offered to lay wagers on the detectives' chances of catching the negro.

Mrs. C. C. Light of Crane, Mo., was in the main waiting room when the negro snatched her hand bag containing $18.02 and railroad tickets from beneath her arms. He ran itno the midway and Mrs. Light informed the train caller of her loss.

The train caller, in his fog-horn voice, announced the theft and Detectives Bender and Garvey were soon upon the negro's track. When he circled the candy booth in the middle of the midway the detectives circled in his wake. They ran so swiftly that travelers who arrived when the chase was at its height could not tell whether the detectives were chasing the negro or the negro chasing the detectives.

After circling the booth a dozen times the negro "changed base" and began circling the newspaper and magazine booth. The detectives continued the pursuit and circled the second booth several times before it occurred to them to double back. The inspiration struck both simultaneously and they reversed. The negro did likewise and kept ahead until the detectives got their signals working. Garvey then continued after the negro and Bender reversed. The negro was trapped. He returned Mrs. Light's handbag and went with the detectives to Central Police Station, where he registered as Douglas Moon, 21 years old, no home.

U. S. ENVOYS UNWILLING TO ADOPT PLAN TO PUNISH KAISER

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Friday, March 7.—The findings of the commission on responsibility for the war is still incomplete. It is understood the commission will conclude that the officials of the Central Powers were morally guilty of the most heinous crimes, but that physical punishment would of necessity be retroactive.

The Americans have announced themselves as unwilling to adopt any expedients, the constitutionality of which might be questioned in the United States and in that event the Europeans would have to act alone if they were determined to punish the officials involved.

A possible solution suggested is the formal denunciation in the preliminary peace treaty of the officials of the central empires.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS MAYOR SHOT

Wounded in Shoulder When Robbers Attack Youths.

James M. Jensen, 35 years old, president of the Jensen Printery and Mayor of Richmond Heights, was shot through the left shoulder at 12:30 this morning when he went to the rescue of two young men who were about to be held up by highwaymen near the end of the Market street line. Jensen, who is not believed to have been seriously injured, is being treated in his home, 23 Sunset avenue.

Mayor Jensen was returning home in an automobile and had become stalled in the road. A watchman, George W. McCready, was assisting him and they heard cries for help. Jensen grasped a club and started with McCready to give assistance. Jensen struck one of the highwaymen, who then shot him. McCready then opened fire and the robbers fled. It is not known whether either of the two highwaymen was wounded.

I. C. C. EXAMINER FINDS 20C COAL ARBITRARY VALID

St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Wanted City to Be Grouped With East St. Louis on Mine Rates.

REPORT NOT BINDING UPON COMMISSIONERS

Contention Disputed That Unfair Advantage Results From Terminal Distribution—Folk Says Case Will Be Fought to the Last.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8.—In an opinion made public this afternoon Arthur R. Mackley, attorney examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission upholds the validity of the St. Louis Terminal Association's charge of 20 cents a ton for transferring coal from Illinois mines across the river from East St. Louis to St. Louis. Mackley holds that differential in favor of East St. Louis represents a proper charge by the Terminal Association for its service, and recommends that the complaint brought by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, praying for equality of rates to both sides of the river, be dismissed.

The finding of the attorney-examiner he pointed out in a statement accompanying his report, are tentative and must not be referred to as the decision of the commission, which is yet to be reached.

The usual procedure of the commission after the filing of a proposed report by an examiner, is to allow 20 days for the filing of acceptances or briefs. If a brief is filed, the case may then be set down for argument before the commission. The report of the examiner may be accepted by the commission, modified or rejected altogether. There is precedent for each of these courses.

The case is that of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and others. Joseph W. Folk and Sidney F. Andrews represent the complainant. As intervenors are named Charles H. Daues, for the City of St. Louis, and R. W. Ropiequet for the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Commercial Club of Granite City and East Side Manufacturers' Association. A. P. Humberg and 16 others are named as attorneys for the defendants.

Rate Re-Group Urged.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce contended that in view of the extensive grouping of the mines from which the same rates are charged, the distance of the mines of the largest Illinois group from East St. Louis varying from a minimum of nine miles to a maximum of 82, there should also be a grouping of St. Louis and East St. Louis for rate making purposes. It was pointed out that only the river separates the two and that they constitute and should be treated as one industrial district.

"The complaint," says the examiner's report, "is primarily one of discrimination and it would be equally satisfactory to the complainant whether the alleged inequality were removed by an increase in the rate to East St. Louis or by a reduction of the rate to St. Louis.

East St. Louis intervened in opposition to the petition on the ground that it was entitled to the benefit of its location at the door of the Illinois coal deposits. It suggested that the 20-cent differential in its favor should, if anything, be increased.

The St. Louis contention, in brief, was that a unified terminal such as that of the St. Louis association, which operates both side of the river and uses bridges and a ferry between the two cities, means a uniform rate within the terminal. Criticism was also made that although on East St. Louis coal the proprietary lines absorb the terminals charge of 10 cents a ton for terminal delivery, they make no absorption of any parts of the 20-cent charge on St. Louis coal.

Question of Absorption.

The report stresses the reply to the criticism, the defendants having justified the East Side absorption by reason of the competition of carriers that make deliveries on their own lines direct from the mines. The Terminal Association, as quoted in the report, also contended that on the greater part of the St. Louis coal an even greater absorption is required by the East Side lines than on East St. Louis coal. This condition is brought about, it was stated, by the necessity of meeting the rates of independent terminal lines from the mines. An absorption of 13 cents a ton, it was said, is required to be made on about 61 per cent of the St Louis coal received from the Illinois mines.

The report says that the proprietary lines and particularly certain nonproprietary lines assert "that they could not continue also to absorb this 13 cents a ton if they

PRESIDENT CONTINUES TO ENJOY VOYAGE; SEA SMOOTH

Has Not Yet Decided Any Radical Changes Are Necessary in League Covenant.

ON BOARD U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, March 8 (by wireless to the Associated Press).—The impression gathered by those who have come into contact with President Wilson is that the opposition which has developed to the league of nations covenant has not caused him to decide that any radical changes are necessary. It is recognized that changes in phraseology and minor particulars are possible, but it is understood that President Wilson is not looking for any fundamental alteration.

Thus far the President has given little consideration to these questions. He continues his enjoyment of an uneventful voyage.

Rain again set in today. The sun has not been seen from the George Washington since the morning after her departure, but the sea continues smooth.

Mr. Wilson today received wireless dispatches from Paris on the progress being made at the peace conference.

ASSERTS REPORTS EXAGGERATED RIOTING OF CANADIAN SOLDIERS

Gen. Colquheun, in Statement on Subject, Tells of Courtesy to Officers—Girls Not Mistreated.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 8.—Gen. Colquheun, in the course of a statement on the rioting of Canadian soldiers at the Kinmel military camp at Rhyl, Wales, said that no attack was made on the officers, who were treated with courtesy.

The disorder is said to have been due to impatience to get home.

"I myself went in and out among the men freely," he added, "and some of them actually put down loot in order to salute me—then they picked up the loot again.

"The reports of the damage to the camp are greatly exaggerated. Some 50 or 60 men got out of hand and attacked some canteens. The men in one camp, anticipating danger, armed themselves and, contrary to express orders, fired. That was on Wednesday, when the fatalities occurred.

"The girls' camp was not attacked. As a matter of fact, the girls were treated with the utmost chivalry. No man entered the girls' rooms while they were occupied.

"One man raised the red flag in an attempt to introduce Bolshevism. He was shot."

ELLIOTT FAVORS RAIL PORTFOLIO IN THE CABINET

Northern Pacific Head Says Transportation Is of Such Vital Importance as to Justify That Recognition.

SEES POSSIBLE SERIOUS SITUATION

Regulated Competition Should Be Continued, He Declares in Chicago Speech —Opposes Government Guarantees.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The early return of the railways to operation by the companies which own them and the passage of constructive legislation to enable private operation to be made successful, were advocated by Howard Elliott, chairman and President of the Northern Pacific Railway, in an address before the Commercial Club of Chicago at a dinner here tonight.

"The Pennsylvania system," he said, "furnishes 12.2 per cent of the total ton mileage and 14½ per cent of the total passenger mileage of the steam roads of this country. On Dec. 31, 1917, that system had 233,600 employes, and on Dec. 31, 1918, it had 273,101 employes. Although the ton mileage handled in 1918 was less than in 1917 (the railways being in the year 1917 under private control), nearly 40,000 more employes were required to handle the smaller volume of business."

He said this statement was not made in criticism of the railroad administration, but to emphasize that Government operation is not productive of best results. With the same railroads a little better equipped in 1918 than in 1917, and the same officers and men, but with different organization and direction, he said, "the total output of the railroads was less than in 1917 and was very much more costly to the country."

Sees Absorption for Weak Lines.

"I cannot believe that human nature and the art of government have developed sufficiently to make Government ownership and operation successful today," he declared.

"Small, unsuccessful and so-called 'weak lines,' that are dependent upon their connections with the great trunk lines, must gradually be absorbed and become a part of the larger system, just as has been done in the past. Regulated competition, especially as to service, should be continued between the great systems.

"All good citizens desire to see wages and living conditions improve, but there is a limit to what industry can pay and survive. It is surely better to have reasonable wages and continuous employment rather than to force wages so high that industry languishes.

"An effective transportation machine is vital to the interests of the nation in war and peace. Its importance justifies having a man in the Cabinet to confer on an equality with other Cabinet officers dealing with great national questions and resources, and to present the transportation needs of the nation directly to the President and his advisers. He will not manage and operate the railroads any more than the Secretary of Agriculture manages and operates the farms of the country.

Guarantee Not Desired.

"Some have suggested that the Government guarantee a fixed return upon railroad property. The railway executives believe that a guarantee would tend to reduce initiative and retard efficient management. They believe, with adequate rates, reasonable liberty to act and good management, roads that have been wisely planned, honestly financed and well managed can sustain themselves.

"Some of the great labor organizations have suggested that the Government purchase all the stocks of the companies and own the roads, subject to the bonds—all the roads to be then managed as a national system by a board, to consist of an equal number of directors and appointed by the President, by the officers of the roads and by the employes. This would eliminate competition and put vast power in this proposed board.

"While I am an optimist on the future of the United States, nevertheless I do not minimize the seriousness of the situation confronting the railroads and the country growing out of conditions produced by the war. During the reconstruction period it is very essential that the present rate structure should stand, and until the new laws herein suggested are effective that the "just compensation' provided by the present control law be continued.

Danger of Collapse Otherwise.

"Otherwise, there is grave danger of a financial collapse of some roads—and an ability of others to pay dividends which will affect the bonds now held by savings banks

ARMY TO RETAIN 200,000 MILITIA AND DRAFTED MEN

Temporary Military Establishment Will Not Be Reduced Below 509,909, Gen. March Says.

1,361,528 HAVE BEEN DISCHARGED

419,555 Have Departed From France — 13 Demobilization Camps Dropped and Three New Ones Added.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Retention within the army of about 200,000 men, obtained originally through the drafts and by transfer from the National Guard is planned by the War Department in building up the temporary military establishment of the nation. This was definitely made known today by Gen. March, chief of staff, who announced the decision of the War Department that the army would "not be reduced under any circumstances" below 509,909 until some law was passed fixing the permanent force.

"All the military problems that confront us have been carefully considered, determining the number of men necessary," Gen. March said, "and we cannot get along without that number—509,909—and they will be held."

Under existing legislation, the maximum war strength of the permanent army is around 298,000. The exact figures, officers explained, cannot be stated, since some of the staff corps are permitted wide latitude in their expansion.

New Voluntary Enlistments.

Voluntary enlistment to fill the regular army has been reinstituted, both in this country and in France, Gen. Pershing having been authorized to transfer recruits obtained from the expeditionary forces to the national organization and to release an equivalet number of drafted men.

There will remain, however, a deficiency of 200,000 from the total declared by the military authorities to be the minimum consistent with the responsibilities of the United States. These men, therefore, will have to come from the forces which the War Department had planned to demobilize.

Secretary Baker, several days ago, in explaining the position of the War Department, as a result of the failure of the Sixty-fifth Congress to pass the army reorganization and appropriation bill, said that his greatest regret was that a large number of men will now have to be retained in the service.

The selective service act, under which many of the men to be retained were inducted, fixes four months after the presidential proclamation of peace as the maximum for the retention of members of the temporary forces.

No Complication Foreseen.

Military authorities foresee no complication as a result of this limitation, however, feeling certain that the final peace treaty cannot be agreed upon before May at the earliest. This will extend the enlistment period of the draft contingents to September, before which, they feel certain, Congress will have acted to relieve the situation.

Demobilization reports made public today by Gen. March showed 1,361,528 officers and men discharged to date, while the number ordered released had reached 1,613,500.

Up to March 3, departures of soldiers from France numbered 419,555, of whom 354,824 had landed in the United States up to yesterday.

Hospital records from the expeditionary forces, Gen. March said, showed 81,231 patients on Feb. 20, a reduction of 112,217 when the armistice was signed.

23 Demobilization Camps.

A reduction in the number of demobilization camps from 33 to 23 was announced today, the purpose being to enable the War Department to release thousands of men, who, under the original plan, would have been held at the 10 additional camps as demobilization personnel.

Thirteen of the original 33 camps designated as demobilization centers will be abandoned. Three new camps, Forts Bliss (El Paso), Oglethorpe (near Chattanooga), and D. A. Russell (Cheyenne, Wyo.), have been added, bringing the total to 23.

The new list of demobilization centers as announced today follows: Camps Bliss, Bowie, Custer, Devens, Dix, Dodge, Funston, Gordon, Grant, Jackson, Kearney, Lee, Lewis, Meade, Oglethorpe, Pike, Presidio of San Francisco, D. A. Russell, Shelby, Sherman, Taylor, Travis and Upton.

Dangling Trolley Wire Fires Car.

A dangling trolley wire came in contact with the roof of a westbound Tower Grove car in front of 4226 Arsenal street last night, and before the fire department arrived the car had burned down to the trucks. The passengers experienced little confusion in leaving the car and none were injured. The police estimated the damage at $2500.

WASHINGTON, March 8.

A JOINT debate on the league of nations will be held soon, probably next week, at Boston, between Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the Senate, and A. Acceptance by Senator Lodge of an invitation from President Lowell for the joint debate was announced tonight from neSator Lodge's office.

HUGHES DEPLORES PARTISAN DISCUSSION OF NATIONS' LEAGUE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 8.—What he characterized as "partisan discussion" of the League of Nations covenant was deplored by Charles Evans Hughes in an address tonight at the "Victory dinner" of the New York County Lawyers' Association.

Hughes urged that the proposed covenant be studied carefully, asserting that "whatever we do we must make no engagement which we do not understand."

He asserted that a certain number "generalities" are absolutely necessary in a constitution, and declared that, although the framers of the Constitution of the United States could not interpret all its generalities, "there were principles to be applied, and we have had a most astounding success under that constitution."

"There was no reason, however," he continued, "for saying that every ambiguity is to be defended."

100,000 AMERICANS ESTIMATED TO HAVE BEEN DISABLED IN WAR

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Present estimates of military authorities put the number of Americans disabled in the war at 100,000. Of this number, it is estimated that 80,000 will be able to return to their old occupations, leaving 20,000 who need retraining for work suited to their maimed condition.

Gen Hines, Chief of Embarkation, Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, chief of embarkation, who arrived in Washington today and reported to Secretary Baker after a trip abroad, said conditions at the embarkation camp at Brest had so improved that there was no longer any cause for anxiety. The continual rains, which have proved the greatest source of trouble, are still in evidence, he said, but the improved drainage system has removed much of the discomfort previously experienced.

FOOD SUPPLY FOR GERMANY TILL HARVEST AGREED UPON

Understood the Method of Payment Will Be by Credits Through Neutral Countries and by Utilizing Foreign Securities Held by Germany.

PLAN FOR DELIVERY OF GERMAN SHIPS

Negotiations to Be Resumed at Once, Not at Spa, but Somewhere in Belgium, Supreme War Council Decides.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 8.—The Supreme War Council reached a decision tonight, whereby the negotiations interrupted at Spa will be immediately resumed at another point, probably somewhere in Belgium.

The agreement provided a method for securing delivery of the German merchant ships and furnishing of an adequate food supply to Germany until the next harvest. The method of payment, it is understood, will be by credit through neutral countries and by utilizing foreign securities held by Germany.

The American peace conference delegates have regarded the food supply for Germany as part of the armistice pledge to Germany.

The American peace commissioners, in pursuance of their effort to hasten the conclusion of a preliminary treaty of peace, have found themselves in a position where they must take sides on the conflicting views of the British and the French regarding the reparation to be exacted from Germany, upon which the whole settlement hinges.

British for Lifting Blockade.

The British have felt that in order to obtain the great sum of money to be demanded of the Germans the latter must be enabled to receive at the earliest possible moment food and raw materials, and even credits with which to start business again, so that out of the proceeds of that business they might pay their debts.

The French do not believe that the German business interests should be permitted to get back into their pre-war activity until the stricken business interests of France and Belgium have at least caught up with them. They have feared that otherwise Germany will be able to regain possession of the world's markets in her old lines.

The Americans, it is understood, decided finally to adhere to the British position.

The Supreme War Council has decided to give Herbert C. Hoover, Director-General of Allied Relief, practical control of all the railways in the old Austrian Empire, and to make him the mandatory of the council in demanding locomotives and freight cars from each of the new states of old Austria with which to create a food and relief service. The relief trains will run over all lines without political or military interference.

Army Engineers Assigned.

The service will be under control of the Relief Administration by Hoover. He has placed the matter in the hands of American army engineers for execution. The engineers have been detailed by Gen. Pershing.

The decision of the council amounts in effect to making Hoover Director-General of the Austrian railway system in the carrying out of relief work.

Five new states have arisen within the area of old Austria, and all have agreed to place the entire question of the distribution and management of the railway rolling stock in his hands.

The action taken is the result of reports on the serious situation throughout Austria-Hungary. Owing to restrictions placed on American appropriations for relief, Hoover has arranged for the British Government to purchase $10,000,000 worth of foodstuffs from the United States Grain Corporation. This will be turned over for distribution in Vienna. Similar relief measures will be taken in other parts of the old Empire.

Relations After War.

The supreme economic commission now is trying to decide what shall be the relations between the United States and the allies and the recent enemy states after the war. In this connection the American delegation is pointing to the pledge

BERLIN DISORDERS ARE REPORTED PUT DOWN BY TROOPS

Protection for Workmen Who Want to Return to Their Labors During the General Strike.

HEAVY ARTILLERY USED IN FIGHTING

Gas Also Used in Attack on Strikers; Reported Men Have Voted to Return to Work.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, March 7.—The first break in the general strike in Berlin occurred this evening, when the subway, a telephone service and water and gas plants resumed. This was the result of a resolution adopted by the Berlin Federation of Labor demanding that the strike be called off.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, March 7.—(6 p. m.).—The general strike in Berlin will be called off tonight. The Labor Federation, at a meeting early this evening, recommended that the workmen return to work Saturday.

The recommendation to return to work was carried by a vote of 40 to 5, inasmuch as the Government had granted the major part of the political demands and chiefly because the strike was threatening the health and safety of the city. The resolution was to be considered tonight by a joint Soldiers' and Workmen's Council of Berlin. It was expected that the council would give it prompt indorsement.

By the Associated Press.

BASLE, March 8.—German Government troops have suppressed the armed revolt at Berlin, according to a dispatch from that city and are now assigned to the task of protecting workmen who want to return to their labors. The popular marine division and two detachments of the Republican guard have been disbanded, it is reported.

COPENHAGEN, March 8.—German Government troops have captured the police quarters at Berlin and have completely cleared Alexander Platz of strikers, according to a Berlin dispatch received here. Fighting has ceased in the center of the city but continues in the Moabit section. The Government troops suffered slight losses and captured many prisoners. To relieve the garrison of the police headquarters, the Government troops turned their heavy artillery against the houses near by and three shells hit a house, which was used as insurgent headquarters, scattering the occupants in all directions. Gas was used effectively in the attack on the strikers, according to the German Gazette of Berlin.

Spartacans Taken Prisoner Will Be Executed, It Is Said.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 8.—A great number of Spartacans were taken prisoner in the fighting in the center of Berlin Friday and will be sentenced to death, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

The fighting in Berlin ended at noon Friday, the dispatch adds, and Government troops now occupy all public buildings and squares, and a number of factories.

The recent statement by Mr. Hines in which he said that the President had no intention of returning the roads to the owners hastily and before a reasonable opportunity had been given for the Congress to legislate is reassuring.

"One administrative step that might be taken in the not distant future and which would pave the way to a return to private ownership and operation, is this suggestion, and I believe it would help the situation:

"Let the President continue the central organization in Washington under a director-general, who, with his staff, will supervise the whole situation, direct policies, and make those adjustments with the railroads that will be required after governmental control ceases. This central organization should direct the operation of the railroads through the companies themselves, rather than through a system of regional directors. In other words, say to the boards of directors and executive officers of each company that from and after a given date they are to take charge of their properties and manage, maintain and operate them for the account of the United States and as may be ordered by the President through the central organization in Washington.

Second Division, Which Included Marines, Lost 24,429, According to Gen. March's Revised Figures—1,390,000 U. S. Troops Engaged.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Battle casualties of the American army in France, as shown by revised divisional records announced today by Gen. March totaled 240,197. The Second Division included the Marine Brigade which suffered heavily around Chateau-Thierry. A combat division contains 27,100 men.

ARRANGEMENTS TO FEED GERMANS TILL HARVEST AGREED ON

given in the acceptance of President Wilson's 14 points by the allies when the armistic was concluded, that there would be no discrimination in tariffs or other trade arrangements as between any of the nations. At the same time, it is urged that in the allotment of raw materials preference should be given to Belgium and France.

Another question under consideration is the relations between the former enemy states and neutral states, and what measures of control should be exercised by the Entente in the matter.

Still another question is to what extent, if at all, the Germans should be permitted to continue after the war the system of cartels, or combinations of producers, through which they mastered the world's trade in certain lines, especially in chemicals, potash and sugar.

The economic commission plans to complete its work by March 15, so that the fruits of its labors may be included, as far as is necessary, in the preliminary peace treaty to be offered Germany. As it also has to deal with the complicated problem of maintaining the parity of international exchange, however, some of the members express doubt that they can finish with their task in such a short time.

Report on Belgian Claims.

The report of the commission on Belgian claims, which was in favor of a revision of the treaty of 1839, has been adopted by the council.

The supreme council has appointed a commission to investigate the question of the German cables, a proposal concerning which was submitted to the council Friday by Secretary of State Lansing. The members of the commission are: James Brown Scott, United States; A. Pearce Higgins, Great Britain; Henri Fromageot, France, Signor Tosti, Italy, and Yamakawa, Japan. The commission, according to the Temps, will decide whether the cables can be treated as prizes of war and, if so, to whom they are to be distributed.

$1000 OFFER ADVERTISED FOR RETURN OF STOLEN JEWELS

The recent success of citizens in obtaining stolen jewels from thieves by offers of reward in newspapers, apparently is the hope of four want ads which appear in today's Post-Dispatch.

H. J. Cummings, 4545 Lindell boulevard, has advertised that he will pay $1000 and ask no questions if the jewels stolen from his residence last October are returned.

George R. Hart, 3417A North Union boulevard, addresses his advertisement: "$50 Reward to Burglar," and asks the return of a revolver, diamond ring and gold ring stolen from his home on Feb. 16.

A telephone number, Sidney 906, is given in one instance where $100 is offered for the return of a stolen purse and jewelry.

Charles Kroll, 3638 Arkansas avenue, advertises that he will pay $50 for the return of a diamond ring taken from him a week ago last night.

Hazel Rosemann, 14 years old, of 4330 College avenue, tried to end her life by drinking a mixture containing poison at her home yesterday afternoon. She had been whipped by her mother, Mrs. David Rosemann, the police were informed. She was taken to the city hospital in a serious condition.

CLAIMS OF AMERICAN CITIZENS AGAINST GERMANY $750,000,000

State Department, Announcing Total, Says Additional Claims Are Expected.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Claims filed by American citizens and concerns with the State Department against Germany and Austria-Hungary total about $750,000,000, the State Department announced today. Additional claims are expected.

Included in the items comprising claims growing out of submarine warfare are losses alleged for death and injury of American citizens; losses suffered in the destruction of or damage to American vessels; losses suffered in connection with American cargoes, both in American and foreign bottoms, and the loss of much valuable personal property other than cargoes.

Losses due to other acts of Germany and Austria-Hungary include destruction and requisition of American properties both in enemy territory and territory occupied at various times by enemy forces.

The State Department's statistics show that American citizens, at the outbreak of war, had about $300,000,000 worth of property in enemy countries, and in those which have been under enemy occupation.

The claims which will run into the thousands are divided into two classes, those arising from submarine atrocities and those due to other acts of the Central empires. The State Department for several months has had a large force engaged in compiling American losses.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS PLAYING BASEBALL ALONG THE RHINE

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

COBLENZ, March 7.—Undeniably, the last few days have seen a joy-of-life wave roll over the American area. One reason is that an abnormally premature spring is here apparently to stay. On trees and shrubbery, buds are greening. The men on leave show unmistakable signs of spring wanderlust as they roam around the Coblenz streets and in the cafes which are cheerful again since the extension of the hours in which light drinking is permissible to 10 p. m. The cafes again offer a wealth of good music and attractions.

The spring weather increased the popularity of steam excursions on the Rhine. Several thousand doughboys now daily avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing Lorelei Rock and the Mouse Tower of Bingen. Excursion steamers passing Coblenz, with bands playing at full blast and doughboys and Y. M. C. A. girls dancing on deck, are the sources of infinite interest to the natives who crowd the Rhine shore to see the American military tourists go by.

Go where you will, you see the men playing baseball—on the banks of the Rhine, in the public squares, even in front of the Palace in Coblenz.

LUDENDORFF DENIES HE PROLONGED WAR

Excerpt From His Book Says He Advised Peace Negotiations After Severe Reverse of Aug. 8.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The American this morning prints what purports to be an excerpt from the forthcoming book of Gen. Ludendorff, who, with Field Marshal von Hindenburg commanded the German forces in the field. The excerpt follows:

"Since I was called to the supreme command August 1916 there never was any chance of a peace by conciliation or negotiation as far as I know. The possibility of any such peace was never shown to me.

"There are elements among the people of Germany who have been incited to believe that I had been an obstacle to peace when peace by negotiations was possible. These people do not know what they are talking about.

"I am ready at any time to give a full account of my actions and can justify everything I have done. Today I accept the present political situation and am willing to serve my country.

Army Obeyed Orders.

"The supreme army command knew nothing of President Wilson's intention of proposing peace negotiations. The German Emperor on Jan. 9, 1917, made his decision which meant ruthless submarine war, and the supreme army command had to obey orders. Any subsequent action on the part of President Wilson could not change the policy designated by the Emperor.

"I have never been opposed to peace. As early as in the spring of 1918 when we were still victoriously invading France and the British were being pushed back to the channel coast, fighting 'with their backs to the wall,' as they said, I confided to party leaders who were close to me that in my opinion it would be best to make peace as quickly as possible.

"I repeated this advice to the party leaders in a more formal manner on June 7, 1918, that is at a time when there was no thought of German reverses.

"However, early in July I still hoped it would be possible to force a peace by continuous attacks upon the enemy lines. These hopes were dashed to earth on July 15, when the tables were turned and German reverses began.

"After the severe defeat of Aug. 8 I gave up the last vestige of hope.

"The morale of our armies was vanishing and there was no longer any prospect to bring about a military decision sufficiently favorable to us which would compel a peace.

"In the middle of August I advised the German Government there was no more chance of a military victory. I counseled the opening of peace negotiations right then and there. But nothing was done. The Government did not even notify the party leaders and my advice was kept a secret.

"For Any Sort of Peace."

"Early in September the supreme army command again emphasized its readiness to accept immediate peace. Any sort of peace would be welcomed, was the decision. The Government seemed to be for peace too but did nothing.

"In the middle of September we renewed our request for some step for an immediate beginning of peace pour parlers and made it very urgent.

"When Mr. Wilson's second answer arrived it became evident that the Entente was determined to humiliate and destroy Germany. Then I began to prepare for a continuation of defensive fighting. Prince Max of Baden, then chancellor of Germany, is quoted as saying the military authorities had been under a delusion up to Oct. 1, but if he included me in the term of "military authorities" he is mistaken. I was in favor of fighting to the bitter end when Mr. Wilson's third note arrived and showed that we were expected to consent to an unconditional surrender.

"In my opinion we could have held out a few months longer, and by that time might have been able to get a more profitable and honorable peace. At any rate the conditions could not possibly be worse than those which Government accepted.

"If our army had been totally defeated and routed our condition could not have been worse."

shevik army was variously estimated from 200,000 to 700,000 men, scattered over the country, and that it consisted of Chinese, Letts, Russian Red Guards and Russians who were forced to serve. Women, he said, were arrested and held as hostages in order to compel their male relatives to join the army.

State of Famine in Petrograd.

Describing conditions in Petrograd, he said that there was a state of famine in the city, as indicated by the long bread lines he had seen. He said the Bolsheviks were printing from fifty to a hundred million rubles of paper money a day and purposely kept no account of it.

Raymond Robins, at that time Red Cross commissioner in Russia, importuned Francis to recognize the Soviet Government, the Ambassador told the committee. He told Robins that if the American Government ordered him to do so, he might comply, or he might resign.

"They don't merit recognition," he testified. "They don't merit even business recognition. They are killing everybody who wears a white collar and is educated and is not a Bolshevik."

He related that some of the provinces had nationalized women and that the Central Government, while not going to that extreme, made marriage and divorces so easy that the sancity of the family was practically destroyed. Bolshevism, he declared, meant a return to barbarism.

Francis said the Bolshevists had greater hatred for the Socialists they had expected to join them than they had for the Allies. They were had been giving them money, hoping thereby to disorganize the country and restore themselves to power.

Replying to questions, he said that he had been denounced as a "capitalistic ambassador" and the American Government as a capitalistic government. The Bolshevik Government told the people that America entered the war at the instance of the New York Stock Exchange in order to find a market for our products.

He testified that Germany now had greater control of industries in Russia than before the war, having a firm grip on the glass, chemical, sugar and other interests. German influence, he said, was seen in every line of human endeavor in the country. In answer to Senator King, he recalled that, just before Lenine and Trotzky seized control, there was a considerable influx of Americans who aided in the Bolshevik propaganda. Some of these, but not all, were New York East Side Jews. Eight hundred Americans arrived in one week. John Reed, whom the Bolshevists wished to appoint consul general to New York, was a leading agitator.

Tells of Relations With Robins.

He said that his relations with Raymond Robins were pleasant, but that, as Robins had been quoted in Russia as a mouthpiece of Ameria, he issued a statement saying that all expresions of American policy not emanating from the American ambassador were unauthorized.

Robins said, according to Francis, that if he, Robins, could get an hour with the President, he could bring about the recognition of the soviet government by America. "I have the goods on my person," he quoted Robins as saying.

Francis assumed that this meant that Robins had a communication from the Soviet to the American Government, but he said that, since his arrival in Washington, he had made inquiries and had not found that Robins had delivered any message to the President.

Though Francis steadily refused to recognize the government of Lenine and Trotzky, he said that he permitted Robins to visit them, because he wished to find out through Robins what was going on.

The Ambassador said that as long as disorder prevailed in Russia peace in Europe was impossible.

"Bolshevism," he said, "is a menace to the peace of the world. There never can be an effective peace till it is eliminated."

Senator Overman asked whether the allied troops should be withdrawn from Russia. Francis replied that, if this were done, all the non Bolshevist Russians in the zone now occupied by the allies would be murdered. He said that Bolshevist literature was being distributed in all the allied areas, including our own, and that the doctrine was being steadily preached to the peasants throughout Russia. Money, he added, was being spent on propaganda in America.

Francis declared that, should the Bolshevists be permitted to remain in power, all Russia would be exploited by the Germans, and within 10 years, under such conditions, Germany would be the victor of the war, in that the nation would be stronger in every way than it was in 1914.

Ambassador Francis told the committee that a complete and thorough understanding of the Russian menace convinced him that, with the Bolshevists in power in Russia, peace, not only in Europe, but throughout the entire world, was an utter impossibility. He said that, even now, there was good reason for believing that German and Austrian officers were with the "Red" forces operating in Northern Russia, and he added that the Germans steadily were getting a grip upon the vitals of Russia and her industries.

In testifying as to information reaching him that Robins carried a Bolshevik proposal to the United States, but which so far as he knew had not been presented, he said in reply to questions that the Soviet Government did not desire to make the proposal to the allies and his information was they wished to conceal the proposal from them.

In support of this information, the Ambassador told the committee that he had heard Robins, as the latter was leaving Russia, say to an Associated Press correspondent that if he could get an hour's conversation with the President he could bring about recognition of the Bolshevik Government.

The Ambassador said the Soviet Government had recently been petitioned not to carry out the denationalization of certain banks, the objects of the petitions being, he said, to allow German agents to obtain control of the stock of these institutions.

He painted a vivid picture of the terror that reigns in the old country of the Czar, and told of one instance where the butters from a courtyard in Petrograd actually ran with blood from the victims of the Bolshevists. Many were killed without even charges being made against them and on several occasion, the Ambassador asserted, wholesale killings were indulged in.

Worse Than Anarchy, He Says.

He said more than 500 innocent hostages were killed at one time and that his observation of conditions and affairs in Russia led him to believe that the Bolshevists in their every-day practices committed excesses far beyond even the wildest dreams of anarchists.

"Anarchists, as I understand them," he declared, "believe only in the destruction of property. The Bolshevists believe in the destruction of property and life as well, for they realize that tehir only means of continuing in power is by killing all those who dare to oppose them."

Speaking of the Czecho-Slovak forces in Russia, Francis said there was not the slightest doubt that they were betrayed by Trotzky at the instigation of the Germans. Trotzky, said the Ambassador, agreed to assist the Czecho-Slovaks to leave Russia if they would lay down their arms and at the same time issued a secret order promising to punish any Russian trainman who in any way assisted them to get out of the country. Later these Czecho-Slovaks were treacherously attacked.

Flat contradiction was given by Ambassador Francis to statements of previous witnesses before the committee to the effect that a free press existed in Russia.

Francis declared that Robbins wanted him "to follow the Bolshevist Government to Moscow when it moved there from Petrograd. The Red Cross representative was said by the Ambassador to have had every facility placed at his disposal by the Bolshevists, with whom he was persona grata. He said that when Robbins traveled the Bolshevists telegraphed ahead to help him in every way and that he even had authorization to have what telegrams he sent put ahead of all other messages, such privileges being denied to the Ambassador.

The Ambassador said that on the night of the suppression of the constituent assembly the Bolshevists expected trouble and three of the many hundred Americans who came to Russia were on guard at the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He declared these to have been John Reed, a writer, who has appeared before the committee, a man named Humphries and another named Reinstein, whose home was said to be in Buffalo. The Ambassador asserted that in a single week 800 Americans arrived in Russia and that many of them associated with the Bolshevists soon thereafter. The Ambassador said he warned the State Department and recommended that passports be not issued to Americans to come to Russia.

Albert Rhys Williams, a previous witness before the committee, was referred to by Francis, who said Williams freely associated with the Bolshevists and was an advocate of their principles.

Beginning with his arrival at Petrograd, when there was no whisper of the coming overthrow of the czar, Francis explained that his mission primarily was to negotiate a new commercial treaty to replace the one abrogated because of Russia's attitude toward traveling American citizens of Jewish birth. He told how the foreign minister informed him that no treaties would be negotiated until Russia's relations with the allies were further defined and how shortly thereafter the conclusion of a treaty between Japan and Russia was announced. The explanation to the American Ambassador was that only commercial treaties had been referred to in the conversation with him.

Germans Were Entrenched.

Francis said he found the Germans so strongly entrenched in Russia that they could not have been dislodged in years. Even the war had not broken their control over Russian industry.

Francis said there was not the slightest doubt in his mind that Lenine was from the very beginning an agent of the German Government.

"The Germans never would have permitted him to come through Germand had they not known he would be useful to them." the ambassador declared. "Moreover, Lenine disbursed large amounts of money. I believe, however, that Lenine was even more concerned about starting a world-wide revolution than he was about furthering the interests of Germany. He later not only permitted but encouraged the reign of terror which still prevails in Russia."

Ambassador Francis described in some detail events preceding and immediately following the overthrow of the Czar and the ascension to power of Kerensky. He said he believed Kerensky made his big mistake when he failed to arrest and try for treason both Lenine and Trotzky when the pair first appeared as factors in the political situation. His personal opinion, founded upon intimate knowledge of conditions, he said, was that Lenine actually was the brains of the Bolshevist movement, that he was a fanatic, but at the same time held some sincere ideas. Trotzky was described as being purely an adventurer, who was dominated by Lenine whenever the pair were in disagreement on any subject. Both, he said, were usurpers and did not represent 10 per cent of the Russian people.

The Kerensky Government, the ambassador asserted in response to questions by Senator King, really stood for law and order and did its best under trying conditions to set up a stable Democratic Government.

Monarchists Aided Bolsheviki.

All during the Kerrensky regime, Francis said, the Bolshevists were trying to undermine the Government and they were given considerable assistance by monarchist advocates and the "Black Hundred." These sympathizers with the monarchist idea thought that it might be restored should the Bolshevists come into power because they believed the Bolshevists would last only a short time and then the entire revolution could be overthrown in favor of a monarchy.

The Ambassador said it was upon his recommendation that he was authorized by the State Department to recognize the provisional Government after the overthrow of the Czar, and he added that he established no relations with the Bolshevist Government, but, on the contrary, he advised the State Department constantly that the Bolshevists should not be recognized. He described the Bolshevists as having two objects in view when they seized the Government; one was to establish what they termed the rule of the proletariat and the other was to help the cause of Germany by forcing Russia out of the war.

Tells of Robins' Activities.

Francis said he personally was delighted when the Government of the Czar was overthrown. He added there was as much difference between the Government of the Bolshevists and the Kerensky Government as there was between the provisional Government and that of the autocracy.

Ambassador Francis was questioned about the activities in Russia of Raymond Robins, when head of the American Red Cross Mission there. The Ambassador said after he received instructions from the State Department that no American representative should have any official connection with the Bolshevist Government, Robins had gone to the headquarters of the Soviets, and asked about the principles of the Bolshevists.

"I called Robins in," the Ambassador went on, "and asked him about his visit to the Soviet headquarters. He told me they had told him their principles and said he approved of them. He added, however, that he did not approve of the excesses committed by the Soviet Government. I cabled back to the State Department and asked whether the instructions included Red Cross men in uniform. The department, in response, said that they did, and that Davison, head of the Red Cross, was going to instruct Robins to discontinue his relations with the Soviets. Robins did receive a cablegram so instructing him. I told Robins I thought it was unwise for him to sever his relations abruptly, and, moreover, I wanted to know what the Bolshevists were doing. So I cabled Washington along these lines, but never received a reply, and Robins continued to go to Soviet headquarters."

"Did Robins urge you," asked Senator Nelson, "to recognize the Bolshevist Government?"

"I thought Robins was importuning me to recommend that the Bolshevist Government be recognized by the United States," replied the Ambassador. "I told Robins I would not make such a recommendation because the Bolshevists did not merit even business recognition, because they were killing everybody that wore a white collar."

Some Women Nationalized.

The Ambassador said he knew it to be a fact that the Bolshevists in several provinces had nationalized women. Several previous witnesses had denied that such was the case. Francis said it was quite true the Central Soviet had not issued a decree nationalizing women, but that it had published a decree providing that marriage and divorce could be engaged in by two parties simply by the methods of giving notice of their intentions.

The Bolshevists in recent months, the Ambassador said, had been following the plan of getting Russians into the Red Guard by means of arresting women members of their families and holding them as hostages. The great bulk of the Russian people were hungry, he asserted, and even three porters and two women left to care for the American embassy building in Petrograd were on the verge of starvation. The State Department has been trying to get food to them through Sweden.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

THE best proof of the popularity of Paige Cars is the shortage of Paige Cars. We mean that literally—a shortage of New Paiges and Used Paiges.

We have never had enough Paige Sixes—either the New Series five-passenger Linwood or the New Series seven-passenger Essex—to satisfy the world-wide demand. That shortage today is more acute than ever.

The explanation for that lies fairly and squarely in Paige Worth. Paige Owners find that Paige Quality pays in Economy and long Service precisely as Paige Beauty pays in Satisfaction. Low up-keep, absence of repair-bills, continuous running, are the foundation upon which Paige Supremacy has been built.

How Men Were Wounded.

Sergt. McCorkle, who was in E Company, was wounded Sept. 29 as he was advancing under fire in the Argonne forest. He was wounded, he said, about 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, just as his company had filtered through a stretch of woods and was about to reform preparatory to further attack. A shell burst almost directly in front of him, he said, and he was struck by flying fragments. Only a few minutes later Lieut. Humphrey Price, the company commander, was hit, leaving only Sergeants in command. McCorkle attended the first officers' training camp at Fort Riley, Kan.

Private Melvin of the 354th Infantry was wounded Nov. 1 by shrapnel in the Argonne, while his company was advancing under heavy fire. The shell which wounded him killed three and wounded three others. Melvin said that he was strongly impressed with the German aviators who, he declared, due to long flying experience, were more proficient than American flyers with his division. By a coincidence, Melvin was picked up after he was wounded by two stretcher bearers from Fulton, Mo., where he formerly lived.

Private Robert L. Kohner of the 137th Infantry was wounded during the Argonne drive, being shot through the abdomen Sept. 29. His company, he said, had attacked with the division Sept. 26 and had advanced several kilometers at the time he was wounded.

MISS NORMA COOK .. J. NORMAN COOK ...

BEVERIDGE JOINS ATTACK ON LEAGUE

Former Senator Declares Europe Wants Us to Underwrite Her Ventures.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 8.—The speaking campaign in opposition to the league of nations plan in the form advocated by President Wilson and indorsed by former President Taft was continued at a meeting that filled Tremont Temple tonight. As in earlier speeches, Senator William E. Borah, Republican, of Idaho, denounced the proposed league as a league of diplomats rather than of nations, with an executive council in which Asiatic and European members could outvote America on purely American issues.

Senator Charles S. Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, reiterated his conviction that the United States ought not to be committed to a new and far-reaching national policy in advance of a thorough knowledge of every detail involved in so momentous an undertaking.

Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, who was chairman of the Progressive national convention in 1912, presided. In introducing the other speakers, Beveridge attacked the proposed international constitution as a partnership in which Europe and Asia would furnish the liabilities and the United States supply the assets.

Resolutions indorsing the attitude of United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge toward the proposed league of nations and opposing the acceptance of the constitution of the league in its present form were adopted.

Attacks on the league by Senators Borah and Thomas and Beveridge drew frequent applause and repeatedly the audience rose to its feet and cheered. A minority at times interrupted the speakers to dissent, but counter demonstrations drowned their voices.

When Senator Borah declared that no provision for the freedom of Ireland had been made he started a demonstration that was helped along by a young woman in the gallery who unfurled a flag of the "republic of Ireland."

As the meeting was called to order a man in the audience called for three cheers for the President and got them, but after that those who sympathized with the speakers had the meeting well in hand.

At the suggestions of Senator Beveridge, who presided, it was voted to send the following telegram to Senator Lodge:

"We, citizens of Massachusetts, regardless of party, in Tremont Temple assembled, send you their unqualified support in your efforts to secure the future of America and the peace of the world."

Senator-Elect McCormick Attacks League.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Senator-elect Medill McCormick of Illinois, in a speech tonight before a Swedish Republican club, declared that, under the present draft of the League of Nations, Siam would have an equal vote with the United States, England would have the greatest navy, France the greatest army, and "whatever dangers may threaten us in the years to come unless we break the treaty we can never arm in our own defense without the consent of the enemy who threatens us."

VERDICT IN THE COOK CASE MANSLAUGHTER

Slayer of Daughter's Admirer Wants New Trial Because of Advance Rumors on Finding.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 8.—J. Norman Cook was found guilty of manslaughter today for the killing, last summer, of William E. Bradway, the middle-aged admirer of Cook's daughter, Norma, 18 years old.

Under the indeterminate sentence law Cook is subject to imprisonment for from one year to life. He displayed no emotion when the verdict was read.

Counsel for Cook will seek a new trial, one of the grounds being that news of the verdict got out hours before the document was opened in court. A Chicago newspaper early today printed an extra edition saying Cook had been found guilty after another newspaper had said he had been acquitted.

Judge Kersten also requested the State's Attorney to investigate the charge. The verdict was reached last night, after which the jurors were taken to a hotel. Judge Kersten asked each one if he had divulged the finding in any way, and each one replied in the negative.

Cook stabbed Bradway on the night of Aug. 29, as the result, Cook pleaded, of the attentions of Bradway, 49 years old, to his daughter, Norma, then 17 years of age. Cook maintained that he was certain Bradway's entertainment of Norma boded no good to the girl.

A telegram from the Chief of Police at Kansas City, Mo., was received by the Detective Bureau here today stating that the Kansas City authorities have a warrant against Cook charging grand larceny. The complainant is Mrs. Lucy B. Bradford.

Woman Alleges Cook Got $300 From Her and Disappeared.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 8.—A complaint against J. Norman Cook, charging larceny, was filed here more than a year ago upon compalint of Lucy B. Aurnb, now Mrs. Lucy Bradford. In her complaint, she recites that some years ago she and Cook were both injured in the same railroad wreck; that he, representing himself as the claim agent of the railroad on which the accident occurred, obtained for her $8000 from the railroad company; that later, in response to a letter from Cook, she came from her home at Erie, Kan. to Kansas City and met Cook in a hotel, expecting to marry him; that, instead, he took a draft for $300 from her and disappeared. This event, the complaint says, occured December 1, 1917, but the complaint was not filed until June, 1918.

22D WARD VOTERS WHO SIGNED FOR RECALL, LISTED

10 WARDS WITH QUOTA OF SIGNERS

Civic League Wants More Canvassers and Is Paying 8 and 10 Cents a Name to Solicitors.

The names of Twenty-second Ward voters who signed petitions for the recall of Mayor Kiel were listed during the primary election Friday by Republican precinct workers, with the help of the Republican judges and clerks. This became known yesterday to the officials of the Citizens' Referendum League, which is co-operating with the Civic League in circulating the recall petitions, because of the Mayor's mill tax and franchise agreement with the United Railways Co.

A precinct worker in the Twenty-second Ward, who obtained the list in one of the precincts, instead of giving it to the ward committeeman, A. C. Kunze, gave it to Secretary Proske of the Referendum League. When this worker was seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter he asked that his name be not printed, but said he, and workers in all the precincts of the ward, had been instructed by Kunze to get the lists from the Republican election officials. The Republican judge and clerk in the precinct made the copy for him, he said. The names of signers of the petitions are indicated, on the poll books, by numbers, written after them by the Election Board's checkers.

Schmoll's Version.

Kunze was said to be out of the city when a Post-Dispatch reporter sought to get his version of the matter. Chairman Schmoll of the Republican City Committee said he had no knowledge of the listing of the names in the Twenty-second Ward, and declared it was not a part of any general plan, so far as he knew.

"If we wanted the names of the signers of the recall petitions," Schmoll said, "we could go to the Election Board's office and copy them from the petitions themselves."

Chairman Arnold of the Election Board, when asked as to the matter, also said the signatures were a public record, and could be copied by the Republican committee or anyone else who might wish to copy them. The Post-Dispatch, at the time when the Election Board was checking up the petitions, asked for a list of 100 rejected names, and the board refused the request, only Arnold voting to grant it. However, Arnold said, the members of the board all hold that the lists of signatures now constitute a public record, and are open to inspection. He said some of the petitions had been inspected by representatives of the Civic League.

Ten wards, according to Civic League officials, have reached the required 20 per cent of signatures to the petitions for a special election on the recall. These petitions, supplementing those now on file with the Election Board, must be filed by midnight March 20. The new wards in which the 20 per cent mark was reported as being reached yesterday were the Third and Tenth. Those which were previously claimed were the Twenty-fourth, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth and Eighteenth.

Requirements in City.

The recall workers must get not only the signatures of 20 per cent of the registered voters in 19 wards, but they must also get a total of 20 per cent of all the voters in the city. This means that they must work the other nine wards intensively or must get large margins over the requirements in the 19 wards.

The Civic League desires more canvassers, and is paying 8 and 10 cents a name, according to the manner and territory in which they work. The League's office in the Board of Education Building will be open today to engage convassers and receive reports.

"In the Tenth Ward," Secretary Budenz of the League said yesterday, "the League found numerous evidences of the work of city firemen for the Mayor, they having been in that territory with a petition favoring the Mayor's deal. This is only one example of the activity of the Department of Public Safety. Some moving picture theater proprietors, plumbers and some others obtaining permits from the building department express a fear of punishment if they sign these petitions. This department, of which James N. McKelvey in director, seems to be the most active against the recall movement."

Emma Goldman in Prison Is Still Emma, Says Prison Board Chief

Penitentiary Board Chairman Tells Investigators She Hasn't Done Her Work and Other Women Look Up to Her.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 8.—William R. Painter, chairman of the State Prison Board, testifying this afternoon before the legislative investigating committee, said that Emma Goldman, woman anarchist leader, was the most troublesome prisoner in the Missouri Penitentiary, and that she never had done the work assigned to her, but that she never had been punished, the Prison Board believing that punishment in her case was inadvisable.

He hastened to qualify his statement, however, by saying that she was not unruly and did not violate the prison rules, but said the other women in the prison considered her a "tin god;" that they ran to her with all complaints, and that, as a result of the talks she had with the other women, they were very difficult to handle.

"I am satisfied that, in six months from now, when Miss Goldman will be gone from the prison, the women's department will be more easily handled than it is now," Chairman Painter said.

Committee Waits for Farris.

The investigating committee, which was appointed after Representative Farris of Phelps County had charged on the floor of the House that there were many irregularities in the conduct of the prison, tried to get to work this morning, the idea being that Farris would appear in the role of vigorous prosecutor, but after waiting an hour in the morning without Farris appearing, an adjournment was taken until afternoon.

Although he was in the city, he did not appear at the afternoon session. After a wait of another hour, the remaining members of the committee announced they would hear explanations from members of the Prison Board on the charges contained in several resolutions adopted by the House calling for the investigation

Farris' principal complaint was to the effect that the Prison Board had paroled many gunmen from St. Louis and Kansas City, who had long criminal records, but that it virtually was impossible for a country boy who had committed his first offense in the heat of passion to obtain release from the prison until the term for which he was sentenced had expired.

Case of Complaint.

It has developed during the past few days that one of the cases on which there has been complaint that the release of "a country boy" could not be obtained, was that of two brothers, Ernest and Edward Basham, who were convicted of murder in Maries County and have served eight years of life sentences.

Joseph J. Crites of Rolla, where Farris resides, and who was a frequent visitor to Jefferson City during the last session of the Legislature on matters connected with legislation, was attorney for the Bashams and has made an unsuccessful attempt to obtain paroles for them.

Witnesses at Inquiry.

In addition to Chairman Painter, J. Kelly Pool and Henry Andrae, members of board, testified, as did Lester S. Parker, superintendent of industries at the prison, and H. B. Church Jr., a Jefferson City real estate dealer.

Pool said that 56 per cent of the convicts in the prison were sent from St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, and 44 per cent from the remainder of the State. He denied that greater number of paroles went to convicts from the cities, saying that since the board took office in 1917, less than 43 per cent had gone to city convicts and 57 per cent to convicts from the country.

Three hundred and eighty-five paroles have been issued since July, 1917, by the board.

Parker denied that the contract system had been retained in the prison in any form. He said that the Legislature in abolishing the system had directed that the State take complete charge of the factories and their operation had not provided sufficient funds to permit the Prison Board to purchase all machinery and all supplies needed.

The machinery of all the factories it was desired to retain had been purchased, he said, and in some of the factories the prison officials purchased all the materials, operated the factories and marketed the product. In others, he said, a part of the materials were purchased by the board and the product marketed, the customer furnished a part of the materials and when the product was completed purchased the finished article at a price which paid the State for the labor and for all expenses connected with the manufacture.

In a third class of factories, he said, all the work was done on the basis of buying the materials from the customer, making them up and selling them to the customer. "The fault of the old contract system," Parker said, "was that the contractor set the task, put his own overseers over the convicts, made his own working conditions for his own personal profit without regard to the prisoners' welfare or morale, and the most severe punishment was meted out to those who failed in their tasks.

"Under this plan the Prison Board sets the task which is well within the limits of the prisoners' ability to do. The Prison Board has complete control of every detail of the work in the factories.

"There are no excessive punishments."

He said that if sufficient money were provided all the factories could operate solely as state factories, purchasing materials in the open market and marketing the product in the open market, but that the business could not be carried on without funds.

Sold Some Mules.

Painter, Pool and Andrae denied they gave any personal attention to anything except their prison work, though Andrae said he had purchased and sold two cars of mules during the last few months. Pool said he had given up control of his newspaper in Centralia to his son and Painter said he had given up all control of his newspaper in Carrollton. Pool said that at night he sometimes wrote editorials for his paper which were put into type by a Jefferson City newspaper, which used such of the mas it wished, giving him the type for use in his paper.

Painter denied there was collusion in the purchase of supplies, saying the charge probably grew out of the fact that large quantities of supplies were purchased from a wholesale grocery and a produce house in Jefferson City. He said it was more convenient and cheaper to purchase many articles in Jefferson City and that no purchases had been made here which could have been made at a lower price elsewhere.

Regarding the 456-acre farm Church testified that it was worth from $150 to $175 an acre and that at the present time it could be sold for $200 an acre. The prison board has agreed to purchase it at $200 an acre, including all personal property, including cattle, buildings, mules, horses and a large quantity of wheat and corn.

The prison officials declared untrue the charge that physically incapacitated convicts had been put on road work. He said, however, that there had been some trouble with convicts on such work and that in Washington, Mo., convicts had obtained liquor and become intoxicated. He said he never again would permit convicts to go to "wet" counties to work on roads.

I. C. C. CAN REJECT REPORT UPHOLDING BRIDGE ARBITRARY

should be required, as a result of this proceeding, to absorb the Terminal Association's charge of 20 cents a ton and that the result would be that the shippers of nearly two-thirds of the entire coal tonnage of the St. Louis district would be required to pay 13 cents a ton more than the shippers of the other third, in order that the one-third might be placed on a rate parity with the shippers of the East St. Louis coal."

The examiner cites the Illinois coal cases decided in January, 1915, where the propriety of the 20-cent differential was upheld and says that conditions have not changed materially since then. The construction of the municipal bridge, he states, has no material effect on the issue.

"Perhaps the only power that the commission in any event," he says, "would have in connection with the use of this bridge by the trunk lines would be to require them on a reasonable and proper basis to establish through routes and joint rates with some municipal or other railway which might in future be constructed to operate over it."

Cost of Bridges.

The record clearly indicates, the report says, that the service rendered by the transportation agencies is greater both from the standpoint of mileage and of expense per mile on the St. Louis than on the East St. Louis coal. It is stated that the service beyond St. Louis is over expensive bridges "equal in investment of capital to many miles of ordinary railroad," and through a congested metropolitan district where the cost of terminal acquisition and upkeep is great.

Also it is said that the service on the coal delivered only on the rails of the terminal association itself is materially greater on the St. Louis than the East St. Louis coal.

The report recognizes the propriety of a difference in treatment of differentials between contiguous points on long and short haul traffic. It says that no showing of unreasonableness has been made with respect to the differential itself.

Even were it conceded that St. Louis and East St. Louis form one industrial district the examiner says there is no law to require that the rate shall be the same to all points of delivery in the same district. Nor is there any requirement in law that origin and destination groups shall be of similar area.

Summary of Report.

The examiner says in his summing up:

"The case is one to be decided as a practical proposition in rate making in which the interests not only of the shippers of the St. Louis district, but those of the East St. Louis district as well, are to be considered. East St. Louis is right at the door of the Illinois coal deposits and is entitled to the benefits of that location. The two cities are in active competition in the location of new industries. Each has its advantages and its disadvantages, some social, others industrial and economic. East St. Louis has grown rapidly in recent years, but there is no showing that this has been due to any maladjustment of the rates on Illinois coal at the expense of St. Louis, which has also made rapid progress industrially.

"The soundness of what is understood to be the contention on which the complainant chiefly relies, that because of their membership in the Terminal Association the proprietary lines are required, as a matter of law and regardless of a material difference in extent of character of service, to make the same rate to St. Louis as to East St. Louis cannot be conceded. The weakness in this contention lies in the undue importance attached to the mere fact of a common terminal property and its operation as a unit.

Problem of Separation.

"If this unit, by dissolution of the association and a division of its terminals among its members were in the near future to be shredded out into separate terminals for each of the proprietary lines, the situation would not be essentially different from what it is now, yet the contention now made could not then reasonably be made that the relative services of the separate through lines from the mines to final points of delivery in St. Louis and East St. Louis would play no part in the respective rates to the two points.

"These proprietary lines have incurred no greater obligation from a rate standpoint by reason merely of their combination of terminals. The propriety of that combination under the anti-trust law has been passed upon by the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Upon all the facts the conclusion of the commission should be that the complaint should be dismissed."

Folk Points Out That Examiner's Report May Not Be Approved.

Former Gov. Folk, counsel for the Chamber of Commerce in its fight on the arbitrary, said last night that the tentative decision of Examiner Mackley does not necessarily mean that the Interstate Commerce Commission will uphold the bridge arbitrary of 20 cents a ton on coal. Folk was formerly counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission and is familiar with its practices.

"Under the present practice of the commission," Folk said last night, "no commissioner sees the tentative report of an examiner, and it merely serves as a basis for the arguing of the case before the commission. The tentative report concludes nothing.

"The case will be set for argument before the commission within a few days. It is not unusual for the commission to take exactly a contrary view from the examiner. In fact, very few tentative reports are adopted without change.

"The arbitrary will be fought until it is removed, no matter how long that takes."

WOOD IN PLEA FOR DISCHARGED SOLDIERS

Major-General Declares Nothing Should Prevent Sound Preparedness on Part of U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Major-General Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Department, in a public address today, warned the American public not to let "anything, whether a league of nations, a Hague tribunal or an international arbitration system, replace a policy of sound, rational preparedness," if the country is to remain in a state of peace.

The General, who spoke at the opening of the Methodist Centenary movement, declared that "verbal massage, however skillfully applied, will not maintain a permanent peace."

He reiterated his well-known stand for universal military training, asserting that whatever may be said by its opponents, there was "nothing bad against it."

Warns Against Bolshevism.

With "radicalism and wretched and miserable Bolshevism stalking through the country," said the army officer, "some soldiers would offer a fertile field for its seeds of discontent if they were allowed to go home feeling that the country had not been as thoughtful of them as was their due.

"We sent them to our home camps and overseas," he continued, "with every form of encouragement, making them feel they were crusaders in a holy cause. Now they are coming home, having fought in the war which was as much our war as it was the war of any country from the day it began.

"Some of these men, wearing the uniform of our country, lack work, funds, a place to sleep, even food. Some of them have wasted their money; thousands have been drugged and robbed. Many of them are unreasonably irritable, as a result of shell shock or the constant mental photograph before them of slaughtered human beings. But they are our soldiers and we must return them honorably to private life."

The General declared that men discharged from the training camps were entitled to as much consideration as those returning from Europe. He called upon his audience, composed of wealthy business men of the Methodist faith, to lend their aid, here and throughout the country, to the task of providing work for every one in need of it.

KROGER STORE ROBBED OF $122

A man went to the Kroger store at 912 North Whittier street about 8:30 o'clock last night and, waiting until several customers had made purchases and departed, ordered 25 cents worth of lard.

While the clerk, Patrick O'Connell of 4348 Easton avenue, was in the back part of the store getting the lard the man walked over to the cashier's cage where Miss Louise Maurer, 4167 Enright avenue, was counting the day's receipts, and snatched $122 from her desk. As he backed out of the store he held his hand in his overcoat pocket and threatened to shoot anyone who followed him. He escaped with the money.

PIKE COUNTY CIDER TO BE SAFE, DYER SAYS

Federal Judge Will Except It After Prohibition, He Tells Society of Native Sons.

Pike County, whose pride that she has sent 400 of her sons to be among the leading citizens of St. Louis, is exceeded only by the pride of those St. Louisans that they are natives of Pike County, was the theme of reminiscence, praise and pleasantry last night at the annual dinner of the Pike County Colony in St. Louis at the Planters Hotel.

The county sent about 25 of the "home folks" to see if the allegiance of her offspring needed refreshing and finding them not wanting, all joined in making the evening one of honor to the son considered most distinguished among those present, Judge David P. Dyer of the United States District Court.

As speakers gave their praises tempering them now and then with stories of his humanness—including one about a seven-up game in which he won $6—Judge Dyer sat back in his toastmaster's chair, his face in smiles and his chuckles audible in the room.

Just once did the smile leave him. That was when Congressman Cleveland A. Newton declared that the Judge preferred in his heart the presidency of the Pike County Colony to the robes of the Judge's bench Judge Dyer's mien instantly was serious and he nodded vigorously in assent.

Champ Clark Absent.

The other son whom Pike County loves most to honor, Champ Clark, expressed regret through a letter to Judge Dyer that contracted engagements prevented his attendance.

There were 200 Pikers present most of whom were addressed about the tables as "Judge" or "Colonel." Gray-heads were "Sam" and "John."

The chief speaker was Former U. S. Judge John F. Phillips of Kansas City, who is 84 years old, the only surviving member of the Missouri constitution convention of 1861. His speech was delightful to Pike's inveterate politicians, carrying them back to the days when political oratory was an art. Judge Walter S. Sanborn of St. Paul, Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Former Judge Henry S. Priest and others at the speakers' table congratulated him warmly at its close. The peroration was an eulogy of Champ Clark.

Others who spoke were Mayor Kiel, Congressman Newton, Ras Pearson of Louisiana and J. D. Hostetter, Pike County's representative in the Missouri legislature.

The "Political Tarantula."

Many pleasantries over certain well-known characteristics of Pikers passed about during the evening. Judge Phillips told of the presence in the county of "the political tarantula, which has a bite whisky will not cure, the only antidote being the fat of a good office." Once he referred to Pikers as reminding him of "the silk stocking elder of the church who came to me asking 'where can I get a loan for some money at 10 per cent which I have come into possession of through the Providence of God in the death of my father."

One of Judge Dyer's observations was "no man has got a ring in the nose of a Piker." Another was: "Pike County at primary election is not more than a quarter of a mile from hell, with everyone quarreling and denouncing one another. But let a stranger step in and attempt to say anything about a Piker and the whole county will pitch onto him."

A West Point Appointment.

Judge Dyer, who is 81 years old, gave realization of what a stretch of time that is by remarking that one Piker, Arthur Murray, became a Major-General of the United States Army and had passed the age of retirement, adding, "I appointed him to West Point in 1870."

One of the guests at the dinner was former Gov. R. A. Campbell of Pike County, who is 93 years old, but who has missed none of the 22 dinners of the St. Louis colony.

Clarksville, Pike County, cider was the drink of the dinner. Judge Dyer declared that no matter how hard Pike County cider gets after prohibition goes into effect, it never will be embarrassed in his court.

Among those at the speakers' table not heretofore mentioned were: Former Judge Matt G. Reynolds, D. C. Biggs, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of the St. Louis district; Col. D. S. Stanley, United States Quartermaster in St. Louis; Joseph M. Bryson, general attorney for the M., K. & T., and former Judge Albert D. Nortoni.

Nicholas M. Bell, former Excise Commissioner, exercised his right as a Pike countyan and Missourian to light and smoke with gusto a corncob pipe when cigars were passed.

Col. Dave Ball, who was not born in Pike County but was bitten by its "political tarantula," remaining uncured, was present by virtue of the fact, as explained by Judge Philips that "he was born in Lincoln County, but fell out of his trundle bed, rolled into Pike County and got up running."

NOTED POET, DIVORCED RECENTLY, WEDS AGAIN

Maeterlinck, Whom Georgette Le Blanc Freed Few Weeks Ago, Chooses Another Actress Bride.

By the Associated Press.

NICE, March 8.—Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgian playwright, several days ago married Rene Dahon, a young woman of Nice, it became known today.

Maeterlinck has lived in Nice for 10 years.

NEW YORK, March 8.—News of Maurice Maeterlinck's marriage to Mlle. Rene Dahon was received without surprise here by Henry Russell, close friend of the poet-dramatist, and American representative of the Interallied Art Association, under whose auspices the Maeterlinck plays are produced.

Russell said that Maeterlinck had been divorced quietly in Paris a few weeks ago by Mme. Georgette Le Blanck Maeterlinck, actress and dramatist, and that he had known for some time of the poet's attraction to Mlle. Dahon. The bride, according to Russell, is popular in Paris as an actress, having become famous several years ago as "Tylti" in Maeterlinck's drama, "The Bluebird." The former Mme Maeterlinck appeared with Mlle. Dahon at that time, taking the role of "Light." Maeterlinck is 58 years old and his bride 26.

The divorce, according to Russell, has necessitated a change in the cast of Maeterlinck's new play, "A Burgomaster of Belgium," which is to open here soon, as the poet's first wife withdrew from the company upon applying for a divorce. She was widely known as an actress in the United States, having created the role of Maeterlinck's "Melissandte" in Boston several years ago.

Georgette Le Blanc's Story of Her Romance With Maeterlinck.

Maeterlinck and his wife were considered an ideal couple. Both were equally known to fame, he as a great mystic poet and she as a great opera singer and actress, beautiful and always wondrously clad. During a visit to the United States a few years ago, she told the story of her romance, frankly avowing that it was she who took the initiative in their courtship. Her story, as she told it then, follows:

"I was singing at the Opera Comique in Paris. I had made a successful debut and I had signed a three years' contract. I came across a book of Maurice Maeterlinck, philosophy translated from your Emerson. I read the 'Preface.' I was enraptured. I read and read, and it was like talking the things my mind had dreamed about. I read once and twice, and one night I remained awake all night.

"I thought of the book and the mind behind the book. 'He is mine; he is my husband. He is my love, the only love I have ever known. I shall meet him. I shall love him; he must love me."

GEORGETTE LIBLANC MAETERLINCK

Determined to Meet and Win Him.

Born with an independent spirit, a dual nature that has always been a trial to my respectable Norman family, I betook myself to Brussels, where I learned the Belgian, Maeterlinck, lived, and I sought his acquaintance. It was hard.

"First, I had to meet someone who knew him. I did—a man. He told me that Maeterlinck was "sauvage;" he detested people, and especially the unreal people of the stage. I was 'an unreal woman of the stage,' but I was real in the admiration I felt for the writer of that wonderful book.

"'Besides,' said my friend, 'Maeterlinck is not what your imagination pictures him. He is old, he has a beard long and grizzly; he has passed into old age.' I was disappointed and yet I still wanted to meet him, saying to the man that I should like to love him even as a daughter loves her father. 'If I cannot have him as my love, I shall meet and adopt him as a pere,' I told him.

"A party was given and I was invited. I shall never forget that moment when I looked upon my Maeterlinck. Young, beautiful, strong—a man among men. I shrieked out; I ran wildly toward him. He was afraid of me. He feared me. I liked that. The baby tiger, that was it. He discovered that, perhaps.

"I was dressed most originally. I have never dressed in the mode. I detest the mode. It only accentuates the stupidity of the majority of women. I wore a close-fitting gown of black with a train. I wore a diamond between my eyes. I wore no other jewelry, no other gems. My heart was aflame, my eyes blazed, my cheeks burned like coals.

Awed by Her Audacity.

"'My man; my man; you are mine,' I said, and I took his hand. He was awed, overcome with my audacity, as he thought it to be. But it was only my love which had come like a tempest in a forest. He was so wonderful, but so shy, so diffident.

"Finally, he became interested in me. He asked me pertinent questions of myself, of my life, and I told him the truth of all. There is never anything to hide in a perfectly truthful person's life. I told him I had two natures; one of the stage, joyous, indifferent to realities, whimsical, pleasure-loving, and that the other self was the housewife self.

"The woman who would and could make sacrifices and who could and would be loyal and patient and enduring and kind. In both I was honest. In each I could be happy at times, but what I wanted was to have one dominate the other. I wanted the real woman, the serious creature that dwelt with midnight oil over his philosophy, and the woman who wanted to live some one real purpose, to dominate.

"Maeterlinck listened in his queer, bird-like way. He did not know whether it was the truth after all. It was interesting, he acknowledged, and new in his experience. I was sensitive. I am sensitive and have always been sensitive.

"We parted, but love still lingered in my heart. Every day for three months I wrote to Maeterlinck and told him my every thought. I never saw him nor would I see him. My letters told my story to him. He tried to see me. He tried in vain.

"At last, after three months, when I had no thought of aught but him, he came to me and we have loved for all time. Today I love with an infiniteness of love that was unknown then to me. I tell you this to show how woman is the aggressor."

Maeterlinck purchased and partly restored the ancient and ruined abbey of St. Wandrille, near Rouen, for his wife, and there they gave wonderful private performances of his poetic dramas in summer for the entertainment of their friends. Their winter holidays were spent on his estate at Nice. They seemed to be truly soul mates, and the shattering of their romance doubtless has stunned the literary and artistic world of France.

PETER NIESEN ACQUITTED OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE

Peter Niesen, 30 years old, of 1725 South Ninth street, was acquitted of a charge of first degree murder by a jury in Judge Taylor's division of the Criminal Court last night, following deliberation of an hour and a half.

Niesen was charged with having fired shots that killed Albert Wellman, 35, of 1717 Dolman street, in his confectionery and ice cream parlor at 1704 South Fourteenth street on the night of Dec. 8, last.

That evening a man entered the store and, after asking for the cashier walked to the rear of the shop to talk to Wellman. Without warning the stranger drew a revolver and fired three shots. Wellman fell mortally wounded. He died the next day in the city hospital.

A young man and woman who were seated in the place at the time heard no quarrel or demand for money. The stranger ran from the store, pursued by Wellman's wife, who twice caught up with her husband's assailant, who turned and fired shots at her. Niesen was arrested several days after the occurrence, but Mrs. Wellman was not positive in her identification. Several neighbors said Niesen was the man they saw running away from the store, with a revolver in his hand, but Niesen produced witnesses who declared he was at home sick at the time the shooting took place.

WORLD-WIDE RED CROSS ASSOCIATION PLANNED

American Society to Lead Move for International Body to Promote Health in All Nations.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Plans for organization of an international Red Cross, to be led by the American Red Cross, in a great peace time campaign to prevent disease, relieve suffering and "make the world what the war was fought for—a better place to live in," were outlined by Dr. Livingston Farrand, newly-appointed chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, at a conference of Atlantic division chapter delegates here today. About 1500 delegates were present.

Immediately after his address, Dr. Farrand sailed for France, to prepare for an international conference of Red Cross societies which will meet in Geneva 30 days after the signing of peace. The international organization will be proposed at this conference.

Dr. Farrand announced that a nation-wide appeal for funds to carry on the organization's work would be made soon.

For a World Campaign.

Dr. Farrand said: "The war has shown that the great possibilities of the Red Cross lie in time of peace, and we propose now that not only shall the American Red Cross assume its responsibility in the United States and possibly take the lead in an international movement, but we now assume and propose that the allied red crosses, that the red crosses of the Central Powers, shall all unite for an international movement for the prevention of disease, for the relief of suffering, for the possibility of making the world what the war was fought for—a better place to live in.

"It seems to me that now we have an organization that is able to bring about those ends."

The Red Cross "home service," originally begun in the interests of families of soldiers, he said, would be extended to all homes in every section where such service is needed.

Similarly, he continued, problems of mortality, child health and tuberculosis would be taken up.

In addition to the work among the men of the army, and among the peoples of France, Italy and Belgium, the Red Cross has answered appeals from the Balkans, Palestine, Poland, Russia, Germany and Austria.

The Red Cross did not contemplate feeding these peoples, he added, but it did expect to care for the wounded and maimed, the ill, both among soldiers and civilians.

C. OF C. COMMITTEES WEIGH MEN FOR SCHOOL BOARD TICKET

The two subcommittees of the Chamber of Commerce Committee of One Hundred, appointed to name men from amongst whom the Republican and Democratic City Central Committees will be asked to select their candidates for the Board of Education, to fill four places in that body at the April election, met yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce, but did not make public the result of their deliberations.

One of the subcommittees is composed entirely of Democrats and the other of Republicans. The Democrats were to select men from the Democratic City Central Committee, which meets tomorrow night. W. McChesney Martin, Federal Reserve Agent, chairman, said several men were being considered, but would not be named publicly until the committee had been assured they would consent to having their names presented.

The committee of Republicans, of which Harry B. Wallace is chairman, discussed the matter for about two hours and adjourned until tomorrow. It was said that they also made tentative selections. They have until Tuesday night to submit the names.

Do You Know What They Are Saying
The New Light Weight, Moderate Priced, Quality Car
About the Essex?

The Essex speaks for itself. The praise you hear of its performance and fine quality, is that expressed by those who have ridden in it. We have made no claims that have not been multiplied by thousands of motorists.

A ride is all that is needed to win men to the Essex. Its lightness and performance are resistless. You do not need to be an expert to appreciate its economy in first cost and operation.

The Essex was not developed by assembling units such as are used in other cars. It is an original design conceived because of the need for a light weight car having equal performance, riding qualities and endurance to the high priced heavy cars.

It has the high priced car's richness in appointment. The seats are large and roomy. They are deep and comfortable. The backs are high and support the shoulders. The driver has ample room for full and comfortable action.

Details You See and Admire

But when you have ridden in the Essex you will be enthusiastic over its performance.

If you are a user of a small car, it will give you a new sensation of power and stability. If you are more familiar with large and costly cars you will be surprised at its steadiness and ease of riding.

The Essex is free from violent vibration at all speeds. It gets under way smoothly and quietly because it is powerful and flexible. It rides smoothly over rough pavements without weaving and creaking, because its frame is as rigid as a bridge girder.

Won't You Also Ride in the Essex?

Here we have told you more of the Essex than we, who are to sell it, knew until after we had ridden in it.

We knew of the coming of the Essex for more than two years. But we had no idea that it would be so beautiful and efficient. You will be just as enthusiastic as we were. We know you will, for a quarter of a million motorists just like yourself have already shown what they think of it. Come and ride in the Essex.

ST. LOUIS 'FOREIGN LEGION' IS PRAISED BY COMMANDER

E Company, 354th (St. Louis) Regiment of 89th "Fought Like Wildcats," Says Capt. Steiner.

MOST OF MEN BORN IN OTHER COUNTRIES

Officers Declared to Have Been Amazed at Transformation of "Awkward Squads" Into Fighting Machines.

CAPT. ALEXANDER STEINER.

The Foreign Legion of France, decorated with the French Republic's highest military honors, had nothing on the undecorated "Foreign Legion of St. Louis" when it came to fighting the Germans, according to Capt. Alexander Steiner, 724 Aubert avenue, who commanded E Company, 354th (St. Louis) Regiment, Eighty-ninth Division. Capt. Steiner returned home yesterday, having obtained his discharge after being graded in the disability class on account of a wrenched back.

He referred to his command as the "Foreign Legion" because it was made up wholly of Italian, Greek, Polish, Russian, Syrian and Bohemian residents of St. Louis. The Eighty-ninth was trained at Camp Funston under Major-General Leonard Wood, and its 354th, 353d, 355th and 356th Regiments of Infantry and its 340th and 341st Regiments of Artillery contained more St. Louis men than the Thirty-fifth Division.

Steiner said that all of the units of the Eighty-ninth behaved admirably under fire; the drafted men suffered far more casualties, saw much more action, captured more prisoners and endured greater hardships than did many other divisions of the American forces, and as a reward were selected as part of the army of occupation. All of them who were not killed or invalided are now in Germany, he said.

Men Amazed Their Officers.

Naturally, though, he was chiefly interested in his own command, the men with whom he was in daily contact during the periods of training and later on the fields of battle in the St. Mihiel sector and in the Argonne Forest.

"You can say what you please about the Bommaritos, Stanislowskis, Markoviches, Peter Georges, Tegethoffs and Mattischeks, but they proved themselves worthy of the name of American fighters," he said. "Many of them were unable to read or write, and at the training camps they were distressingly awkward, but when they reached No Man's Land they carried on like a bunch of wildcats. They not only surprised their officers, but they amazed them. They went through hell as though it were a picnic.

"It will be recalled how they carried on when they departed from Union Station for the training camp, how they waved banners announcing that they were on their way from 'Dago Hill' and 'Kerry Patch' to 'get the Kaiser's goat' and 'eat Christmas dinner in Berlin.' Well, they lived up to their promises, though many fell in the undertaking.

Awkward in Training Period.

"The officers, during the training periods, used to wonder what was going to happen when that mob got into action. They shuddered at the prospects. The majority of them had never seen a rifle, and it was necessary to teach them the English language to make them understand the simplest commands. They struggled laboriously with instructions in field fortifications and trench warfare, and when they got overseas they were confronted with the predicament of having to learn French rifles and tactics, but how they did redeem themselves when they got into the big fight. Their spirit pulled them through.

"When we moved up to the fighting area on Aug. 1, 1918, they acted as though they were off on an excursion. They were glad to be away from the training, and expressed delight that at last they were to get into action. Every fifth truck carried an anti-aircraft gun and we were on the road from 1 p. m. until 5 a. m. Our first taste of fighting was in skirmish work and trench raids at St. Mihiel. We were constantly under German shell fire. At Flirey, opposite Montmare Forest, we relieved the Eighty-second Division, and for 10 hours were the center of a gas attack. We had 900 casualties Aug. 5. On armistice day there were 65 men left in our company, which, including replacements, had numbered 286.

"I was put out of the fighting 20 days after we had started in. A high-explosive shell burst within a short distance of me and the concussion dislocated my back. I spent seven weeks in a hospital and then was placed in charge of a prison camp at Souilly. We had 7000 prisoners there. At first they called it the retaliation camp because they feared they would be given a dose of their own medicine, but when they found out that they were being treated like human beings they shower their appreciation in many ways. They called our white bread "cake" and the most refractory prisoner could easily be tamed by a threat to deprive him of bread.

"But to get back to the Foreign Legion. The way those fellows conducted themselves was a revelation. The officers could not hold them back. They crawled on their hands and knees to get at the enemy's machine-gun nests. The first night at the front, when there was a call for volunteers to fix up barbed-wire entanglements, the entire company responded. They worked all night under shell fire, and not a single one of them whimpered. And not a man was lost. What was left of the 354th wound up at Stenay, on the way to Sedan, armistice day. Their headquarters now are at Trier, Germany.

"The relatives of the St. Louis drafted men have every reason to be proud. They all acquitted themselves wonderfully well and under most trying circumstances. I mention the foreigners in particular because they were under my immediate observation."

Steiner was commissioned First Lieutenant at Fort Riley, and was instructor at Camp Funston from October, 1917, to May, 1918. He was promoted to Captain Jan. 1, 1918, and went to France in June, 1918. He was overseas eight months. He formerly was general manager of the Velie Automobile Co.

Capt. Harlow of 354th at Jefferson Barracks With Wounded Knee.

Capt. Lon W. Harlow of the 354th Infantry, Eighty-ninth Division, has returned to St. Louis, and is receiving treatment at the Jefferson Barracks Hospital for a shell wound in his left knee, inflicted in the St. Mihiel drive last September. He was in command of a battalion when he was wounded, and was reconnoitering to fill a gap between two regiments of infantry.

After he was wounded, Capt. Atwell T. Lincoln of St. Louis was placed in command of the battalion, and was killed in action. Capt. Harlow's home is in Kimmswick, Mo., and he was formerly connected with a surety company here.

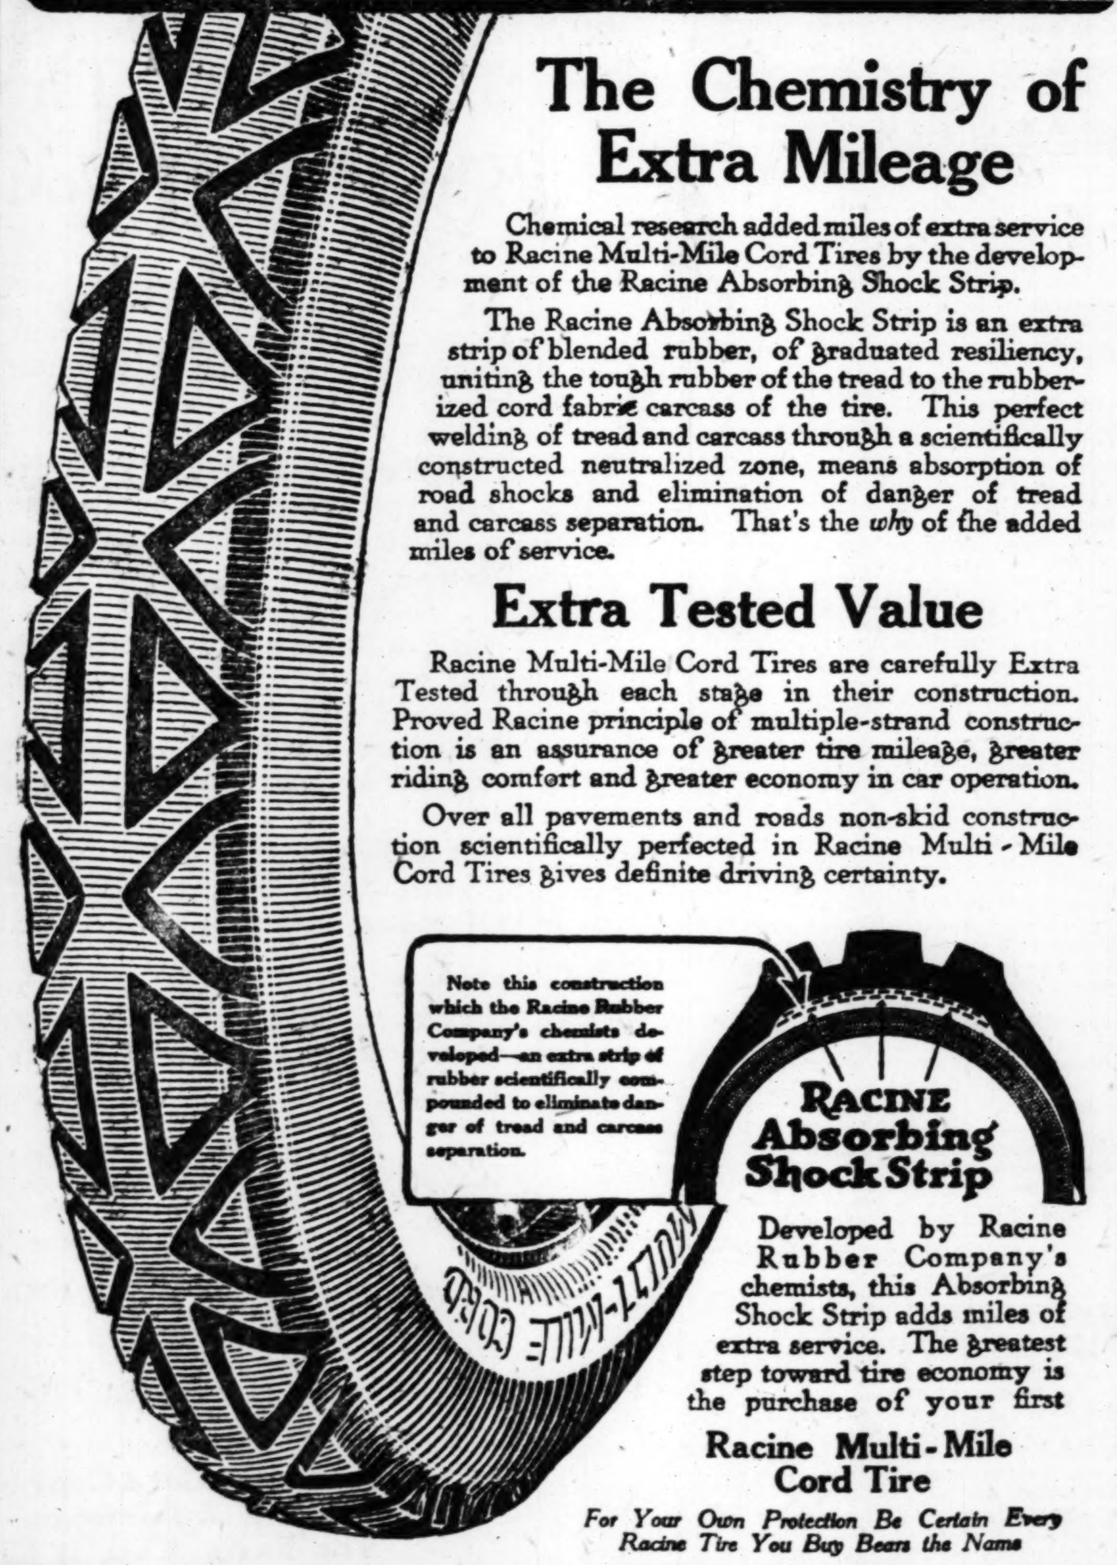
RACINE MULTI-MILE CORD TIRES

RACINE RUBBER COMPANY EXTRA TESTED TIRES



The Chemistry of Extra Mileage

Chemical research added miles of extra service to Racine Multi-Mile Cord Tires by the development of the Racine Absorbing Shock Strip.

The Racine Absorbing Shock Strip is an extra strip of blended rubber, of graduated resiliency, uniting the tough rubber of the tread to the rubberized cord fabric carcass of the tire. This perfect welding of tread and carcass through a scientifically constructed neutralized zone, means absorption of road shocks and elimination of danger of tread and carcass separation. That's the why of the added miles of service.

"PERFORMANCE COUNTS"

T. J. MEEK, VETERAN NEWSPAPER MAN, DIES

Told in Recently Prepared Sketch How He Drifted From Life on River Into Journalism.

Thomas Jefferson Meek, 77 years old, who was a clerk on Mississippi River steamboats in the palmy days of the river trade, and who was a St. Louis newspaper worker in the days of Eugene Field, died yesterday from heart failure at his home, 5111A Delmar boulevard. His funeral will be at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, from the undertaking establishment of Meek & Dickman, 3035 Easton avenue. His surviving sons are Charles C. Meek, who is in the undertaking firm, and Lytton Lee Meek.

The pallbearers will be William Marion Reedy, editor of The Mirror; William A. Kelsoe of the Post-Dispatch; Leon F. Witzig of the Globe-Democrat, H. E. Knox and William Depp of the Wabash Railroad, and Mr. Metzger.

Meek had been employed for 30 years with the accounting department of the Wabash, having retired last September.

He recently prepared a sketch of his life, which he intrusted to his son, Charles. In this sketch, describing his river life and his newspaper career, he wrote:

"After leaving business college, I got a place in the office of Slater & Johnson, steamboat agents and commission merchants, at 36 North Levee. The work kept me humping. We were agents for two or three dozen steamboats, and it was my duty to be on the levee at 5 o'clock in the morning and collect the bills of lading from our boats and deliver them to the merchants to whom they were addressed along Commercial, Main and Second streets. That done, I took my sample bags and returned to the levee, where we had shipments of grain consigned to us, to take samples of them to be shown on 'change at the noon gathering. My afternoons I put in preparing advertisements of our boats, which were to leave on the next day.

"I stuck to that job for about three years and then took up the position of second clerk on the steamer Polar Star, Capt. Sam J. Owings, First Clerk William Winters, running from here to Paducah, Ky., on the Ohio River. I got $50 a month and my board and laundry. My salary at that time was payable in gold, silver and State Bank of Missouri money, and was equal to $100 in those days.

"One day I was checking freight from my boat at Cairo to the steamer Henry von Phul, a big New Orleans boat, commanded by Capt. Pat Gorman. He took a liking to my way of working and, as he was short a second clerk, offered me the vacancy at $90 a month. Of course I accepted, and for 18 months I ran on that boat from Cairo to New Orleans. Capt. Gorman was the best man I ever worked for. He treated me as if I were his son. Poor fellow, the Confederates killed him by firing at the boat while he was in the pilot's house talking with the pilot.

"My mother having died, I became restless and acquired a roving disposition. I went to Memphis, where I secured a place as one of the reporters on the Memphis Bulletin, published at 228 Second street. Our editor was Admiral Raphael Semmes, the famous commander of the Alabama. We newspaper men always referred to the Admiral affectionately as the Old Pilot. We walked home together every morning about 2:30 o'clock for a year and a half, and I shall never forget our many pleasant and interesting conversations.

"I returned to St. Louis and took a position on the Evening Journal, published by Wolcott & Hume, at Fourth and Olive streets. Then began my intimate acquaintance with Eugene Field, Stanley Hunter, author of the Spoopendyke papers; Stanley Waterloo, Leon F. Witzig, now on the Globe-Democrat, and others. It was a curious fact that several local newspaper men entered the ministry. Young Campbell, who worked with me on the old Missouri Republican (now the Republic), became a Baptist minister, and when I last heard from him he had a church in Peoria. Col. E. H. Jamison of the Globe-Democrat became a Congregational minister at Omaha. Aleck Webb became a Hindoo priest."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ADVOCATES LOSE IN DEBATE AT Y. M. C. A.

A debate on the subject of whether the League of Nations constitution should be adopted in its present form was held at the Central Y. M. C. A. last night, the verdict going to the negative team, who had argued against the present form of the covenant. The verdict was reached by a viva voce vote of the audience, who were instructed to decide merely on the presentation of the arguments advanced. The sentiment of the audience appeared to be closely divided as to the merit of the question itself. The speakers were members of the Y. M. C. A. Debating Club.

The victorious team placed much emphasis on the argument that the proposed constitution fails to settle the freedom of the seas question or provide for self determination for Ireland and dependencies of the great powers who may in the future demand governments of their own. The affirmative debaters urged a speedy adoption of the constitution in the interest of early peace, and contended any imperfections could be remedied later.

LOW VISIBILITY DUE TO SNOW CAUSES INJURY OF 3 PERSONS

Two automobile accidents in which three persons were injured last evening were blamed on the low visibility caused by the snow.

At Fifteenth and Pine streets James Toomey, 31 years old, of 4434 Cote Brilliante avenue, a plumber, was struck by a taxicab. He protested against being taken to the City Hospital, and at the home of his sister, Mrs. Anna Brogan, 2726A North Union avenue, it was found that his skull was fractured. James T. Long of 4953A Page boulevard, the chauffeur, was arrested. He said he did not see Toomey on account of the snow until he was almost upon him, and would have missed Toomey by turning had the wheels not skidded.

Two automobiles which ran together at Eleventh street and Franklin avenue and skidded into the curb struck Michael Leschik, 46, of 1111 North Thirteenth street, and his daughter, Mamie, 16, who were about to step off the curb where the cars struck. Leschik's right leg was fractured and his daughter was cut and bruised on the head and body. They were taken to the city hospital.

Charles A. Wasselberger, 3958 Greer avenue, and Andrew B. Lewis, Milford Hotel, drivers of the cars, were arrested and charged with careless driving.

VALUE

NOT the price you pay, but the years of service you get, determines a motor truck's cost Economy of operation and maintenance is the determining factor.

You might buy a motor truck at an extremely low price, but pay dearly in the end. Inversely, you might invest considerable money in a motor truck, yet pay little per ton mile or year of service.

There is no better indication of any article's actual worth than its "forced sale" price.

At a creditor's sale in Chicago recently, fourteen motor trucks were sold at auction. A SERVICE Motor Truck, 22 months old, brought 84% of its original price. The others, used only 10 to 18 months, sold for less than 40% of the first cost.

From the investment standpoint, SERVICE Motor Trucks are "gilt edge." In fact, SERVICE Trucks are such good investments that it is practically impossible to buy a second-hand SERVICE.

INDS WOMEN ARE TOO AFRAID OF CRITICISM

Miss Florence King of Chicago, a patent attorney, technical expert and organizer of women's public activities, yesterday held the attention of two successive audiences of women, addressing them on the subject "Woman's new political status." She spoke in the tea room of the Town Club, which was crowded from 1:15 to 3 p. m., and in the well-filled ball room of the Hotel Statler from 3 until after 5 o'clock.

So lengthy was her discourse that a dramatic sketch called" The Trial" written by Miss Mary E. Bulkley, announced as the other attraction of the Statler meeting, had to be postponed. The play, based upon the incident of Susan B. Anthony's attempt to vote in 1873, will be read for the first time in public next Saturday in the same place.

Miss King deplored the fact that women as a sex were not representen at the Peace Conference and are unmentioned in any of the proposed articles except a labor clause. Women, before the armistice, hesitated to connect themselves in any way with the subject of peace lest they be criticised as pacificists, she thought and after the armistice they woke up to find all the delegates already had been appoined.

She did not detract from any credit belonging to men, "But while rendering unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, it is time we were rendering unto Mrs. Caesar the things which are Mrs. Caesar's," she declared.

The speaker reviewed scenes she viewed from the gallery in the last Congress in its disposal of the suffrage bill. In no uncertain terms of bitterness she referred to the speeches of Senator Borah, Wadsworth and others. At the mention of Senator Reed a distinct buzz scarcely to be distinguished from a hiss went through the audience.

Miss King urged that a test case be made in the courts of the woman voter in a suffrage State who loses her franchise upon moving to a non-suffrage State, basing the case upon that constitutional clause which provides that no State shall enact or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges and immunities of any citizen of the United States.

E. ST. LOUIS CAMPAIGN TAKES ON NEW LIFE

Revival of Newspaper "Truth," Opposing Stephens, Leads to Arrest of Daily Journal Editor.

The quiet campaign for city election in East St. Louis came to life with a bang yesterday, when Alexander Flannigan, well-known lawyer-editor, revived his weekly newspaper, The Truth, with the avowed purpose of defeating M. M. Stephens for the mayoralty. The appearance of The Truth was followed shortly by the arrest of A. T. Spivey, editor and publisher of the Daily Journal, East St. Louis' only daily newspaper, on a warrant obtained by Stephens.

It was discovered that the issue of The Truth had been printed on the Daily Journal presses and that the name of the editor or publisher did not appear on it. While it was admitted that Spivey was not directly concerned, having printed the issue as job printing, Stephens contended he was legally responsible, although Flannigen announced that he had edited The Truth, and would accept blame for the omission of his name, which, he said, was inadvertant.

It was predicted last night by politicians that the "ladylike" behavior of candidates which has marked the campaign, the first under commission form of government, will not be apparent hereafter, and that East St. Louis is in for a political battle of the character familiar to it.

Not Printed Since 1913.

Flannigen, who has been a picturesque character around East St. Louis for many years, had not printed The Truth since 1913. It had been his practice to publish it around election time, or at any other time that public questions arose on which he desired to give publicity to his personal opinions.

One such resurrection led to a personal encounter on the street between Flannigen and the then Mayor, Charles Lambert, in which Lambert tore Flannigen's coat off and Flannigen chased Lambert down the street with a double-barreled shotgun.

The edition which appeared yesterday was characteristic of former issues. It was headed with the words: "Truth Crushed to Earth Will Rise Again," under which it announced that "A Great Crisis Confronts Our City," adding, "It Is the Coming Election."

The first page is devoted to an editorial attacking the record of Stephens, who was Mayor several years ago, and begins with the typically quaint statement: "The commission form of government is monarchical and autocratic in the extreme, and hence, in selecting our masters, it becomes the people to be very cautious." It refers repeatedly to "this crime-cursed city," and recalls how a racetrack and gambling were permitted to operate when Stephens was Mayor before.

Says He's "Against Stephens."

Flannigan states in the paper that he is "for" Robert R. Thomas, the New Era candidate for Mayor, and also "for" M. J. Whalen and Stephen Horn, labor candidates for commissioners, but declares that, more than anything else, he is "against" Stephens, and is "against" any candidate who forms any combination with Stephens.

The editor, always more epigrammatic than coherent, also moralizes on economics as follows: "Two times always was, and still is, four. One extreme begets the other. The cruel domination of the union of money made the union of labor necessary," and adds, at the bottom, "The Truth will explain the situation more fully in later issues, for want of more time in this, our first hurry-up issue."

Spivey furnished a $500 bond. He said he did not even know his plant was printing the Truth, he having been out of town when the order was received.

Resigns Charge of Y. M. C. A. Hut, Effective April 1.

Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins, 20 Lennox place, who has been in charge of the canteen work at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. hut, Twentieth and Eugenia streets, for the past year, yesterday tendered her resignation, effective April 1. The reason given is the illness of her daughter.

The canteen work at the hut will continue, it has been announced, until all the soldiers have been discharged, and several other women are being considered as chairman. The hut accommodates about 1000 men daily.

SUES TO STOP RAIDS ON HOTEL

Proprietor Alleges No Prosecutions Were Successful in Five Raids.

A suit to enjoin the police from raiding the Moorland Hotel, 2810 Olive street, was filed yesterday against the Board of Police Commissioners and Capt. Tierney of the Eighth Police District, by William A. Sprague, proprietor of the place.

Sprague alleges that his hotel was raided five times since last May and himself, his wife and guests arrested, and in no case were prosecutions successful.

His Hearing Restored.

The invisible antiseptic ear drum invented by Mr. A. O. Leonard, which is in reality a minature megaphone, fitting inside the ear and entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of literally hundreds of people in New York City. Mr. Leonard invented this remarkable drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises and it does this so successfully that no one could tell that he is a deaf man. This ear drum is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by perforated, partially or wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information addressed to A. O. BAER, SOMMERS AND SAMUELS OFF TUESDAY FOR WORLD TOUR

St. Louisans to Sail for Orient March 18 on Six Months' Rest and Pleasure Trip.

Julius A. Baer, vice president of the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., will sail from San Francisco March 18, accompanied by David Sommers, vice president of the Schram Glass Manufacturing Co. and director of the National Bank of Commerce, and Theodore R. Samuels, president of the Samuels Shoe Co., on a six months' pleasure trip that will take them around the world. They will leave St. Louis Tuesday for San Francisco.

The journey will be made in easy stages, according to Sommers, who is in charge of the arrangements, and they will devote the entire time to sight seeing and restful recreation. They plan to touch at Honolulu and to travel extensively in Japan, China, touch at the seaports of India. They will also visit Egypt and will return through Europe and, possibly, through the war zone.

Baer said he has not had a vacation since before the war and believes he is now entitled to withdraw for a space from the strenuous activities of business building and take a rest cure and stock up with renewed vigor for the period of reconstruction by getting acquainted with other peoples and observing how they live and work.

"Just three genial fellows in need of rest on pleasure bent," was all that Sommers vouchsafed when asked to discuss their plans, and Samuels said only that he was the "kid" of the party and anticipated the greatest time of his life.

All declared they had so arranged their business affairs as not to have a moment of the journey's time disturbed by possible news from home concerning it.

Industrial-Transportation Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Industrial-Transportation Committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in room 1517 Third National Bank Building, Broadway and Olive street.

"For Him"

The pride of Overland owners is the result of Overland performance. Owners tell their friends of their satisfaction in driving it and thus the car's reputation grows. For ten years this public appreciation has been our sole aim. Today the Overland Motor Car reflects the best of our great engineering experience and production facilities. The sales of the Model 90 shown here now number more than one hundred and fifteen thousand cars and are constantly increasing.

WILL EXPLAIN TAX LAW TO ACCESSORY TRADE

A special meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association was held at the Marquette Hotel Friday at noon to discuss the war tax on automotive equipment. Vice President W. L. Ferrier presided. A meeting of the association will be held at the Marquette Hotel Tuesday, March 11, 1919, at noon, at which time Harry G. Moock, business manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, will report the answer to a long telegram sent to the Treasury Department in Washington asking for specific rulings on a number of questions asked. A speaker from the local internal revenue office will be there to answer questions propounded. The meeting is to be held at noon from consideration for the Used Car Show at night.

Harding to Pilot Hudson.

Brent Harding, who has just been released from the Marine Aviation Corps, is planning to re-enter racing as the pilot of a Hudson Super-Six at the Indianapolis sweepstakes on May 30.

Harding was formerly juvenile champion race driver. Entering into the game when he was a mere youngster, he drove a baby car for Betty Comton, the film star, who backed him for several years, even when he entered the A. A. A. race meets. He lowered the 5 and 10 mile speedway record, and won the title "Juvenile Speed King of the World." In later years he won much fame on the coast as the pilot of a Hudson Super-Six. If Harding enters a Hudson at Indianapolis, it will be as an individual as it is known that the Hudson factory feels that its racing cars accomplished their mission when they proved their endurance by annexing nearly every worth while American speedway record two years ago.

A COMPLETE SERVICE SHOP

"Few people realize the completeness of the service department which is at the command of St. Louis Overland owners," said R. H. Paterson, assistant wholesale manager of the Overland Automobile Co., in outlining the work of their organization service department.

"Occupying as much floor space as many small manufacturers, we have every equipment necessary for rehabilitating a motor car. One entire floor is given over to a paint shop and a work room for re-covering tops and upholstering cars. Few firms in St. Louis, who confine their work to this class of jobs have as complete an equipment. Here, in addition to the city business, hundreds of cars will be made over for country dealers.

"In the mechanical department nothing has been overlooked, even a blacksmith shop being included. Believing in specialization, we have so divided this branch that each kind of repair work is in the hands of an expert. Special attention has been given the ignition and electrical equipment.

"Probably there is no better way of impressing one with the real size of our institution than to point to the fact that 155 men are constautly employed in these departments which comprise Overland service."

OVERLAND DEALERS MEET

The first of a series of Overland dealers meetings was held last week at Paducah, Ken., this territory being under the control of the St. Louis house. H. R. Henry, wholesale manager, and R. H. Paterson, assistant wholesale manager, were in charge of the meeting which was attended by 35 dealers.

An extremely healthy condition was reported throughout the entire section, in most cases the dealers enlarging the orders which had been placed at the time of the Jackson-Overland Convention in St. Louis They all showed special interest in the Model 90, better known as the Thrift Car, it being the most popular of all the Overland models.

HAS NEW SALES MANAGER

Frank B. Martin, president of the Martin Motor Car Co. announces the appointment of R. B. Thompson, better known as Dick Thompson, sales manager of the company. Salesmen who have recently been added to the force are: B. B. Worley, formerly with the Overland Company in Southeast Missouri, Allan Morsman in Northern Missouri, and J. B. Davidson in Southern Illinois. Mr. Martin is now on a trip to the Denby factory in Detroit, and the Fulton factory in New York.

WHY CAR PRICES WILL NOT BE REDUCED

Regardless of what other manufacturers may be forced to do, and no matter what the trend of the automobile world this spring, the price of our cars will not be reduced one penny before June 1, 1919—if indeed, at all, says George Weber of the Weber Implement and Auto Co.

The automobile business is the third greatest industry in America, but unquestionably the first greatest, temperamentally, in the world. America motor car builders have created an art, as distinctive as any school and like the artists themselves, are extremely temperamental. We are easily affected by unfounded rumors and predictions, invariably doing the very opposite in regard to a motor car from that which we would consider sound business in any other matter.

For instance, in the past we have been cautioned by self-styled experts that the motor industry was reaching the point of saturation, and later, with the great war cloud overhead, came the cry of the alarmist that the industry was about to crumble. Unfortunately, both of these groundless beliefs gained an ear before they eventually disappeared as foolishly as their authors.

Since the day the armistice was signed there has been the wail of tumbling prices. With as little grounds for likelihood as either of the preceding rumors, this latest fiction obtained a hearing in certain localities and for some weeks we have heard of prospective purchasers who, because of their reliance in such gossip, have put off buying.

The St. Louis auto show has confirmed the soundness of the dictrine I have consistently adhered to. The tone and demeanor of the show crowds has convinced me that the people in the great majority of cases do not intend sitting quietly by awaiting that mythical avalanche of prices. Interest at both our Maxwell and Chalmers exhibits here has surpassed anything of the last four years, and we have opened more negotiations than during any show since 1914. This indication, I am informed, has been reported by all exhibitors from the cheapest to the most luxurious cars.

In other words, the temperamental flurry of the last few weeks reached its peak on the eve of the show, and with the opening of the auto show doors there came to the surface the conservative calculating of the motor-buying public; for, after all, the man who pays for the motor car is the same man that pays the grocery bill, buys the children's clothes and holds down the overhead at the office.

GOUX IN THE BIG RACE.

Jules Goux, the latest entry for the $50,000 Liberty Sweepstakes of 500 miles on the Indianapolis Speedway May 31, will drive a Peugeot, famous on two continents. The car that Goux will face the starter with is the same that Georges Boillot drove in the last French Grand Prix in 1914, and with which he gave the German Lautenschlager the battle of his life on the tortuous course near Amiens, France. In France, Boillot, who fell in the second year of the war, was an idol as an aviator, as well as having been unusually successful with the Peugeot.

Goux was a bosom pal of the late Johnny Aitken and when the two Peugeot cars were purchased by Messrs. Fisher, Allison and Newby, owners of the Speedway, in 1915, Goux wrote from the trenches to Aitken and advised the Indianapolis star to pick Boillot's car for himself. As a result, Aitken gave Dario Resta, the 1916 champion, a battle for the crown and actually won when the number of races in which he finished first are considered, but lost out on a technical interpretation of the A. A. A. rules governing the title race.

GIVES CREDIT TO CHEMISTS

Laboratories and serious minded chemists are not generally associated in the motorist's mind with the tires upon his car. "But," says R. Y. Cooke, general sales manager of the Racine Rubber Co., "they should be for science plays an important part in the tire industry.

"As far as the tire industry is concerned the public mind embraces practically no thought of the scientists who are constantly engaged in the serious labor of developing greater rubber strength, that tire users may get more miles out of their tires.

"There is such a tremendous investment required in the manufacture of tires that we at Racine retain the most skillful available chemists to insure accuracy of compound, protection against the slightest flaw in warp or weave of fabric, and by micrometer measurement to get always the exact thickness and precise proportion of rubber to fabric.

Boekers Livery and Undertaking Co. with a Willys-Knight limousine and touring car, have all placed their stamp of approval on the quiet, powerful and economical Willys-Overland product. Practically all of the large companies are using the Knight motor in their work.

Proper Gasoline Level.

If the gasoline level is too high the carburetor will be flooded, while if it is too low there will be a tendency toward lean mixture and difficult starting. For satisfactory operation it is important that the carburetor float be adjusted so that the gasoline level is about 1-32d of an inch below the outlet of the lowest nozzle.

PRODUCTION OF NEXT 90 DAYS ALL SOLD

The new year has progressed far enough to give the makers of automobiles an idea of what to expect in the way of business. Optimistic predictions are already being fulfilled and there is every reason to believe that the industry will enjoy one of its most prosperous periods.

"I believe 1919 is going to be a banner year," says Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, writing to the Newell Motor Car Co. "Our company has orders for spot shipments for everything we can produce in the next 90 days, with additional orders piling in.

"I have been making the rounds of the shows held thus far. In Chicago and St. Louis they have never held a show in which the interest has been so keen and so genuine as was proved in actual sales. By that I mean that never before have there been so many people who have come in, laid down their money and taken the cars away.

"There are many factors influencing this demand for cars. It must be remembered that during the last two years of the war many owners of motor cars who were in the habit of buying a new car each year, or who really needed a new car, put off the purchase for patriotic reasons or financial reasons, due to the demands of war activities like the Liberty Loan, Red Cross and other money-raising campaigns. They are now ready to buy.

C. W. NASH SEES BIG DEMAND FOR CARS

"There will not be cars enough to begin to supply the demand of the 1919 season."

The foregoing statement by Charles W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors Co., to the Rottersman Auto & Truck Co. of St. Louis, is based upon first-hand study of the country's industrial outlook as affecting the automobile market. Mr. Nash has just returned to the factory at Kenosha after a trip which took him from Chicago and New York to Florida.

At practically every point in his itinerary, through the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky and Ohio, Mr. Nash found reflected the same conditions that prevailed at the St. Louis, Chicago and New York automobile shows.

In the South, where the selling season is now at its height, Mr. Nash spent several weeks. Nash dealers on every hand are pressed for cars and in spite of the big production schedule of the Nash factory practically all dealers will be unable at any time during the 1919 season to get cars enough.

With the first indication of real spring Mr. Nash believes dealers in the Northern sections of the country will find themselves in a similar situation. Orders will far exceed automobiles. This, he says, was plainly indicated by the large retail sales made at the shows in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Cleveland and elesewhere.

BRISCOE TRUCK COMING.

The new Briscoe one-ton truck, which has just been announced by the Briscoe factory, will reach St. Louis in about 10 days, according to word received yesterday from factory by Frank Bishop, the local distributor.

The new model will be of one-ton capacity, and will use the worm drive, selling for approximately $1350.

The first two of the fleet of Sandow trucks purchased from Bishop during the automobile show by the Whistle Bottling Co. were received last week. Following out the advertising plan of the Whistle company, they are painted orange and bear the slogan "Just Whistle."

LONG USE FOR DAVIS CARS

Mr. Beekman, 4454 Page avenue, of the Big Star Oil Co., reports buying in 1913 a Davis car which he has driven 50,000 miles, which is still good and will climmb Art Hill on high at three miles an hour. This car has been all over the East and through some of the worst roads in this country, yet the owner refuses to part with it and when he learned that the Knight Motor Co. took on the agency of the Davis cars he was glad to add his experiences to many others the company received at the show as to Davis stability.

As to the tremendous stamina and reliability of the Davis cars, when Mr. Knight was at the automobile show in Chicago another party stepped up and volunteered the information that he had driven his Davis car 80,000 miles and had been to California twice with it, that he had turned it upside down, sideways and endways on the mountain passes and despite all this it was still pr tically as good a car as ever.

The Knight Motor Co. have just finished building a new office, resurfaced the floor at 3327 Locust street, where the Davis, Empire and Moon cars are carried. They have just put on several live salesmen and are going to make a strong bid for the share of business this year.

Each New Day Brings a Better Maxwell

MOST anyone would think that after building 50,000 motor cars on one chassis plan that close on to perfection would be reached.

That is true in a large measure; but it happens to be only the point at which the Maxwell executives began.

They decided to keep on building Maxwells better and better as each new day went by.

The locomotive engineer drives his engine better every day. The banker who loans money does so with more and more judgment. The man at the forge—likewise.

This is the principle on which the Maxwell is built. It is not new in the business world. But it is sound.

And today, with 300,000 Maxwells built on this plan, anyone will readily understand—

Why a Maxwell runs on and on and never quits with age;
Why a Maxwell seldom turns in at a repair shop;
Why a Maxwell is so eagerly sought for in the second-hand market.

One of the last of more than 1000 improvements made since the first Maxwell was built is the appearance.

Let your eyes glance over this present day Maxwell and you'll think the price $200 more than we ask for it.

This is the Chandler Motor Famous for Its Excellence

CHANDLER owners, and men generally who know automobiles, talk about the Chandler motor for its marvelous performance and endurance.

It is exclusively the Chandler motor, of Chandler design and Chandler manufacture in Chandler shops. The only automobile hood you can find it under is the Chandler hood. It is not a stock motor. No other car has it.

And this is the greatest of six-cylinder motors.

The Chandler motor, with refinements and improvements from time to time but without radical change at any time, is now in its sixth year.

Lift the hood of a Chandler car and see that motor. Even from the outside you know it is good. Manufacturers wouldn't build and mount a motor with such care if it weren't an extraordinary motor inside.

Cylinders cast in threes, valves in the side, all working parts easily accessible.

Heavy, perfectly-balanced crank shaft, running in unusually large bearings.

Silent chain drive for generator, magneto and cam shafts, three chains running in constant oil spray.

Bosch Magneto for sure ignition.

Mounted on solid cast aluminum base extending solidly from frame to frame, giving perfect rigidity and saving the motor from the rack and stress of the roadway.

The power so economically produced by the Chandler motor is carried back to the rear wheels with loss by friction brought to its minimum through accuracy of workmanship and the use of annular ball bearings.

Chandler motor and chassis design are typical of the highest priced construction, yet Chandler is moderately priced. It offers greater value than other cars give you for hundreds more. You can absolutely prove this to your own satisfaction if you will come and study the Chandler car.

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

One feature that means a great deal to any automobile owner is satisfaction in driving, according to L. B. Tebbetts of L. B. Tebbetts & Co., 2125 Locust street, distributer of the U. & J. Carburetor and Hassler Shock Absorbers. "There are no two automobile devices on the market that mean as much towards satisfaction in driving to the Ford owner as the U. & J. Carburetor and the Hassler Shock Absorber," Tebbetts declared.

Walter W. Hoernlein, who for many years has been superintendent and assistant treasurer of the American Pretzel Co., is now associated with the Lafayette Tire and Vulcanizing Co., 1811 South Broadway, as secretary and treasurer.

The Ever-Tight Piston Ring Co., which has its factory on Kingsland avenue, St. Louis County, will shortly open an office and salesroom at 3124 Locust street.

President I. G. McNiese of the Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis, announces the engagement of James J. MacGregor, sales manager of that company. Mr. MacGregor succeeds H. W. Spaulding, who has gone with the Chevrolet St. Louis branch. MacGregor comes from Boston and has had a wide experience in the automobile business.

Manager Bryant of the Used Car Department of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., sold several of the cars intended for the Used Car Show last week, but will have a number of other desirable bargains at the show.

R. C. Lane, president of the Bearings Service Co., Detroit, spent Thursday with the St. Louis branch house on his way home from the Tractor Show at Kansas City.

W. O. Suhre, president of the Battery Service Co. of St. Louis, distributers for Willard batteries, left Friday with three of his sales force to attend the Willard convention at Kansas City.

GOODRICH RUBBER IN DEMAND FOR ARMIES

One of the most interesting chapters in the history of the world war is the part rubber played in bringing victory to America and her allies, as disclosed by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

Hundreds of articles of rubber, comprising everything from small tips for crutches of wounded soldiers to giant $76,500 dirigible balloons were made for war duty. One item alone—772,662 pairs of boots and other rubber footwear—was valued at more than $2,000,000. Thousands of pneumatic and solid tires saw service on French and Belgian battlefields on the wheels of American-made trucks. Miles and miles of outpost wire, rubber insulated, was furnished the army. The trenches of the Yanks were kept dry and clean by suction and discharge hose.

Goodrich products played more than a prominent role in the Government's gas mask and balloon program. For the Navy Department alone 55,000 complete gas masks were made, and for the army 650,000 gas mask face pieces were manufactured. Over 8,000,000 separate gas mask accessories of eight different kinds, consisting of rubber hose, mouthpieces and flutter valves, were made by Goodrich.

DISTINCTIVE FASHION IN THE NEW HAYNES

"Motordom sees a new pattern in the straight, graceful lines that characterize the up-to-date series Haynes car," says S. M. How, general sales manager of The Haynes Automobile Co., Kokomo, Ind.

"This is a season of rich simplicity and the buying tendency is for automobiles possessing refinements of design and body appointments. Ruggedness of mechanism is also demanded to make the motor car the most efficient and practical carrier. The Haynes touring car is a new-style motor car, distinctly beautiful and carries comfortably seven passengers. Wire wheels are also popular, because they reduce tire wear and tend to make for economy of operation, besides being good looking."

15 Million Spent on Lincoln Way

In their report to the directors of the Lincoln Highway association, at their annual meeting last week, Field Secretary H. C. Ostermann and secretary A. F. Bement brought out that $2,996,307.77 had been spent on the improvement of the Lincoln Highway during 1918, even in the face of the manifold difficulties presented by the war situation, an amount greater than expended in 1917, and which brought the total funds expended upon Lincoln Highway improvement since the organization of the association to $15,055,392.71.

F. A. Seiberling, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., was re-elected president of the highway organization.

SIX MILLION CARS IN U. S.

Practically 6,000,000 motor vehicles were in use in the United States by the first of the year, as revealed by the automobile registration in the various states. The actual total, according to the latest figures, was 5,945,422 vehicles. On Jan. 1, 1918, statistics showed that this country had a trifle less than 5,000,000—4,941,276 to be exact, so that the increase during the last year, despite the war conditions, higher prices and the storage of many cars, was 1,004,176 vehicles. This, in itself, is a remarkable indication of national economic strength under the many financial and personal war burdens.

SURPRISED DEALERS.

Dealers and distributers of Fulton motor trucks recently gathered at the huge plant of the Fulton Motor Truck Co. at Farmingdale, Long Island, N. Y., for the first convention held by that company. Many of the dealers whose business had been transacted with the distributers throughout the country had heard the romance of the Fulton Motor Truck Co. and of the rapid growth of the factory, but few were prepared for the sight which greeted them as the special train from New York, with coaches and a special dining car, drew up at the rear of the huge group of one-story, saw-toothed buildings and entered the plant.

GILLETTE TIRES MADE BY PECULIAR PROCESS

The Gillette Rubber Co. is comprised of able experts of vast experience in the manufacture of highest-quality tires and tubes. Their method of manufacture is known as the Gillette chilled rubber process, a refining treatment that toughens rubber as iron is toughened through conversion into steel. This improved process increases the resistance of rubber, lengthens the life of tires and tubes, renders them practically impervious to the deteriorating influence of heat, cold and dampness. It is productive of a hardiness that weathers the weather, insuring a full value of actual mileage worth, is the claim of the Gillette Rubber Co.

Tires and tubes possessing the super-quality of the Gillette are a vital factory in the furtherance of economy and efficiency of motor vehicle transportation—and will create a trade foundation bearing the unmistakable stamp of American ingenuity, manufacturing ability and an unconquerable determination to excel.

Cadillac War Participation.

Keeping the Government supplied with Cadillac cars, which were adopted as the standard seven-passenger automobile of the United States army; keeping pace with the urgent demands for Liberty engines and parts, the production of Cadillac engines for the 2½-ton artillery tractor, and, withal, sacrificing the services of more than 1200 mechanics and workmen in the factory, comprise briefly the activities of the Cadillac company during the war.

GOODRICH MADE 383 BALLOONS FOR ARMY

Under the direction of M. Henri Julliot, famous French designer and builder, the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. made eight giant dirigibles of 171,000 cubic feet each, 362 kite or observation, 10 supply, 3 target balloons—a total of 383 war balloons.

It is different for the lay mind to grasp the scope of the rubbed products which aided in the war's prosecution—but an idea of the volume may be had from the following figures—goods made by this Akron company and sold directly or indirectly to the Government:

13,047,831 rubber mechanical and surgical articles.
41,780, feet of rubber tubing.
802,662 pairs rubber footwear.
1,504,400 feet rubber hose.
25,000 feet rubber belting.
1,500,000 feet rubber cord for airplanes.

In addition to the foregoing list of rubber articles, solid, cord and fabric tires for motor trucks, automobiles, airplanes, bicycles and motorcycles were made in enormous quantities.

It was through the efforts of Goodrich engineers that the Government discarded the demountable type of solid truck tire for army uses and adopted the pressed-on type. This was made possible by a portable solid tire press, which was made in large quantities by Goodrich and which proved of prime importance in keeping the trucks in France properly tired.

Easy to Remove Carbon.

The removal of carbon deposits has been made easy in the Cadillac eight by the use of detachable cylinder heads.

Each cylinder head is secured to the block by 20 studs. The surfaces of the block and head are ground and between them is a copper covered asbestos gasket, which prevents the leakage of gas or water. Also the smoothly machined surface of the combustion chambers made possible by the detachable head construction is claimed to reduce the tendency of carbon to adhere in the first place.

PACKARD PRICE INSURANCE

In fairness and justice to all purchasers of Packard transportation units, whether Packard Trucks or the famous Twin Six Passenger Cars, we wish to make plain our position regarding prices for the coming year

The Packard policy is nothing short of absolute insurance of your investment at present price quotations.

If at any period during 1919, by reason of lower costs of material and labor, or for any other reason, this Company finds it possible to make a price reduction, this reduction will not only be made, but made retroactive; and we will refund to every previous 1919 purchaser the full amount of the difference between the price he paid and the new price.

If, on the other hand, production costs should increase and a higher price become necessary, the present purchaser has the advantage of his investment as the new price will apply only to those whose orders are received after the change is announced.

As we stated some weeks ago, Packard prices are carefully and accurately based on the cost of material and labor. There was no artificial inflation during the war, and costs have not decreased since we last manufactured for private consumption, consequently there is no leeway for a price reduction now.

If a reduction becomes possible, every present buyer sees his investment protected and insured.

This policy, while unique in the automobile world today, is consistent with Packard policy in the past, and seems to us the most fair and straightforward way of meeting present conditions.

Were we to make a guarantee that present prices would be maintained, it would mean a one-sided bargain in favor of the manufacturer, as it would prevent us giving the buyer a reduction, should material and labor costs justify a reduction.

The Packard Company makes a greater percentage of all the parts that enter into its cars and trucks than is made by any other fine automobile concern in America. It does this because it cannot buy and assemble parts that are up to the Packard standard of service and quality.

Skilled labor of necessity enters very largely into the production of so beautiful, so simple and so proficient a mechanism.

The net result is that the upkeep of a Packard Twin Six is less than that of compromise cars at half or two-thirds the Packard price.

To the man who can afford the first cost, a Packard delivers utility value for every dollar of his investment, greater economy, less depreciation and it does not ask him or his family to compromise in the service, the comfort, the safety of their motoring.

From present indications there will not be enough of either Packard cars or trucks to meet the demand this year.

Trucks are ready for immediate delivery. Your order for a Packard Twin Six passenger car of any model should be registered with your Packard dealer at once to insure late spring delivery.

LOWER MARKET FOR CORN ON THE CHICAGO BOARD

Prices Are Influenced by Less Bullish Farm Reserves' Report Than Expected—Oats Easier.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Downward swings in the corn market resulted today from the Government report showing that farm reserves were much larger than any private estimate. The close was unsettled, 1c to 2⅞c net lower, with May $1.32¼ to $1.32⅝ and July $1.26¾ to $1.26⅞. Oats finished 1½c to 2c down and provisions up 50c to $1.

Trade in corn was at times extremely active and fluctuations rapid. Heavy selling took place as soon as the market opened. Bearish aspects of the Government report left no room at first for any other influence, but on the ensuing break a good demand sprang up based on statements that the extra reserves which the Government report enumerated were mostly in the Southeast, and not readily available to overcome the acute shortage of corn in the chief hog states.

Absence of any considerable stock of corn here to meet deliveries on contracts tended also to rally the market. On the other hand, advices that the Argentine strike might be settled tonight furnished the bears with a new advantage and there was plentiful week-end realizing by longs.

In oats as in corn the main factor was the bearish Government report.

GIRL WHOSE AUTO KILLED 2 MEN ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Miss Edith Mortimer, daughter of Stanley Mortimer of Wheatley Hills, L. I., will continue her defense Monday before Justice Aspinwall in the Queens County Supreme Court against the charge of manslaughter in the second degree. The charge grew out of an automobile accident Oct. 19, 1918, when Miss Mortimer drove her high-powered runabout into a stalled Ford on Broadway, Flushing, L. I., and four men who were trying to start it. Nathan Wasserberger, 53, and Morris De Mato, 33, were killed. Frank Rich, 29, and Abraham Wasserberger, were injured.

Miss Mortimer, who is prominent socially, is of the outdoors athletic type. She was driving with Capt. Mercier Poree at the time of the accident. Her defeise is that to avoid a collision with a truck, which took an unexpected course across her path, she had to make a sudden swerve and crashed into the party on the other side of the truck. The trial began last Wednesday before a jury and Miss Mortimer, rather confident and cheerful at the beginning, is showing signs of nervous strain.

The prosecution finished presentation of its testimony at noon after establishing that the emergency brake was not ste or the switch thrown off when the car strucg a tree in the park. John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Miss Mortimer, moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that the accident was due to a motor truck, the driver of which was fined $25 for his violation of the traffic law.

Capt. Poree, who is attached to the Thirty-sixth Frenc hInfantry, it was explained to the jury, is now in France.

NEWELL POLICY

Why Our Used Cars Are Correctly Priced

To successfully merchandise any article it is essential to purchase it at the right figure, that is in keeping with the demand, and dispose of it at a figure carrying a legitimate profit.

We, as Distributors of the Paige and Stearns, devote our every effort to the sale of the New Paige and Stearns cars, but in the solicitation of the trade, conditions at times necessitate the acceptance of used cars as part payment on new ones purchased.

These Used Cars are worth the figure allowed by us, and in the appraising no false values are given to terminate the sale, as it would mean a loss of our profit with no recourse to recover the inflated value through resale of the used car.

Our operating expense is kept in harmony with the legitimate profit allowed by the factories who fix the price of their product—this enables us to keep our service to NEWELL STANDARD.

Time and effort given to the resale of these used cars could be spent to better advantage in the sales of New Cars, and for this reason we allow only the value or amount on the trade-in car that we know it to be worth—nothing more. Hence the reason for our prices.

We make no attempt to inflate the resale price, as the car represents to us only the amount of money we allowed on it, and for this reason we are in position to offer our Used Cars at prices that are right.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly review, says:

"If this were an ordinary year—that is to say, if it were free from the peculiar financial and political entanglements arising directly from the war, no one would find it difficult to explain the present week's movement on the Stock Exchange. Wall Street would point, first, to the quite unprecedented promise of the wheat crop, with possibly the highest recorded condition for the winter crop, on what is certainly the largest acreage ever planted; this prospect having arisen in the face of a sure deficiency in the supplies from other quarters, for the outside consuming world. A long experience has taught most observant Americans what that situation usually means.

"The Wall Street oracle would next refer, in an ordinary year, to the fact that our export trade, with its our excess of exports over imports, was breaking all precedent of our history; the January shipments having run $118,000,000 above last year, notwithstanding lower prices for most of the goods exported, and $9,500,000 beyond the largest previous monthly record.

"He would cite the fact that the country's banking and credit situation was exceptionally strong; proving this not only by the ease with which necessary loan could be obtained at banks, but by last month's record of commercial failures in the United States, which was in number the smallest of any February since the mercantile agencies began their compilations.

The Wheat Guarantee.

"As matters actually stand today, there have been several counter-arguments. It could be said, first, that since our Government had guaranteed a price for American wheat higher than the outside world was likely to pay, therefore, the larger the wheat crop, the larger the loss of the Government on its contract.

"As regards the export trade, the fact remains that what we were selling to our allies was being sold on long-term credit, and was similarly increasing the Government's obligations. Behind these special results of war-time finance, it could be alleged that the railway situation was precarious, in the confusion caused by Federal operation, that orders in the various industries were decreasing, and prices falling, and that the attitude of labor complicated everything.

"It was on the basis of these other considerations that the stock market engaged in its long decline between January and March. Apparently, however, it is now taking a different view even of these aspects in the situation.

"The complication of the wheat price guarantee is extremely awkward from the Government's point of view. Yet the result will be to enrich the producing West in probably unprecedented measure; and even if the outside consuming world pays less than $2.26 per bushel, its purchases, in the aggregate, will very possibly exceed all precedent, even in money value.

"That we are taking due-bills at long dates for our exports to our allies is true. But it so happens that we do not need repayment in cash, and that the increase in Europe's financial obligations to America, increases rapidly our already immensely powerful international position.

Exports Are Enormous.

"Furthermore, it is to be observed, that whereas our total exports in the seven months ending with January, increased $64,000,000 over the preceding fiscal year, the exports to Europe, most of which were financed by Government loans, decreased $97,200,000, while shipments to other continents, in favor of which there is no such financing, increased $161,000,000.

"That is to say, our national power in the general export trade is being even more strongly asserted than in 1915 or 1916.

"It was important that the situation of the industries should not be considered with these qualifying facts in view—which gave force to the inferences drawn this week, from the preliminary arrangements planned to break the deadlock between the Government's purchasing bureaus and the manufacturers.

"The railway situation remains, and it will remain for a good many months. All that can yet be said of this aspect of the situation is that the public at large, and Congress in particular, are at any rate in a more rational frame of mind regarding the future status of the roads than at any time in years. But the precise result is a matter of conjecture."

Stocks regarded gains of 2 to 6 points on the week's dealings. Yesterday's market was at the highest level of the week.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, March 8.—"The city expresses some anxiety over the peace conference, due to the growing feeling that President Wilson is putting the cart before the horse in urging the setting up of the league of nations before seeing to the administering of justice an dthe settling of immediate and urgent peace problems.

"It is believed that if the formation of the league of nations is not relegated to a second place in the discussion, difficulties may arise, even in establishing a satisfactory preliminary peace.

"The extent to which Wilson and Lloyd George are supported in their position by popular opinion is a matter of some debate. One highly essential thing is that there be no misunderstandings between England and America.

Conditions in Germany.

"Conditions in Germany are giving rise to no little apprehension. Some quarters even profess to fear that the occupation of Berlin may yet be necessary to establish order in Germany, and prevent the rise of Bolshevism, with ultimate disaster to the allies, through the inability of Germany to render the financial compensation which is easily possible if order is restored. There is a general feeling that the developments of the next few weeks will be momentous.

"Our war expenditure, which touched more than £7,000,000 sterling per day at one time during the war, is still about £5,500,000. It will shortly be further reduced, but the expenses of demobilization, including compensation payments, are enormous.

"A great outcry has been raised here against the tremendous national expenditure. Strong, healthy criticism is justified, but you in America should note especially the sudden outbreak of the Northcliffe press. The hysteria is largely a personal attack against the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, who some months back attacked the Northcliffe papers in the House of Commons.

The Financial Position.

"The financial position at the end of the fiscal year which closes this month, is roughly as follows: probable revenue will be £870,000,000, or about £30,000,000 more than the estimates; probable expenditure will total £2,570,000,000 or £400,000,000 below the estimates. The excess of expenditure over revenue has been covered by borrowing, chiefly through issues of war bonds, althoug £250,000,00 was raised by ways and means advances. Against our large total floating debt, however, must be set the Government's realizable assets, estimated at more than £1,000,000,000 sterling.

"The activity and rise in French exchange are only partly explained by the fact of the French $100,000,000 loan maturing in the United States on April 1, with rights to holders to claim repayment at the rate of 5¾ francs to the dollar. Other interesting influences are operating as well.

HOGS FEATURE WEEK AT THE NATIONAL STOCKYARDS

Prices Reach Close to $19, After Minimum of $17.50 Is Removed—Sheep Also Higher.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Week before.	Last year.
Cattle	23,100	20,100	18,000
Hogs	66,300	94,000	58,800
Sheep	6,000	4,500	3,300

The supply of cattle was not burdensome last week, yet market conditions were peculiar. First, the trade from a general standpoint showed strength, only to close with a general loss in prices on all varieties compared with the week before, barring killing steers, which were strong to 25c higher, and the very best grades of butcher cattle, which finished steady. Medium flesh cows and butcher cattle were so plentiful that they declined 25c to 50c, while a like decline was recorded on stockers and feeders.

Prime, heavy beef steers are selling at $18.25 to $19.25; choice to prime, $17 to $18.25; good to choice, $15 to $17; medium to good, $13 to $15; common to medium weighty steers, $11.50 to $12.75; common light steers, $9 to $10.25; good to choice feeders, $12 to $13.25; common to medium, $10 to $11.50. Good to choice stockers, $10 to $11.50; common to medium, $8.50 to $9.50. Choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $13 to $15; good to choice, $11 to $13; common to medium, $8.50 to $11. Choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $12.50 to $14; good to choice, $11.50 to $12.50; medium to good, $10 to $11.50; fair fleshed cows, $8.50 to $10. Cutters, $7 to $8.50; canners, $5.75 to $6.50. Good to choice stock cows, $7.75 to $8.25; good to choice stock heifers, $8 to $9. Fat bulls, $10 to $12; heavy sausage bulls, $9 to $10; light sausage bulls, $8 to $9.

Not all of yesterday's hog receipts were available for sale. The market was decidedly active, opening 15c higher, with an early top of $18.90, but at the close the trade had strengthened to such an extent that all classes were fully 25c higher than Friday, and choice heavy hogs, had they been available at the close, would have brought $19 per cwt.

Since the minimum price on hogs was taken off, during the middle of last week, the market boomed upwards, and yesterday it was the highest it has been since early last fall. The strictly choice heavy hogs, such as weighing 200 lbs. upwards, ranged over 80 cents per cwt. higher than a week ago, but on all classes of lighter hogs, pigs and Southern stuff, yesterday's prices indicated an advance of fully $1, and in cases $1.50 per cwt.

Good to choice hogs, 200 lbs. upwards are selling at $18.50 to the top; light and mixed hogs, 160 to 200 lbs., $18 to $18.40; 120 to 140 lbs., $16.50 to $17.50; 80 to 115 lbs., $14.75 to $16.25. Best roughs, $16.40 to $16.60; half-fat roughs, $12.50 to $15.50.

Sheep reflected material strength, due to a scant supply and general satisfactory conditions of outlet. Prices showed uniform advance of $1 per cwt. on lambs, and 50c on fat sheep.

Strictly choice finished lambs sell for $19 to $19.50; good kinds of lambs, $18.50 to $19; half-fat and medium kinds of lambs, $17.50 to $18; cull lambs, $12.75 to $15.25; fat sheep, $11.50 to $13; choppers and bucks, $9.50 to $10.50; canners, $5 to $6.50; fat goats, $7.50 to $9.50; medium flesh goats, $6.50 to $7.50; thin common kinds of goats, $4.50 to $6; kid goats, $7.50 to $12.50.

CORN SOARS 6 CENTS IN WEEK'S TRADE ON 'CHANGE

Market Is Influenced by Small Supplies and High Price of Hogs; Oats Are Firm.

Corn went soaring in value here last week, as a result of aggressive speculative buying based largely on the fact that the visible supply had been reduced to an amount nearly without parallel at this time of the year, whereas feeding requirements were far above the average. Compared with a week ago, corn at the close yesterday showed 6c to 8c advance. Oats were 1c to 2½c higher.

Bulls in the corn market took full advantage of knowledge that there was virtually no contract stock on hand here and that commercial values of corn seemed to be much below the feeding worth, as judged by current estimates of the large number of hogs back on farms, and by the assumed disproportionately small reserve of corn ready at hand for feeding.

Under such circumstances the lifting of embargoes, which had hindered the export of packing-house products, more than counter-balanced withdrawal of the hog price minimum, and without waiting for Government figures there was feverish buying on the theory that any exports of corn from this country would directly curtail the suply essential for domestic live stock.

Oats developed independent strength, owing to improved domestic and export demand.

Farm holdings on March 1, announced by the Department of Agriculture, shows: Corn, 884,476,000 bushels; wheat, 129,258,000 bushels; oats, 588,421,000 bushels; barley, 81,899,000 bushels.

Farm holdings on March 1 in 1918 and 1917 were: Corn, 1,253,290,000 and 783,303,000. Wheat, 107,745,000 and 100,650,000. Oats, 599,208,000 and 394,211,000. Barley, 44,419,000 and 33,244,000.

The percentage of the 1918 crops which will be shipped out of the counties where grown were announced as follows:

Corn, 14.5 per cent, compared with 22.1 last year and 17.6 in 1917. Wheat, 58.7 per cent, compared with 51.1 last year and 56.7 in 1917. Oats 27.2 per cent, compared with 32.3 last year and 28.4 in 1917. Barley, 33.1 per cent, compared with 39.7 last year and 43.5 in 1917.

The proportion of the 1918 corn crop which is merchantable is about 2,129,764,000 bushels, compared with 1,837,728,000 of the 1917 crop.

The Government return of farm stocks of corn March 1 is 100,000,000 bu below the average holding of the past five years and has been smaller three times in 10 years. It shows a consumption since Nov. 1 of 1,816,738,000 bu, or at the rate of 454,000,000 per month. There are more hogs in the country today than ever before at this date. The world's demand for meats and fats is insistent and is proving sufficient to maintain hog prices without any artificial price fixing. There is every reason to believe that farm feeding for meat production will continue upon the same liberal scale of the past four months.

Grain Corporation to Sell Its Wheat Holdings.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The United States Food Administration Grain Corporation announced last night that on March 15 it will begin sale of its surplus wheat holdings in American milling centers in an effort to prevent an increase in flour prices.

Julius H. Barnes, president of the corporation, said the Department of Agriculture report, issued today, indicated that "contrary to public opinion, the crop of 1918 will provide no more then sufficient to meet our home needs and the foreign requirements falling upon us," and added that already mills were experiencing such difficulty in obtaining wheat for milling that they were offering as high as 10 to 15 cents a bushel above the Government's guaranteed price to the farmers.

During 1917-1918 Mr. Barnes pointed out, the price of flour was established by agreement of millers with the Food Administration, but this agreement no longer is in force and only Government sale of an adequate supply of wheat to the millers would prevent an increase in flour prices, he said. This, he added, was in direct contradiction of "the general belief that only the purchase by the Government of wheat at the guaranteed price maintained the price level for the farmers." The Government wheat Mr. Barnes said, will be offered for sale on and after March 15, at such milling centers as Duluth, Kansas City, Chicago and St. Louis, on the basis of cost plus accumulated charges.

COTTON IS UP 50 TO 70 POINTS AT THE CLOSING

Market Is Influenced by Small Spot Offerings From the South and Better Trade Reports.

NEW YORK, March 8.—There was a firmer tone in the cotton market early today, owing to the reports of a gradual improvement in the goods market and small spot offerings from the South. Trading was active, but again consisted largely of liquidation of old style accounts and their transfer into the new style contracts.

The latter appeared to be attracting a little fresh buying, but there was a good deal of selling by spot people who were covering old short hedges, and not much change in the relation of the two contracts.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 27 points on the old and 12 to 25 points higher on the new contract, which worked some 40 to 50 points above last night's closing before the end of the first hour. Old style May sold at 22.44c and new style at 22.85c.

Brokers reported a broadening interest in the new-style contracts and market showed continued steadiness late in the morning with old-style May selling at 22.45c and new May 22.85c in the early trading. The close was within a few points of the best with the tone very steady at a net advance of 32 to 73 points on the old and 35 to 60 on the new-style months.

Cotton futures closed firm: March, old, 23.50c; May, new, 22.75c; old, 22.45c; July, new, 21.82c; old, 21.75c; October, new, 20.65c; old, 20.33c; December, new, 20.23c; old, 20.12c.

Murchison, St. Louis Sprint Star, Wins Both 300 and 60 Yards Titles, at Brooklyn

Mound City's Only National Champion Close to World's Record in One Event—St. Louis A. A. Ties for Second in Point Competition.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 8.—Loren Murchison, the youthful athlete representing the St. Louis Athletic Association, made himself famous again tonight, at the 138th Regiment Armory here tonight, when he captured the senior A. A. U. indoor championship from the pick of the country's sprinters.

Murchison started off early in the evening by capturing the 60-yards dash in good time and followed it up a short time later when he beat a fast field in the senior 300-yards dash, covering the distance in 32 2-5 seconds, within one-fifth second of the record.

As was the case at the Millrose games in New York, Bernie Wefers, son of the famous sprinter of other days, was the runner up in the short dash.

Murchison outran a fleet field in the 300 yard race and won by eight yards with Jimmy O'Brien, of Loughlin Lyceum, second. The race lost some of its interest when Frank Shea was shut out in his heat. In the 60 yard dash Murchison just romped home to beat Bernie Waefers Jr.

World's Record Falls.

A world's record height of 5 feet 4¾ inches for the standing high jump was made by Lieut. William H. Taylor of the Marietta (O.) Young Men's Christian Association. The previous record was 5 feet 4⅛ inches, held by Platt Adams of New York.

Walker Smith of Cornell University equaled the world's record of 9 2-5 seconds in winning the 70-yard high hurdles.

St. L. A. A. Ties for Second.

The Boston Athletic Association took the team prize with 13 points, with the Marietta (O.) Y. M. C. A. and the St. Louis A. A. tied for second with 10 points each.

Joie Ray of the Illinios A. C., Chicago, failed in his attempt to better his world's mark of 2m. 14s. in the 1000-yard run, his time being 2m. 16 2-5s. John R. Sellers (unattached) of New York uncovered a fast sprint at the finish, coming in second to Ray. Later in the evening he won the 600-yard run.

Murchison Wins Seven Races at Four Meets Within Fourteen Days

LOREN MURCHISON, the young St. Louis Athletic Association's sprinter, who gained honors at the national championship outdoor meet at Great Lakes, last summer, has just concluded a campaign, the success of which stamps him as a champion of champions.

Starting at the municipal carnival meet here, his record in the past two weeks is as follows:

MUNICIPAL CARNIVAL—Won first in 50-yards handicap; first in the 50-yards invitation, world's record time, 5 1-5 seconds.

MILLROSE A. C., New York—Won the 70-yards handicap and 70-yards invitation events, running five heats.

BOSTON A. A.—Won the 40-yards invitation.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS—Won the 60-yards and the 300-yards senior championships.

Murchison is expected to return home Monday, although he has been offered a splendid position to remain in the East. His next competition will be at the K. C. A. C. games, Kansas City, March 29, where he is entered in the invitation 50-yards dash.

Summaries:

1000-YARD RUN—Won by Joie Ray, Illinois A. C., Chicago; John R. Sellers (unattached), second; Tom Campbell, University of Chicago, third; D. S. Caldwell, Boston A. A., fourth. Time, 2m. 16 2-5s.

300-YARD RUN—Final: Won by Loren Murchison, St. Louis A. A.; James O'Brien, Loughlin Lyceum, Brooklyn, N. Y., second; Elmer W. Smith, University of Pennsylvania, third; Cornelius C. Shaughnessy, Knights of St. Anthony, Brooklyn, N. Y., fourth. Time, 32 2-5s.

TWO-MILE RUN—Won by Gordon Nightingale, New Hampshire State College; Clyde Stout, University of Chicago, second; Max Bohland, Paulist A. C., New York, third; C. E. Leath, Boston A. A., fourth. Time, 9m. 28 1-5s.

16-POUND SHOT PUT—Won by Patrick J. McDonald, unattached, 44 feet 7 inches; George Bronder, unattached, 42 feet ¾ inch, second.

STANDING HIGH JUMP—Won by Lieut. William H. Taylor, Marietta (Ohio) Y. M. C. A., 5 feet 4¾ inches (world's record); T. S. Clark, unattached, 5 feet 2 inches, second.

70 YARDS HIGH HURDLES—Final: Won by Walker Smith, Cornell University; C. R. Erdman Jr., Princeton University, second. Time, 9 2-5s (equaling world's record).

600-YARD RUN—Won by John R. Sellers, unattached; Homer Baker, Glencoe A. C., New York, second. Time, 1m. 15 3-5s.

STANDING BROAD JUMP—Won by Lieut. William H. Taylor, Marietta (Ohio) Y. M. C. A., 10 feet 5⅝ inches; J. C. Hoskins, Chicago A. A., second, 10 feet 4⅛ inches.

WEBSTER GROVES FIVE WINS 13TH GAME; BEATS JEFFERSON CITY, 37-15

The Webster Groves High School basket ball quintet won its thirteenth straight victory last night by defeating the Jefferson City High School outfit, 37 to 15. The contest was played at Webster Groves.

Spencer with 23 points, and Lincoln with 8 were the stars for the Webster aggregation, although the entire team played a well-balanced game. The visitors were unable to cope with the Webster attack, and this accounted for their defeat. The game, however, was really more closely played than the score indicates. The lineups:

Webster.	Positions.	Jeff. City.
Wright (2)	Right forward	Roath (2), Senebry (2)
Lincoln (8)	Center	Dixon
Russell (2)	Left guard	Reichel
Cantwell (2)	Right guard	Quinn

SCULLIN ELEVEN WILL OPPOSE INNISFAILS IN TITLE CONTEST TODAY

The Scullins, at present leaders in the St. Louis Soccer League pennant struggle by a single point, will battle the Innisfails at Cardinal Field this afternoon, in the contest that will decide the championship. The Ben Millers and St. Louis Screw Co. meet in the opener. Play at 2:15 o'clock with Phil Kavanaugh as referee.

The Scullins' lead was cut down when the officials this week allowed a protest of the Screw Co. on a recent game played with Tate Brady's aggregation.

A victory or tie for the Scullins today will net them the championship, while a defeat will give the 1918-19 honors to the Innisfails. Last place is at stake in the opening clash, which also should be very interesting.

All the managers will use their strongest possible lineups in the clashes this afternoon.

Largest Tourney in A. B. C. History Opens in Toledo

TOLEDO, O., March 8.—Low scores marked the opening of the nineteenth annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress here tonight. Honors of starting the big event in the bowling world fell to the Willys-Overland company, which has entered 50 teams in the tournament.

Sixteen Overland fives in uniform occupied the alleys on the first squad which followed a welcoming address by Mayor Cornell Schrieber and a short talk by Judge Howard of Chicago, past president of the congress.

Toledo boosters, the men who were largely responsible for the largest tournament in the history of the American Bowling Congress, occupied places on the platform and were complimented by Congress officials for their success in building up the entry list to the record figure.

The tournament is being held in the Lucas County armory, the Terminal Building, where other meetings here have been held not being available this year.

Between now and April 2, 796 five-man teams will have taken part in the competition. The tournament will be occupied by local teams until the 10:30 squad on Wednesday night when Chicago, Grand Rapids, Ligonier, Ind., and Cincinnati fives will operate. Tomorrow three squads will bowl, starting at 4 o'clock. The same program will prevail on Monday.

KIECKHEFER TO START SPECIAL MATCH WITH MAUPOME HERE MONDAY

St. Louis billiard fans will be given a chance to see Augie Kieckhefer, former world's champion, in action for the first time in almost two years, when the little Chicago southpaw engages Pierre Maupome, Mexican, in a 150-point three-cushion match which begins at the Rex Billiard Theater tomorrow night.

While he was recently defeated by Alfredo de Oro in a world's title match after he had defended his laurels seven successive times, Kieckhefer is regarded as the most promising young player in the country today. He and Maupome are playing exhibitions in various cities, having recently concluded a 300-point contest in Detroit which Maupome won.

Comment on Maupome and his popularity here is needless, since Maupome's work is familiar to all local followers of three cushions. He represented Peterson's parlors several years in the Interstate League. Maupome is regarded as one of the most brilliant shot makers in the game.

Kieckhefer holds the world's record for world's title matches, having beaten Charles McCourt in 132 innings last November, the fastest play ever recorded in a title match.

In the match here 50 points will be played on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, beginning at 8 o'clock. A referee has not yet been chosen. The players are expected to arrive today.

DENVER BOWLING TEAM TO SHOW HERE TUESDAY

The Navarre Hotel bowling team of Denver, Colo., will show in a special match against the Petersons, at Peterson's alleys Tuesday night. The Denver ten-pinners are stopping over here on their way to the American Bowling Congress tournament in Toledo. Arrangements for the match were completed by Charles C. Peterson yesterday.

Members of the Denver aggregation which will roll here are B. E. Moritz, Robert Smith, L. M. Gjerde, V. S. Warriner and E. H. Stapper. The quintet that will face them also is scheduled to roll in the A. B. C.

SPORT SALAD BY J. C. Davis

The Cowboy.

ALL hail to Jess Willard, whom some people stamp
As being a heavyweight quince;
He walloped Jack Johnson, the spavined old champ,
And he hasn't done anything since.

He captured the crown, then he laid it away
And proceded to live like a Prince;
After walloping Johnson he called it a day,
And he hasn't done anything since.

As heavyweight champ he's considered a joke,
And way from all trouble he sprints;
He captured the title by trimming the smoke
And he hasn't done anything since.

But the Cowboy at last has agreed to defend
His title for money galore;
One-tenth of a million he'll get for his end,
Then he won't have to fight any more.

ELIMINATION GAMES IN MUNICIPAL SOCCER BODY TO START NEXT SUNDAY

The elimination series to decide the Municipal Soccer Association championship will be started March 16, it was announced yesterday by Rodowe Abeken, Director of Municipal Athletics. Abeken also stated that a slight change had been made in the rules to determine the title winner. This season the championship series will be best two out of three instead of only one battle as heretofore.

Because of several protests, the St. Leos are now at the top in the junior division. The Lennox forefeited a game to the Ben Millers because they used Murphy, a player who was not registered. The St. Leos also won on a forfeit from the Ben Millers because Egan of the latter team was over age.

Billy Klosterman, manager of the St. Leos, has asked the Executive Committee to allow his eleven to play a three-game series with the Lennox to decide the junior title.

Today's schedule is as follows:

SHERMAN PARK No. 1—St. Patricks vs. Ely Walkers; Visitations vs. Alpen Braus. J. J. Kelly, referee.

SHERMAN PARK JUNIORS—Lennox A. C. vs. Ben Millers; St. Leos vs. Pershings. Oliver Miller, referee.

Yeatman Hands Soldan Quintet First Beating

New Champions Are Defeated, 32-25; Roosevelt Five in Close Victory.

Soldan High School's basketball five, which last week clinched the championship for this season, suffered its first defeat of the season at Cleveland Gymnasium last night when the Yeatman tossers were victorious, 32 to 25. It was one of the biggest upheavals in high school basketball during the current season and was a distinct surprise to followers of Soldan, who had come to the belief that the Gold and Brown was unbeatable.

This contest was the first of the usual double bill. In the second game, Roosevelt High School sent McKinley down to defeat by the close score of 13 to 12, after the latter had made a valiant effort to drag the game out of the fire.

Yeatman Greatly Improved.

Yeatman's game last night was by far the best the North Siders have exhibited this season, although their form in recent games had led high school basket ball followers to believe that they were a dangerous combination. The return of Weinel, Roettger and Samel, all of whom have been absent from Yeatman's lineup at various stages of the season, helped the team considerably.

Soldan appeared over-confident and suffered the penalty. The result of the game does not in any way affect the leadership of the High School League, but aside from being one of the biggest surprises of the season, it serves to show that Soldan has a team which can be defeated.

Yeatman outplayed its rivals appreciably in the first period and at the resting mark held a 22 to 11 advantage. While Soldan outscored Yeatman in the second half, they were unable to make up this big deficit. The work of Dunkmann was one of the biggest factors in the Yeatman victory, as while he did not tally any points, he was in the scrimmages at all times. Roettger's agressiveness also stood out plainly during the game.

Volland Wins Game.

In the second encounter, Roosevelt and McKinley battled nip and tuck all the way. It was only a few minutes before the conclusion of the game that Volland, right guard for Roosevelt, shot the deciding basket, a long toss from the center of the court.

At the time McKinley was leading, 12 to 11, and apparently was certain of victory. Had McKinley won the game it would have given them undisputed possession of second place. As it is, Yeatman has a good chance to land the position, since they are coming strong. The lineups:

Jack Johnson in Cuba, Signed to Box in 5 Bouts

Former Heavyweight Fight Champion Wants Chance at Jess Willard.

HAVANA, March 8.—Jack Johnson, formerly world's heavyweight pugilistic champion, arrived here today from Spain on his way to Mexico City, where he will make his first appearance in a ring contest since he lost the championship to Jess Willard, in this city, almost four years ago.

Johnson declared that he wants a return fight with Willard "anywhere, under any conditions, except those which governed the Havana contest."

He would, he said, split the purse to suit Willard—winner take all, 75 and 25 per cent, or otherwise.

Johnson looks to be in fine condition and said he tips the beam at 225 pounds. The former champion has signed a blank contract calling for five ring battles in Mexico with any opponents who may be selected for him. He hopes to meet Jack Dempsey and others of the best American fighters. Within four months, or after fulfillment of his Mexican contract, he expects to visit the United States.

In the other matches, Becker won three of five from Theobald; Kirchoff took the odd tilt from Scheer and Bauman downed Wolf three of five.

Class A matches resulted as follows: Schaff 5, Goehring 0; Horn 4, Klassig 1; Saller 4, Klein 1; Klare 3, Gloor 2; Forcade 4, Weaver 1.

Pikers Beaten by Missouri in Last Game, 35-26

Washington Unable to Hold One-Point Margin; Forward Scott Is Star.

Unable to hold a one-point margin gained in the last minute of the first period and maintained until the final few moments of play in the second half, Washington University lost its final basket ball game of the season to Missouri University at Francis Gymnasium, last night, 35 to 26. As a result of the victory, Missouri remains in the thick of the fight for the Missouri Valley Conference title.

Last night's game provided a fitting and thrilling climax to the season on the Pikeway. Not in the history of the season just expired has Coach Rutherford's aggregation showed the pluck and dash they exhibited last night, and it was only through the superlative work of Forward Scott of Missouri that the latter was able to gain the verdict when the game was all but over.

Score Always Close.

As evidence of the close basis upon which the teams battled it need only be said that at no stage of the contest, up to the final four minutes, was either team more than 4 points ahead of the other. From the start to the second period up to the time noted above, neither five was able to gain more than a 1-point margin.

Washington went into the second period on the long end of a 12-to-11 score, which in itself indicated that it was "anybody's game." Just as the first period closed a foul was called on Missouri and Russell shot the free throw which gave Rutherford's charges their 1-point advantage.

Throughout the second half, the game was fiercely contested until 4 minutes before the final whistle the tide turned. At this time Washington was striving valiantly to hold to a 1-point edge, the score standing 25 to 24. However, Forward Scott of the Tigers took matters in hand and almost single-handed brought about the defeat of the Pikers.

It was in these final 4 minutes that Missouri achieved the record of scoring four field goals in less than 2 minutes, largely through the wonderful passing work of Scott, who himself scored two field goals. While Washington was leading 25 to 24, Missouri took time out and went into the lead when Vogt scored a basket on the tipoff. That was the turning point in the conflict.

Four Straight for Tigers.

It was the fourth straight victory of the season for Missouri over Washington. In one respect the contest set a record, since there were but nine field goals counted during the first period, of which Missouri registered five. This is the smallest number of field goals counted in one period in a game in which Washington has played this season. The lineups:

Washington.	Positions.	Missouri.
Duncker (6)	Right forward	Ruby (6)
McElwee (2)	Left forward	Scott (15)

A. A. U. Wants Legislature to Pass Amateur Boxing Bill

Verne Lacy, of Western District, Authorized at Meeting to Draw Up a Measure to Be Submitted to Missouri Solons in Near Future.

THE Western division of the Amateur Athletic Union will within a short time draw up a bill to be introduced in the Missouri Legislature to have amateur boxing in Missouri legalized. At present the amateur shows are held under the same conditions as "pro" contests—for members of regularly organized clubs only.

The bill which the amateur officials hope to have introduced will be drawn up by Verne Lacy, chairman of the Registration Committee, and other officers.

Efforts will be made by the St. Louisans to get the sanction of the Chamber of Commerce and the leading churches as well as all the clubs now members of the organization to the amateur sport. In Kansas City, Dr. J. A. Reilly of the K. C. A. C. and a member of the W. A. A. U. Registration Committee, will attempt to get the business men and other high officials behind the bill.

To Use Gen. Woods' Argument.

After these sanctions have been received it will be put before the legislators. The recent statement of Major-General Wood, who refused the presidency of the Boxing Control Board, in which he said that he believed in amateur boxing but not in the professional sport, also will be used as an argument by the A. A. U. officials.

"There is no better time than the present to have a bill of this kind introduced, and that's why we will lose no time in having it done," said a prominent A. A. U. official yesterday in speaking of the proposed bill.

McGovern to Meet Kabakoff.

Benny McGovern and Harry Kabakoff, local featherweights, have been matched to appear in the 8-round feature bout of a boxing program to be staged at the South Broadway Athletic Club, March 18, President Harry Uhlmeyer announced yesterday. The boys have agreed to make 124 pounds at 3 p. m.

McGovern and Kabakoff were matched to meet in Des Moines, Io., late last month, but owing to a misunderstanding regarding the date of the affair, it was called off.

It was first planned to hold the bout Tuesday of this week. However, Kabakoff has been troubled by a severe case of boils, and on the advice of the South Broadway Club's physician, the contest was postponed a week.

From a strictly boxing standpoint this should be one of the best bouts of the season. The boys boxed once before, when McGovern won the newspaper decision.

It is highly probable that Kid Regan will be signed to meet the winner about two weeks later.

Rialto After Kilbane.

The Rialto Athletic Club expects to stage a boxing show within the next few weeks, or as soon as its new quarters are completed. The success attending the Regan-Moore encounter at the Coliseum has inspired Rialto officials to go after big game and it is said they are trying to get Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, to appear here, although the difficulty of finding a suitable opponent may hold up the deal.

Idaho Falls Offers Rickard $165,000 for Willard-Dempsey Go

IDAHO FALLS, Ida., Mar. 8.—ACTING for a group of local capitalists, Al. B. Hager, local promoter, today telegraphed Tex Rickard an offer of $165,000 and 50 per cent of moving picture privileges for the Willard-Dempsey fight.

The Idaho Legislature this week passed a bill legalizing 20 round boxing contests. The bill is awaiting the Governor's signature.

DAVID M'ANDLESS WINS AMATEUR BALK LINE CUE TITLE; BEATING COLLINS

CHICAGO, March 8.—David McAndless, of the Chicago Athletic Association, tonight won the National Amature balk line billiard championship by defeating Percy Collins, of the Illinois Athletic Club, 300 to 100, in 16 innings.

McAndless' victory bore out the prediction during the tournament that he had shown championship caliber. Until this afternoon when Collins beat him, 300 to 264, McAndless had five victories and no defeats. The defeat came in the last scheduled contest of the tournament and made a tie between the Chicago men representing rival clubs.

In the breaking of the tie tonight, McAndless quickly disposed of his opponent and played brilliantly much of the time while Collins failed to match his own best work. McAndless showed his superiority in making high runs of 92 and 46, while Collins' best were 33 and 19. The score by innings follows:

McAndless...1 3 0 46 6 0 21 0 0 42 37 92 23 7 22.
Collins ....0 4 0 4 1 10 10 19 1 1 4 5 6 33 10 1.

KANSAS AGGIES DEFEAT NEBRASKA AND CLINCH VALLEY BASKET TITLE

MANHATTAN, Kan., March 8.—The Kansas Aggies clinched the Missouri Valley basket ball championship here tonight by defeating the Nebraska five by a score of 31 to 19. The game was the tenth straight victory for the Kansas quintette. Two games are scheduled here with the University of Missouri team before the season closes but Kansas can lose both and still retain the title.

Manager Burke will order two workouts daily for the athletes, the morning sessions to begin at 9:30 o'clock and concluding around the noon hour, while at 2:30 p. m., the boys will report for a matinee session of the practice stunts.

Douglas Baird Signed by Phils to 1919 Contract

Former Cardinal Pleased With Terms; Paulette Has Boost for Rickey.

Douglas Baird, former Cardinal third sacker, who went to the Phillies in exchange for Milton Stock, announced last night that he had signed a contract with the Quakers for the coming season. Baird expects to report for spring training at Charlotte, N. C., March 23. He says he has taken on several pounds' weight during the winter months, but expects to get into condition quickly once he reaches camp.

Four More Cards Signed?

Batches of mail arrived at Cardinal headquarters yesterday, most of which was from players and incidentally, it throws some light on those who are signed to contracts for the coming season. President Rickey, who is out of the city, has thus far refused to give out the names of those players he has signed. The letters referred to were from Rogers Hornsby, Gene Paulette, Joe Schultz, Austin McHenry and Clifton Heathcothe. Hornsby is working under a holdover contract, but in the cases of the other players, it is surmised they have signed since all of them write for information as to when they will be ordered to report.

Paulette Strong for Rickey.

Gene Paulette, in a letter to Scout Charles Barrett of the Cardinals, starts out with this sentence: "Well, I am glad to hear we have a regular manager for the seasonof 1919—watch me go. I expect to have a great season under Mr. Rickey." Paulette not long ago reported himself dissatisfied with the terms offered him, but evidently has reached an agreement.

McHenry Ready to Report.

Austin McHenry, Cardinal outfielder, reports he is delighted with the decision of President Rickey to train in St. Louis. McHenry is at present at his home in Stout, O. He says he has kept himself in shape during the winter by many strenuous days of hunting.

Hornsby to Motor Here.

Rogers Hornsby has written President Rickey that he and his wife expect to drive to St. Louis from Fort Worth, Tex., by automobible. He requests Rickey to advise him when to report and says he is ready at any time. "If we drive through," Rog goes on to say, "will try to reach St. Louis a few days ahead of time so we can talk things over."

Flack Signs With Cubs.

Max Flack, outfielder for the Cubs, who lives in East St. Louis during the winter months, has signed a contract for the coming season, he stated yesterday. Flack expects to leave here for Chicago, March 16.

Joe Schultz Heard From.

The Cardinals have given Joe Schultz permission to spend a few days in Chicago before reporting here for training. Schultz is the second sacker obtained from Kansas City and for whom the Cardinals gave seven players. He has spent the winter working in the steel mills at Lebanon, Pa.

Hollocher Invited to Chicago to Talk Terms With Bruins

CHARLIE HOLLOCHER, Cubs' shortstop who has been unable to reach an agreement with the 1918 National League champions regarding a contract for the coming season, has been requested by President-Manager Mitchell of the Bruins to report to Chicago a day in advance of the regular squad of the Cubs and talk over the matter of a contract.

Just what Hollocher has been offered by the Cubs and what he has demanded are not known, but the young star says he positively will not go West with the club unless he signs a contract. In the letter written by Mitchell, the Cubs' official points out that there is no prospect of reaching an agreement with Hollocher by mail and he suggests it would be for the best interests of both to talk it over in person.

He has suggested that Hollocher report to Chicago March 16, as the Cubs are scheduled to go West on the following day.

BETHLEHEM TAKES GAME FROM NEW YORK F. C., 2-1

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 8.—Playing indifferent ball today, Bethlehem Steel defeated New York F. C. in a National League game, 2 to 1. The local's form was directly the reverse of last Saturday when Akron was defeated. The men seemed to think that victory was a foregone conclusion and played accordingly.

Cubs Start West March 19.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Final training plans for the Chicago National League Club were announced tonight. The players will leave for the camp at Pasadena, Cal., March 19, and practice will be started two days later. Eighteen exhibition games have been arranged, the first being at Los Angeles, March 29. Peels Off Corns Between Toes

The Great Corn Loosener of the Age. Never Fails. Painless.

A corn mashed, squeezed and crushed, all day long, in between two toes! You can try the desperate, "treat 'em rough" way and try to dig it out and fail. Or, you can try the sensible, peaceful, painless, easy way and use "Gets-It." It's easy for "Gets-It" to remove corns in hard-to-get-at places. It's a liquid—a wonderful painless formula—it has never been successfully imitated. It settles on the corn, and dries immediately. Instead of digging out the corn, you peel it out painlessly. There's no sticky plaster that doesn't stay "put," no salve that irritates or rubs off. You reach the corn easily with the little glass rod in the cork of every "Gets-It" bottle. It does not hurt the true flesh. Try it, trot and smile! It's a blessing; never fails.

"Two Drops of 'Gets-It',—That's All!"

"Gets-It," the guaranteed money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Manufactured by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., and Lowell Drug Store.

St. Louis Capital Plans Big Indoor Recreation Plant

Establishment to Have at Least 40 Bowling Alleys and Many Cue Tables.

St. Louis, which is rated as one of the best bowling and billiard cities in the country, will, within the next year, have a recreation building, the same as Detroit, Cleveland and other cities throughout the country, unless present plans miscarry. Several influential men in the city, whose identity cannot be made public at the present time, are interested in the venture.

While not as large, the establishment will be along the lines of Sweeney-Huston's in Detroit. The Sweeney-Huston establishment has 88 bowling alleys on four floors and close to 200 billiard tables, and employs 250 persons.

However, the chances are that here there will be something like 40 alleys and also plenty of billiard and pocket-billiard tables. It also is the plan of the promoters to install a lunch room, soft drink fountains, barber shop, shower baths and other things which will help boost the game in this city.

The chances are that some of the alleys will be set aside for the especial use of women tenpinners and the only time will be permitted to use them will be on special party days. One of the features of the new place will be "no tipping allowed' crusade.

William Barron, who for 22 years has been connected with the bowling game in every end, is one of those interested in the venture and who has been physical instructor, will give lessons in delivering the ball. Barron states that many tenpinners use deliveries that are more harmful than useful to themselves.

In speaking of the venture several of the veteran bowlers here said as follows: "It will be a great thing for the city, as well as the bowling game."

Four other contests have already been arranged and officials are trying to get Jimmy Conzelman and George Finke, who met at the Coliseum, for the other bout. The bouts arranged are as follows:

Burrell Sparks, C. A. C., vs. Harry Ricks, S. B. A. C., 112 pounds.

St. Louis Girl Placed 7th in Tennis Rating

Miss Corinne Gould Moved Up From 13th Position by U. S. Ranking Committee.

By DAVISON OBEAR,
Missouri Field Secretary, Western L. T. A.

By virtue of a new national ranking of women tennis players in the United States, Corinne Gould of this city advances to seventh place from the position of thirteenth, given her by the first rating, announced last December. Last season Miss Gould held the Central States, Missouri State, city and municipal titles. Her most notable victory was in the Central States tournament when she defeated Mrs. Jack Rameson (Adelaide Yeager), former Missouri champion.

At the age of 19 Miss Gould bears the distinction of being the youngest player of the first 10 leading women players of this country and is the only St. Louis woman ever to attain so high a rank.

She is the second local tennis star, man or woman, to receive a first 10 ranking. Dwight F. Davis, donor of the famous Davis Cup, was placed fourth in 1898, second in 1899 and 1900 and third in 1901. He is the only St. Louis man to be placed in this class since the first selection, which took place in 1885.

First Ranking Rejected.

The second 1918 national ranking of women players was made shortly after it was discovered that the first had been made according to the old system which has been in vogue for any number of years. Under the old way only the first 10 players were numerically ranked, the remaining being grouped in classes of 10 each and arranged alphabetically. While the new plan still divides the players into classes, it numbers them in order and the number in each class is determined by their ability, on the basis of their 1918 play. The new system conforms to the one used in picking the leading men players.

Of the two lists of women players only one change takes place in the first six, Mrs. Stuart Green and Miss Eleanor Goss changing places, Mrs. Green taking No. 3 and Miss Goss No. 4. Corinne Gould gets No. 7. Miss Helen Pollock drops from No. 7 to No. 8. Miss Edith Handy advances from the second 10 to ninth position, and Miss Clare Cassell drops from eighth to tenth. Mrs. Jack Rameson and Miss Eleanor Sears are placed eleventh and twelfth respectively, instead of tenth and ninth.

A Hot Spot Chalmers Knows Neither Altitude Nor Weather

ANYONE who has motored much knows how a change of altitude—even of 600 feet—affects the average car. And when the weather changes, even if you never leave your home town, what a terrible affair it is to get your motor "running right."

A Hot Spot Chalmers knows neither altitude nor weather. For the Hot Spot device is proof against both.

No matter what the day, no matter where you are on the map, the Hot Spot carburizes the gas into a "dry" vapor from which all the power is wrung with amazing ease.

It is throbless, frictionless power, and on a cold day the engine runs warm in an instant or on a hot day runs cold consistently.

For "pulverizing" gas nothing yet has equalled the Chalmers Hot Spot and for racing it into the cylinders (a trick that is highly important), nothing has ever been made to approach the Ram's-Horn.

Either one of these two magnificent devices are worth an hour of any man's time. Both of them provide you a mental feast on modern engineering that you'll long remember.

Come see them. They've made the Chalmers one of the few great cars of the world.

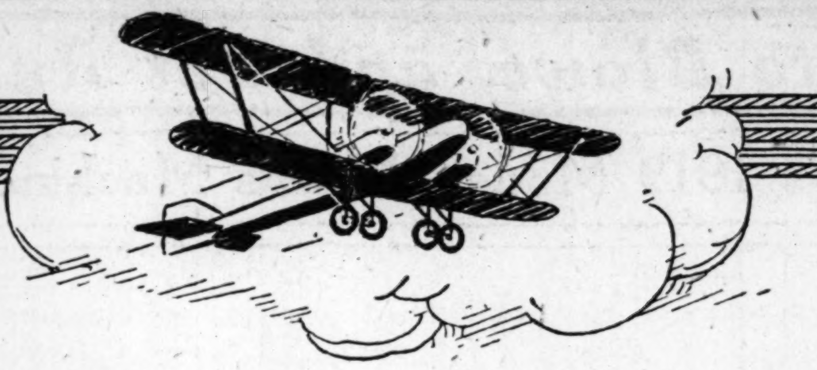
Weber Implement & Automobile Co.
1900 LOCUST



We have waited more than a year to give these facts to the public!

MORE than a year ago we introduced the Cole Aero-EIGHT. We offered no broad claims for it. That it sponsored aerotype design and construction—an absolutely new conception for motor cars—was sufficient to recommend it to the immediate ownership of thousands.

But now—after more than a year of its uninterrupted service in the hands of these thousands, we are prepared to disclose facts concerning the ability, capacity, utility and fitness of the Cole Aero-EIGHT which cause the usual claims for recognition to dwindle into insignificance.

15,000 Miles on Tires

Through application of improved engineering principles, we have created in the Aero-EIGHT a car which is giving 15,000 miles, or more, on its original tire equipment. This is not an unsupported claim, but an established fact based on the actual experience of owners.

Reports on tire mileage now in our files show that Cole Aero-EIGHTS which have been driven 15,000 miles have negotiated that mileage on their original tire equipment. The tires on cars which have been driven less than that distance are reported to be in such excellent condition as to assure their service for 15,000 miles, at least. In certain individual instances, owners report having negotiated as high as 21,160 miles on their original tire equipment before a replacement was necessary. These reports are available for investigation.

The Original Aerotype Motor Car

Availing itself first of every new and approved advancement in automotive engineering developed during the war, the Aero-EIGHT offers features which are nowhere else obtainable.

Not only was it the first and original aerotype motor car, but it carries aerotype designing to a more complete and extensive plane than can be found anywhere in the motor car field. As a result, the Cole Aero-EIGHT is a revelation in performance efficiency, mechanical development and scientific economy. It is seasons ahead in its contributions to motor car engineering and designing. It changes completely all former conceptions of what may be expected of a motor car

Uniform Efficiency and Economy

It is our firm belief—supported by the experience of thousands of owners—that the Cole Aero-EIGHT delivers more nearly 100 per cent. mechanical efficiency with greater economy at all speeds and under all conditions of travel than any other car.

Aerotype construction endows it with a wider range of performance than ever before has been embodied in a single motor car. It offers a combination of speed, reserve power, acceleration, hill-climbing ability, ease of control, road adherence and riding comfort that is unequaled. It reaches the peak of possibility in every department of motor car performance and under every condition it delivers the maximum efficiency with a corresponding minimum of operating cost.

Features Nowhere Else Available

Essentially a "custom-made" stock car, the Cole Aero-EIGHT adapts itself admirably to individual treatment. No stock car offers as complete accessory equipment or as many features of comfort and utility, while no strictly "custom-made" car offers more.

In the Cole Aero-EIGHT, the most exclusive body designs are coupled with the most advanced mechanical developments in automotive engineering. The Cole Aero-EIGHT throws wide the gates and permits the motor car to enter a new field of possibility and performance.

We have waited for more than a year to make these disclosures—waited until our own convictions had been substantiated irrefutably by the experience of not just a few, but of thousands of owners who are using their cars daily in every section of the country.

We now offer the actual performance records of the Cole Aero-EIGHTS in service as the irrevocable proof of the efficiency of aerotype design and construction—testimony which has weathered the test of months and the intimate experience of thousands of discriminating motorists.

TRUST COMPANY'S NEW HOME SITE READY SEPT. 15

St. Louis Union Formally Orders Tenants of Building at Seventh and Locust Streets to Move.

STRUCTURE'S HEIGHT NOT DETERMINED

Aldermen Authorize Vacation of Alley at Locust and Thirteenth Streets for Jefferson Hotel Annex.

By BERRY MOORE.

Conditions favorable for the improvement on a splendid scale of the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets and the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets are progressing. As was recently announced, the Seventh street corner has been acquired as a home site for the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and its companion, the St. Louis Union Bank, while the Thirteenth street corner is to be occupied by an annex to the Jefferson Hotel.

The St. Louis Union Trust Co. yesterday notified the tenants of the Seventh and and Locust streets corner to vacate the premises by Sept. 15 next, when the work of razing the structures on the site will be launched. The height of the building has not been decided, or, rather, as to whether additional floors shall be constructed above the space to be occupied by the trust company and the bank.

In the event that the building is to contain upper floors for offices, it will be extended to 12 stores, or 150 feet, the height limit permissible under the city building ordinance. It will be at least four or five stories high, these being required for the exclusive use of the financial institutions. A steel fireproof concrete structure with stone exterior is contemplated.

Mauran, Russell & Crowell, architects, are drawing the plans of the building in collaboration with Cass Gilbert of New York. Gilbert designed the St. Louis Public Library building, his design for it having been submitted in open competition.

Home for Federal Reserve Bank.

The present home of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and the St. Louis Union Bank, at the northwest corner of Fourth and Locust streets, has been purchased by the United States Government as quarters for the Federal Reserve Bank. It is expected that the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and the St. Louis Union Bank will be in their new home within a year and a half from the time the clearing of the new site begins.

The Mercantile Trust Co.'s building, at the northeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets, occupying the entire west half of this block, will be separated from that to be erected for the St. Louis Union Trust Co. only by a 20-foot alley, extending from St. Charles to Locust street, and bisecting the block. The American Trust Co. with the Title Guaranty Trust Co. less than a year ago completed an imposing home on the south side of Locust street between Seventh and Eighth streets.

Thursday the Board of Aldermen passed a bill providing for the vacation of the alley forming the west boundary of the Jefferson Hotel, situated on the west side of Twelfth street and extending from Locust to St. Charles streets, thus removing the only obstacle to the plans for increasing the capacity of the hotel.

Companion to Present Structure.

A 12-story annex conforming with the present structure is contemplated, with a second frontage on Thirteenth street overlooking Library Park and with a view of the Locust street vista. The building is to be erected by the Hotel Realty Co. of which Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., is president, and which holds the fee to the building and site. Wade promoted the Jefferson Hotel, which was erected on the eve of the World's Fair by a group of public-spirited citizens.

The ground on which the annex is to be erected is in two parcels, that on the Locust street side being held by the Composite Realty Co., of which Lorenzo E. Anderson is president, and that on the St. Charles street side by the Mutual Realty Co. of which Isaac H. Lionberger is president. The Locust street parcel will be improved first. There are about 150 members of the three holding companies.

"The projected annex to the Jefferson Hotel," said Theodore Hemmelmann, president of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., and a prominent member of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, "will form a handsome improvement for this part of the city, especially for Locust street west of Thirteenth street, which with its advent doubtless will throb with new life. The announcement of the Hotel Realty Co.'s plans in this connection is certainly exhilarating, coming at a time when the real estate market is again becoming vigorous.

Lindell Theater Passes to Control of Greater Amusement Company

IT was disclosed yesterday that the Greater Amusement Co. was the purchaser of the Lindell Theater, at Grand avenue and Hebert street, sold a week ago by Franciscus & Kunz on behalf of the Great Northern Realty and Investment Co. for $105,000.

The building occupies a site 85x150 feet and has 955 seats on the first floor, 820 in the balcony and 165 box seats, and is equipped with a large stage. It is of recent construction and is thoroughly modern and fireproof. Plans provide for the introduction of an organ and other attractive features. The building will be redecorated throughout.

The theater will be operated under the auspices of the Greater Amusement Co., of which Sam Hamburg Jr. is the moving spirit and which recently acquired the Park (now the Pershing), King's, Shenandoah and Juniata Theaters for moving pictures.

The Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co. represented the purchaser. Joseph Ebbeling, formerly secretary of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, is president of the Great Northern Realty and Investment Co.

HOTEL-APARTMENT FOR WASHINGTON AV.

The Argonne Realty Co. has been formed by Sam Hamburg Jr. to construct an eight-story hotel-apartment building at 3664 Washington avenue. It will be a duplicate of the Westmoreland Hotel Apartments, constructed by a corporation of which Hamburg is the moving spirit, on the south side of Pershing avenue, west of Union boulevard.

The Washington avenue building will occupy a lot 77x234 feet. The work of razing the present building will be begun at once. The site is within the shadow of the 18-story University Club Building, nearing completion at the northwest corner of Grand and Washington avenues.

The incorporators of the Argonne Realty Co. are Julius Baer, F. H. Kreismann, J. C. Van Riper, William H. Neiderlucke, vice president of the Jefferson Bank; Joseph M. Goldsmith, Victoria H. Grollneck and Sam Hamburg Jr. The cost of the building is estimated at $350,000. The Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co. will have the management of the building.

$260,000 PAID FOR WALL BUILDING BY LEEPER ESTATE

Six-Story Structure at Olive Street and Vandeventer Avenue Purchased as an Investment.

The Leeper estate, of which Truman Leeper is president, yesterday purchased the Wall Building, at the northwest corner of Olive street and Vandeventer avenue. The sale was effected by Williams & Bland for the Wall Realty Co., of which Charles Bergesch is president and Fred Semple is vice president. The consideration, it is understood, was approximately $260,000.

The building comprises six stories, those above the first being subdivided into 150 offices, arranged and equipped for physicians and dentists. The ground floor is occupied by a group of stores fronting on Olive street and also on Vandeventer avenue. The equipment includes both passenger and freight elevators. The building occupies a lot 100x150 feet.

The purchase was made as an investment, the annual rental derived from the building aggregating $40,000, according to Williams & Bland. The structure was erected about five years ago and is regarded as one of the best of its type in the city.

As showing the trend of capital toward investments of this character, Williams & Bland only recently acquired, on behalf of Mrs. Charles H. Barley, a seven-story building at 817-19 Washington avenue, the price paid in this instance being $400,000.

The Hutchinson Shoe Co. has acquired a lease through Williams & Bland of a store at 716 Olive street, the lessor being the Catlin estate.

Williams & Bland, composed of Charles P. Bland and R. S. Williams, yesterday removed to larger quarters at 717, Chestnut street. The concern is one of the most representative in realty and financial circles and has a long record of notable operations, embracing both business and residential property, including the promotion of the Dameron subdivision, dedicated to high-class apartment buildings, the first of its kind conceived in St. Louis.

Alterations will be made and the added space handsomely fitted up and occupied as private offices.

The rental department has been augmented by the employment of two young men who have been in the army, Sergt. Alvin Metelman, who was stationed at Campt Grant, and Louis Voigt III, who was with the Students' Army Training Corps at St. Louis University. The company also has in its employ Corp. Harry J. Braun, who was stationed at Camp Funston.

TWO MARYLAND TERRACE HOMES FOR SALE

If you pay $50 a month rent for your apartment and garage, you can live in Maryland Terrace, where the lot values are doubling NOW.

This house can be sold for $12,500, which low price includes a garage, big enough for two machines, and a wide lot, 219 feet deep, facing Westmoreland Drive. You couldn't build this home for $14,000, if you had the ground FREE.

The other home home (see Globe today) is a wonderful Colonial-Mission, situated on an 80-ft. lot by 219 ft. deep, facing Westmoreland Drive. It's a bargain at $14,500. You couldn't build it for $17,000, to say nothing of the value of the lot which is today worth $75 a foot and within five years will be $150 a front foot.

We also have a plan ready for a beautiful home, which we can start within two weeks, which we can build for $11,000. You can select the lot in Maryland Terrace you want, and within five months be in your own home, built to your own ideas. This house has those attractive, practical Whitney casement windows (expensive, but worth it), is stucco on hollow tile, brick to the lower window sills. Has four bedrooms, two baths, large closets, everything just as you would want it. Come out, look over this plan, make any changes to suit your needs. We can show you 12 houses we have built, so you can see just what you are getting. We can show you the size rooms in houses already built. No guess work—you know just how everything will look. You pick out your lot, and merely add that to the cost of the house.

Come out see Maryland Terrace. See the Sunken Garden, its parks and plazas, its deep lots, covered with 5000 shade trees, its 62-ft. building lines, keeping the houses away back from wide drives, its soft stuccos and warm, brown brick residences, set in ideal surroundings.

See or phone Mr. Davis, living n. e. cor. Williams and Westmoreland drive, Cabany 147W.

Conkey's

The Original
BUTTERMILK
Starting Feed

The lactic acid in the pure, rich buttermilk strengthens and tones up the sensitive digestive organs of the little chick and helps to prevent White Diarrhea.

MAKES CHICKS GROW

Conkey's is different from all other chick feeds and costs so little for those critical first eight weeks, because of results obtained. It builds strong, sturdy chicks that grow into heavy layers, good breeders and full-bodied market fowls.

Before the chicks come, get a bag and be ready to start them right. Follow with Conkey's Buttermilk Mash, the great Developer and Egg Producer. Sold by dealers.

Raise Every Chick

by feeding, during the critical first three weeks, the original "baby food for baby chicks"—

Pratts Baby Chick Food

Lower priced, inferior imitations of the original are usually coarse and indigestible and are almost sure to cause disappointment and loss.

Pratts, the original, is best and cheapest as measured by results, by number, size and quality of chicks raised. Satisfactory or money back. Dealers everywhere.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

S. A. D.—There are few surgeons who successfully reduce a large nose. Surgical instrument stores sell nose clip to reduce it. A preparation the application of which will sometimes reduce the size of a fleshy nose, is made from 1 dram of muriate of ammonia, ½ dram tannic acid, 2 oz. glycerin and 3 oz. rose water. The ammonia and acid should be put into the glycerin and dissolved before the rose water is added. A linen wet with this is put on at night and the nose is bathed several times a day, letting the liquid dry on. It should be used for some weeks.

EMBARRASSED.—As to checking growth one answerer wrote: I know of no way except to wear a brick under your hat. But, to be serious, there are exercises that tend to produce bodily symmetry and prevent the too rapid growth of one part of a body at the expense of the others. It doesn't matter how tall you are, if you are well formed and symmetrically built. I think you will find these exercises invaluable for the purpose: Double up the fists as tightly as you can, bringing them together in front with the arms raised so as to be horizontal. While keeping the arms on a level with the shoulders, slowly separate the fists as widely as possible. Or, lie extended upon the floor supporting yourself by one hand, while the other is placed upon the hip. While holding this position raise the body gradually from the floor until the whole weight is supported by the hand and feet. It is comparatively easy to get the body from the floor as far as the knees, but to bring it up to the full extent is not easy at first. It should be tried first on one side and then on the other.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

J. H. A.—For soiled plastered walls try sandpapering. Paint store sells paint remover.

L. B.—Somebody wrote to the lady who wanted to know what would remove ink from her crepe dress: Try soap that automobilists use. It can be purchased in tin boxes and has a gritty substance. I have removed tar and ink from clothing. Put some on and moisten to make a thick lather. If one application is not enough, try again. Try a piece of the goods first to be sure not to injure the colors.

MRS. ANDERSON.—Good Mexican Tamales are made from the following recipe: Scald 1 qt. of good Southern white corn meal, making it moist, but not soft. Have a chicken boiled tender and separate into parts; season the broth with the pulp of 2 doz. Chile peppers (or less), a qt. of whole olives, 2 lbs. raisins, cup sweet lard, salt and a suspicion of garlic or onion juice. Add enough cornmeal to thicken like gravy. Lay 1 of the prepared husks flat, put a piece of chicken on it and 2 tablespoons of the thickened gravy; fold the husk over with the chicken inside, and roll around this 6 more husks; spreading each with 2 tablespoons of the scalded meal. Tie each end securely with a narrow strip of husk and steam 3 hours or longer.

X. Y. Z.—To clean blue serge: Use best gasoline. First shake and brush gown to remove dust and dirt. Fill earthenware jar with the fluid and immerse the gown. Allow it to soak 2 or 3 hours. After soaking work the articles about, rubbing carefully between the fingers, or rub it with a brush having soft bristles. Take gown out, squeeze out the gasoline carefully and put it in another jar in which there is fresh gasoline. Allow to soak another hour, then squeeze carefully between fingers until it is nearly dry. Hang out in open air until every part of the liquid has evaporated. Stretch carefully to the proper shape and press with hot iron. The gasoline should be strained through cheesecloth and set aside for further use. This liquid is highly inflammable and explosive, and if possible it is best to use it out of doors.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MRS. WM. T.—Try writing War Department, Washington, D. C.

J. X. R.—Olympic games probably in 1920. Sweden is anxious to get them.

FIELD.—Secretary Missouri State Poultry Association, Fred Crosby, Mountain Grove.

M. M. B.—Man in the U. S. service cannot now be sued for divorce. Watch and wait.

IN DOUBT.—Without full particulars about the entailed estate we cannot properly advise you.

JUNE.—Newspaper matter is paid for in accordance with what its value may be to the paper. This varies.

ROXANNA.—Any literary magazine you see in book stores or on news stands publishes poems. You might write Authors' Agency, Garrison Hall, Boston, Mass.; also Reynolds' Literary Bureau, New York City.

ANXIOUS.—The annuities paid by the British people to the royal family for its support are as follows: The King and Queen, $2,350,000; Queen Alexandra, $350,000; Princess Christian, $30,000; Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyll), $30,000; Duke of Connaught, $125,000; Duchess of Edinburgh, $30,000; Princess Beatrice, $30,000; Duchess of Albany, $30,000; Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, $15,000 (suspended); Trustees for King Edward VII's daughters, $90,000; total, $2,790,000. The King also receives the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster. During recent years these have amounted to about $300,000 per annum. The Prince of Wales has an income also from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, amounting to about $210,500 per annum. When the royal children marry dowries are usually provided for them. The last of the children of the late Queen Victoria to marry, Princess Beatrice, received $150,000 as dowry from the British people by Parliamentary grant.

MRS. T.—Brown splotches are usually what is known as "moth," and if examined under a microscope will be found to resemble the mildew that is found on anything left damp and rolled away from the air. They many times are caused by a torpid condition of the liver, and so can be cured by the regular use of same agent that causes that organ to regain its activity. For this, none is quite so good as pure olive oil in small doses, taken regularly for years, if need be; anyway, for as long as a suspicion of such splotches remain teaspoonful half hour before breakfast and half hour after latest meal every day, seems a small dose, but persisted in will clear the skin in the course of a year, even if no other remedy is tried. Where such spots are very obstinate and have existed a long time, the bleach may be used in addition. The bleach formula is 8 grains corrosive sublimate in coarse powder, dissolved in 2 oz. each distilled witch hazel and rose water. It is applied 2 or 3 times a day with a bit of soft, old linen to the spots and allowed to dry on. After drying a little cold cream is rubbed into the spots to allay the ensuing roughness. This bleach will take off freckles, also, but it means so much trouble with the tender, new skin that forms as the old scales off, that few women have the requisite patience to use it properly. Just as sure as the rays of the sun strike this new, soft skin, that is like that of the new-born baby in its texture, a freckle will appear, because the deposit is still under the skin, needing only light to make the spot. Anyone using this formula should understand that corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison, 8 grains of which would kill in a fraction of time. The lotion should be kept in a bottle of some peculiar shape; its label should have the skull and crossbones, with the word "poison" in big letters printed clearly, and the bottle should not be kept where children and ignorant persons can get hold of it.

SUIT CASE—Leather, 4th District.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dearly beloved mother, Anna Breutinger, who passed away March 6, 1918:

Just one year ago today
Since our mother passed away.
O, Lord, keep green the grave that lies
Beneath the winter's starry skies;
Keep sweet with sleep, and give her rest.
Those hands are folded on her breast.
A loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home—it was His will—
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best.
May God grant her eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, GEORGE JR., FRANK P. AND ALFRED M. BREUTINGER.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dearly beloved husband, and our dear father, Aug. V. Merkel, who died March 12, 1918:

Father, we miss you everywhere—
Miss your advice, love and care.
A faithful father, so kind and true,
We always pray and think of you.
You're not forgotten in our mind.
To us you were so good and kind.
How our hearts are filled with pain.
We hope some day we'll meet again.
Peaceful be thy grave, so low,
How we miss you, no one knows.
Rest on dear one, thy labor is o'er,
Thy willing hand will toil no more.
Yet we know that you are happy
In the mansion of the blest,
Where there is no pain or sorrow,
In one sweet, eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Requiem high mass will be said Wednesday, March 12, at 8 o'clock, at St. Agnes' Church.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Hazel Putting, who departed this life March 11, 1918:

A shadow fell upon my life
When Death, the reaper, came
And took my darling Hazel
Away from earthly care and pain.
But some day my eyes shall see
The face I loved so well.
My hand shall press in hers
And never say farewell.
Where the sunshine loves to linger
And the raindrops gently fall,
Sleeping there, so peacefully,
Is Hazel, waiting for us all.

Sadly missed by her
PARENTS, GRANDPARENTS, AUNTS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

INTERSTATE COMMERCE EXPERTS

I want to hear from capable applicants, either with or without traffic experience, who are ambitious to qualify for important railroad or industrial traffic work leading to traffic managerial positions.

Our organization, with a large staff of interstate commerce, railway and ocean traffic experts, and with representatives throughout the United States, has been called upon to help meet the unusual demand for trained men, resulting from the readjustment of commerce and industry to a peace basis.

The industries are in need of trained experts who can figure the lowest transportation costs, determine quickest deliveries and shipping economies and increase traffic efficiency generally in order to expand domestic as well as foreign business.

Railroads, lake and ocean lines need more than ever before men with an expert knowledge of interstate commerce laws, rate construction, classifications, routing and adjustments of freight claims.

I have been requested to interview desirable applicants who wish to qualify for important traffic positions through training. This can be done while holding your present position. Accepted applicants will be placed under the direct supervision of one of our staff—an experienced interstate commerce and railway traffic expert of national reputation—and trained in the special knowledge and practical procedure necessary to qualify for industrial and railway traffic management.

No interviews will be granted except to those who state in writing their age, business experience, present position and education. If possible, give telephone number. All information confidential. Box H-32, P.-D. (1)

SONG WRITERS, ATTENTION!
Sergeant-Major Harold Dixon, band leader of the Fourth Infantry Regiment, U. S. A., has just been discharged and is again resuming his former capacity in the music business. Dixon is possibly the only song writer with an international reputation living in St. Louis, and he has written more song hits than any other song writer in the world. If you have a song poem that possesses merit and that you want set to original and melodious music, come up (or write him) and talk matters over with him. He also makes all kinds of music arrangements at reasonable prices. If you can arrange with him to set music to your composition he will guarantee you publication and circulate your song all over the United States without any charge for this service—and in addition you will get a royalty for each and every copy sold and paid for. Dixon-Lane Music Publishing Co., Holland Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. (c99)

Dear Friends:

The thought just occurred to me that possibly I have been somewhat derelict in my duty to the buying public, and a little further along in this OPEN LETTER I will try and explain why I feel as I do.

In the first place there has been and is now such an abundance of money coming into the hands of the general public that notwithstanding the high cost of food, clothing, etc., etc., you, or most of you, have been able to gratify your desires and furnish your home with the things that you wished for.

But to accomplish this result you have found it unnecessary to put three or four spoonsful of sugar in your coffee, to prepare more than the family really needed and especially have you been careful to prevent waste of any and all kinds.

In other words, we Americans have had some mighty good lessons in economy taught us that we will not soon forget and instead of a nation of gormandizers and dyspeptics from over eating and over indulgence, as we have been regarded in the past, we will henceforth be known as a saving, frugal people, which will enable us to participate more in the real good things of life, because by saving the money we spent foolishly we are able to educate our children in music, art and literature, things that go to make the home and national life what it should be.

Now in the beginning of this letter to you I said I would try and explain why I feel that I, as a merchant, have not quite fulfilled recognized requirements due the buying public.

In the first place I note in going over my books for the past year I find that I have been selling $450 to $2500 pianos and player pianos mostly. That is accounted for, largely, by the times and money conditions for the past few years, but it is partly due to the fact that we as merchants have put forth the greatest effort advertising, etc., to sell mainly the higher priced instruments and practically no effort has been made and no advertising has been placed to tell you good people about the large number of fine "trade in" upright pianos we have on hand.

This is something that, had I fully apprised you of—the fine makes, the good condition, the extraordinarily low prices and easy terms—there would not be one of them in my store now.

I know this to be true, for, while we are selling a very large percentage of Grand Pianos and Player Pianos on which these good pianos are taken in exchange, yet we know of a certainty that there are hundreds of people in and around St. Louis that would prefer one of these bargains to anything else, and they are absolutely right in their conclusions.

The most important thing after all is to "keep the home fires" cheerful with hand-made Piano music.

Ten to fifteen hours per month buys one of these splendid "trade in" pianos, whereas it used to take twenty-five to thirty-five hours per month to pay the payments. That's the difference in the times and you should not deprive your family of a reasonable education in music when you can secure it for them so easily.

I invite all interested, now or later, in the purchase of a piano to call and see these fine bargains. They are all marked in plain figures at prices and terms that will be pleasing to you.

KIESELHORST PIANO CO.,
By E. A. Kieselhorst, President,
1007 Olive St.

P. S. In my next open letter I will try to explain to you the immense shortage in manufactured pianos in this and all other countries at this time, and in a way, why you would be wise in taking advantage of this opportunity.

HUDSON-FRAMPTON USED CAR EXHIBIT
Second Floor, Used Car Sales Show.

We are leaders in the Used Car field and take particular pride in the fact that we have done and are doing more to place the Used Car in its proper commercial position than any other factor in the business. Under our leadership the time is fast approaching, and in fact is here now, in so far as we are concerned, when the customer may select his Used Car with the same confidence in the dealer and in the quality of his merchandise, as he has in choosing a new car at the necessarily higher price.

We appreciate the confidence shown us by thousands of customers in St. Louis and surrounding territory, and we shall earnestly strive to merit the continued patronage of old friends and the acquisition of many new ones.

SOLDIERS returning to their homes from overseas bear several markings, usually, on the sleeves and shoulders of their overcoats. Some of these devices yet puzzle the casual observer. All men of combat divisions, in addition to gold service stripes, have a distinctive insignia on the left shoulder which shows to what division of the American Expeditionary Force the wearer was attached. The above chart, in colors, shows what these devices are.

The Secret of Being a Convincing Talker

How I Learned It in One Evening

By GEORGE RAYMOND

"HAVE you heard the news about Frank Jordan?"

This question quickly brought me to the little group which had gathered in the center of the office. Jordan and I had started with the Great Eastern Machinery Co. within a month of each other, four years ago. A year ago, Jordan was taken into the accounting division and I was sent out as salesman. Neither of us was blessed with an unusual amount of brilliancy, but we "got by" in our new jobs well enough to hold them.

Imagine my amazement, then, when I heard:

"Jordan's just been made Treasurer of the Company!"

I could hardly believe my ears. But there was the "Notice to Employes" on the bulletin board, telling about Jordan's good fortune.

Now, I knew that Jordan was a capable fellow, quiet, and unassuming, but I never would have picked him for any such sudden rise. I knew, too, that the Treasurer of the Great Eastern had to be a big man, and I wondered how in the world Jordan landed the place.

The first chance I got I walked into Jordan's new office and, after congratulating him warmly, I asked him to let me "in" on the details of how he jumped ahead so quickly. His story is so intensely interesting that I am going to repeat it as closely as I remember.

"I'll tell you just how it happened, George, because you may pick up a pointer or two that will help you.

"You remember how scared I used to be whenever I had to talk to the chief? You remember how you used to tell me that every time I opened my mouth I put my foot into it, meaning, of course, that every time I spoke I got into trouble? You remember when Ralph Sinton left to take charge of the Western office and I was asked to present him with the loving cup the boys gave him, how flustered I was and how I couldn't say a word because there were people around? You remember how confused I used to be every time I met new people. I couldn't say what I wanted to say when I wanted to say it; and I determined that if there was any possible chance to learn how to talk I was going to do it.

"The first thing I did was to buy a number of books on public speaking, but they seemed to be meant for those who wanted to become orators, whereas what I wanted to learn was not only how to speak in public but how to speak to individuals under various conditions in business and social life.

"A few weeks later, just as I was about to give up hope of ever learning how to talk interestingly, I read an announcement stating that Dr. Frederick Houk Law of New York University had just completed a new course in business talking and public speaking entitled 'Mastery of Speech.' The course was offered on approval without money in advance, so, since I had nothing whatever to lose by examining the lessons, I sent for them and in a few days they arrived. I glanced through the entire eight lessons, reading the headings and a few paragraphs here and there and in about an hour the whole secret of effective speaking was opened to me.

"For example, I learned why I had always lacked confidence, why talking had always seemed something to be dreaded, whereas it is really the simplest thing in the world to 'get up and talk.' I learned how to secure complete attention to what I was saying and how to make everything I said interesting, forceful and convincing. I learned the art of listening, the value of silence, and the power of brevity. Instead of being funny at the wrong time, I learned how and when to use humor with telling effect.

"But perhaps the most wonderful thing about the lessons were the actual examples of what things to say and when to say them to meet every condition. I found that there was a knack in making oral reports to my superiors. I found that there was a right way and a wrong way to present complaints, to give estimates, and to issue orders.

"I picked up some wonderful pointers about how to give my opinions, about how to answer complaints, about how to ask the bank for a loan, about how to ask for extensions. Another thing that struck me forcibly was that, instead of antagonizing people when I didn't agree with them, I learned how to bring them around to my way of thinking in the most pleasant sort of way. Then, of course, along with those lessons there were chapters on speaking before large audiences, how to find material for talking and speaking, how to talk to friends, how to talk to servants, and how to talk to children.

Frederick Houk Law

As educator, lecturer, executive, traveler and author few men are so well equipped by experience and training as Dr. Law to teach the art of effective speaking. His "Mastery of Speech" is the fruit of 20 years' active lecturing and instruction in Eastern schools and colleges preceded by an education at Oxford Academy, Amherst College, Columbia University, The Teachers' College, Brown University, and New York University. He holds the degrees of A. B., A. M. and Ph. D. Dr. Law is the author of two novels, two books of poetry, and editor of six school text-books. At present he is lecturer in Pedagogy in the Extension Work of the College of the City of New York, Head of the Dept. of English in the Stuyvesant H. S. and writer of the Weekly Lesson Plans for The Independent.

"Why, I got the secret the very first evening, and it was only a short time before I was able to apply all of the principles and found that my words were beginning to have an almost magical effect upon everybody to whom I spoke. It seemed that I got things done instantly where formerly, as you know, what I said 'went in one ear and out the other,' I began to acquire an executive ability that surprised me. I smoothed out difficulties like a true diplomat. In my talks with the chief I spoke clearly, simply, convincingly. Then came my first promotion since I entered the accounting department. I was given the job of answering complaints, and I made good. From that I was given the job of making collections. When Mr. Buckley joined the Officers' Training Camp, I was made Treasurer. Between you and me, George, my salary is now $7,500 a year, and I expect it will be more from the first of the year.

"And I want to tell you sincerely that I attribute my success solely to the fact that I learned how to talk to people."

When Jordan finished, I asked him for the address of the publishers of Dr. Law's Course and he gave it to me. I sent for it and found it to be exactly as he had stated. After studying the eight simple lessons I began to sell to people who had previously refused to listen to me at all. After four months of record-breaking sales during the dullest season of the year I received a wire from the chief asking me to return to the home office. We had quite a long talk, in which I explained how I was able to break sales records—and I was appointed Sales Manager at almost twice my former salary. I know that there was nothing in me that had changed except that I had acquired the ability to talk where formerly I simply used "words without reason." I can never thank Jordan enough for telling me about Dr. Law's Course in Business Talking and Public Speaking. Jordan and I are both spending all our spare time making public speeches on war subjects, and Jordan is being talked about now as Mayor of our little town.

So confident is the Independent Corporation, publishers of "Mastery of Speech," Dr. Law's Course in Business Talking and Public Speaking, that once you have an opportunity to see in your own home how you can, in one hour, learn the secret of speaking and how you can apply the principles of effective speech under all conditions, that they are willing to send you the course on free examination.

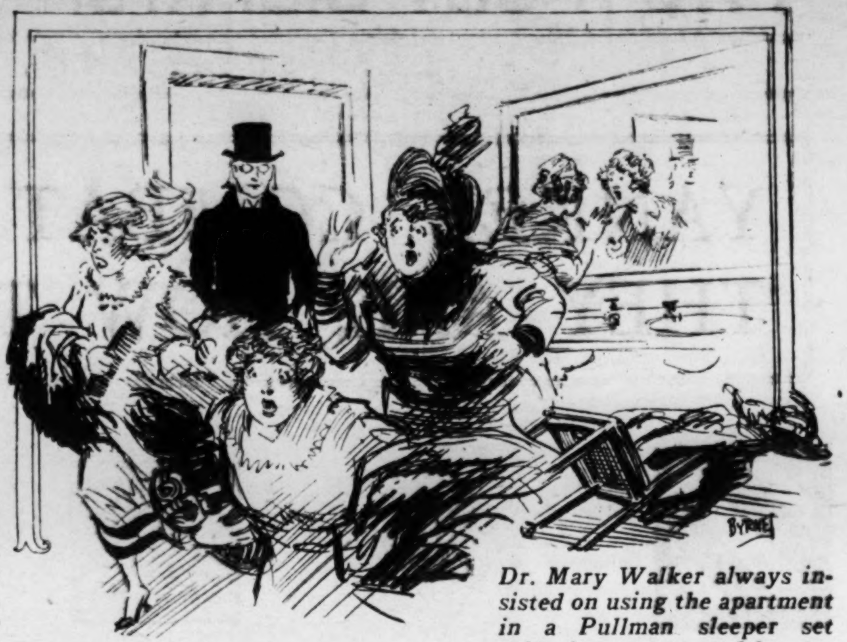
Stories Told About Dr. Mary Walker, the Oddest of American Women

How this protagonist paved the way for legal recognition of the right of women to vote — Remarkable experiences encountered in her crusade for suffrage and dress-reform —Subjected to many annoyances from women as well as men—Blazed the trail for the Pankhursts in London ::



Dr. Mary Walker always insisted on using the apartment in a Pullman sleeper set aside for women, and her appearance there, in silk hat and frock coat, was always the sign of a panic and demonstration on the part of other occupants busy with their toilets.

EPHEMERAL indeed is fame, if Dr. Mary E. Walker is soon forgotten. Less than two weeks ago this erratic little woman was consigned to her grave in her old home place at Oswego, N. Y., and that there be no mistake in the chronicles, let it be known that she was buried as she had lived since her girlhood days. Encasing that mortal frame, from boots to neckwear, were the habiliments of the male of the species homo; no garish robes of femininity for this protagonist, even in death and preparation for the tomb. Since her young womanhood she had elected to wear the coat and trousers of the masculine, not to speak of the hat and shoes always selected to match the other articles of raiment. It was even suspected that Dr. Walker wore men's socks, but she removed all doubt on this score a few years before her death, when she told some women at a convention that she had never abandoned stockings. And she qualified this answer by saying that the half-hose were too cold, and that she wore the longer kind because they were more comfortable, and not because they were regarded as feminine. If it had suited her to wear the socks, she would have defied custom as she had done with all other details of dress.

Dr. Walker began her pioneer work early. Since her death it has developed that even as a girl she showed a weakness for "mannish" dress and that she did not wait for the Civil War and her appointment as a surgeon in the Union army with the grade of Lieutenant, to indulge this desire. When she went to war she had the right, officially granted by Congress, to wear men's clothes, but long before this she wore odd-looking creations in dress that very closely resembled coat and trousers. But they were only imitations. When she went forth at the call for medical volunteers, she quickly exchanged her near-male articles for the regulation uniform of her rank and never thereafter did she get back to skirts or other womanly things. In fact, the remainder of her life was spent in men's garments and, this being the case, bargain sales in waists, dresses, cloaks, etc., and other things that appealed to other women, received only contempt from this eccentric creature. Pretty creations in chiffon, velvets, silks and laces never caused her to stop for a minute to gaze in a shop window, and thereby she saved much time, as she was always busy; at least that was her invariable answer to all requests to do something that she did not care to do. When she was given a chance to make a neat income on the vaudeville circuit, she gave this answer. Her time was always bespoken far in advance of such calls.

Like all cruises on uncharted seas, that of Dr. Walker was attended by adventure that would have tried the nerve of the stoutest-hearted of men; for when she went forth with her message, she had the angry contempt of the women to encounter as well as the ridicule of the men, but she never paused or cried for quarter at any stage of her crusade. She was out to demand rights for women and she was wearing the clothes of the men, because she believed that she was entitled to every privilege that law and custom conferred upon her brothers of the race. The women did not believe that there was anything ladylike about her masquerades and they did not stop with mere oral protest. It was nothing unusual for her sisters, whom she would uplift to the extent of voting just like men, to make faces and say uncouth things to her on the streets and in public places. Some did not stop with these manifestations of disapproval. A woman in New York set a big dog loose on the little doctor, and she had a battle with the brute, escaping without any severe injury. Her gloves were torn and the husband of the woman who started the animal after her, made it his business to find her, apologize for his wife and reimburse her for the damage to her property.

Annoyances came thick and fast thereafter and continued for years. Whenever she ventured out on the streets in New York and other cities, she was followed by crowds attracted by her incongruous makeup and the newspaper publicity that was so freely bestowed on her movements and her declarations for the rights of oppressed women. Small boys were her worst tormentors in her earlier years of missionary work, and on a number of occasions the police had to rescue her from urchins, who went so far in some instances as to throw rotten eggs in her direction. These persecutions did not deter her a particle in her personally conducted campaign, and she found satisfaction in the contemplation that the annals of ancient and modern history were replete with martyrs to all great causes.

One of the worst experiences she had was in London, where she went a year after the assassination of President Lincoln to spread the light for her movement. She sailed on her English tour with a great trunk filled with "men's things," and announced before she left that she would wake up London, and subsequent developments confirmed this prophecy. She did stir up old London far beyond her expectations. She went abroad proudly wearing the medal she had received from Congress for her work as a surgeon during the war. It did not take her long to discover that England was not good soil for her propaganda, even though she did attract a record crowd in the great St. James' Hall, then the largest in the British capital. Though she delivered her address on that occasion, it is even doubtful if she heard her own voice that night. England is credited with originating the practice of "heckling" speakers and the mob that packed St. James' Hall that evening was evidently composed of past masters in this art. An article published in the "All the Year Round" magazine, then personally directed by Charles Dickens, the great English novelist, described the meeting as nothing short of scandal. Though he condemned the mission of the speaker and her attire, he used even stronger language denouncing the audience that showed the "American lady-doctor" such a lack of attention and courtesy. But this was long before the advent of Sylvia Pankhurst and the other militants, who were able to force attention from even the heckling London audiences.

Nothing daunted, she returned to her native soil and went ahead as though nothing had gone wrong in her mission beyond the seas, and she even increased the voltage of her charge. She went to Chicago and made history rapidly, but very few converts. The women of the West were even less partial to her message than were their sisters of the East. Chicago was profoundly shocked, and some of the women there believed in taking drastic measures to punish another woman who would go abroad in men's clothes advocating such an improper thing as voting, just like the men. Getting back to her home town, some of the young men there started a movement with a "suggestion of tar and feathers," but this never got beyond the stage of talk. It did not frighten Dr. Walker and the chances are she would have given a good account of herself, even though the attack was actually attempted.

Snapshot of Dr. Mary Walker talking in street to delegate to a political convention.

She visited St. Louis a number of times, but never made much of an impression here. Her first visit was in 1876, when the Democratic national convention was in session, nominating Samuel J. Tilden for President, over the shrieking protest of Tammany Hall, then led by the redoubtable John Kelly. She stopped at the Lindell, which then occupied the greater part of the block at Sixth and Washington avenue, now the site of the Stix, Baer & Fuller department store. Old-time residents say she received no encouragement from that convention, and the same can be said of her efforts with the other conventions. None of them wanted to take any chances with a women's rights bill, promoted by such an oddly made-up champion. Later on, she took the position that women had the right to vote without any enabling legislation begrudgingly conceded by men, and she quit wasting her time on politicians.

She always wore a silk hat on her travels, and this was neatly polished at all times. Her frock coat was worn closely buttoned about her slender frame, and her trousers were never permitted to bag at the knees —a sartorial nicety not always respected by those who have of necessity to wear them. She also had the regulation waistcoat, white shirts well starched and men's shoes. No French or Cuban heels for her. About the only feminism that she did not entirely discard had to deal with mirrors. She never could pass one without making a stop, and on such occasions she would remove her silk tile and fix her hair. She carried in a special pocket, inside her coat, a long comb which she used quite frequently. She never wore her hair very long since she was 17 years of age. At that time she sacrificed her locks with her own hand, as she told on many an occasion. Had this queer little woman, who so courageously pioneered a movement that has already been written into the laws of a number of states, including her native State of New York, been as sensitive as are most women, she would have given up at the start; but she was possessed of no such weakness. Four years of experience, that tried the souls of men on the battle fields from Gettysburg to Manassas, had given this wonderful woman a stamina that made her proof against all ordinary reproofs and setbacks. She had troubles and problems to surmount everywhere she went, and some were most trying. When she went on Pullman cars and essayed to use the women's dressing rooms, she invariably started a commotion that called for quick intervention from conductors and others of the train crews. Many times she frightened the other women passengers, who, of course, thought she was a man trying to force his way into forbidden precincts. When she told who she was, she did him capable. "The doctor humored you, and told me to; so here goes!" He called through the speaking tube and directed the chauffeur to return. "Go back till you get within a few yards of that car we passed hung up on the road," he added.

"Astonishing, the interest you take in the Herons!" he teased the girl, both her hands in his.

"I wonder at myself," said Clo. "I don't know why I care so much, unless it's because I somehow feel responsible. You see, I heard Kit and Churn talking of the plot, and saying that Chuff was sure to have found someone else after Pete died. That's some time ago, and he hasn't been properly warned."

"Will you get out and talk to him seriously?" Clo urged.

"Yes—if it was he and not his ghost that you saw. I'll get him to walk along the road with me, out of earshot from his wife."

Justin kissed his bride of a few hours good-by for a few minutes and jumped out. When he had gone, Clo pinched her arm hard.

While Clo pinched herself, and kissed her hand, almost timidly, because Justin had kissed it, Justin walked on to the other car.

"You!" exclaimed Dolores Heron. "So it was you in the limousine that hailed us? Funny I didn't recognize your voice when you called out; but the chauffeur's tinkering made such a noise"——

"I didn't quite realize myself who it was until I had passed," said O'Reilly.

He was about to ask for Heron when Dolores introduced him to Mr. Hammersley-Fisher.

"He's our host at Narragansett, and he's taking us over to Roger Sands'," she said, pleased that Justin should fancy such an important person as Hammersley-Fisher a victim to her dark charms. "Jack's in the car, very bored. I believe he's gone to sleep."

"No, he hasn't!" Heron's voice answered rather testily, for he secretly disliked Dolores' habit of calling him "Jack." "He was only waiting for a chance to speak."

O'Reilly went to the window of the car and shook hands with his friend.

"It's not possible that you're going to the Sands'?" Heron said.

"I should have made the same remark about you, a few days ago," retorted O'Reilly; "but circumstances have altered cases with us both."

"My wife is the circumstance that has altered my case," Heron replied, in the tone of a man with a grievance.

"So is mine!" returned Justin in a very different tone, but a purposely subdued one.

"Your what?"

"My wife. But let's take a walk. Your friend's car won't be ready to move for some time, I should judge.

The elder man, who had been feeling ill and tired, jumped out of the car with a sudden increase of liveliness. Dolores and Hammersley-Fisher, who stood with their backs to O'Reilly and Heron, turned for a glance, but let the two men walk away without a question.

"Your wife, did you say?" Heron was repeating.

"I did," replied O'Reilly. "But before I go on, I have a question or so to ask of you, Heron. You got my wire yesterday, advising you to be careful, and hinting that some of the old lot had bobbed up on your life-line?"

"Yes. We were out all the afternoon at a beastly country club. Country life, supposed to be good for my health! I found the wire this evening when we got back to Hammerley-Fisher's place to dress for dinner, and for this show at Roger Sands'. Now will you tell me"——

"I'll tell you this—that my opinion of Mrs. Roger Sands has changed. You shall hear why presently, and then you'll change yours in the same way. I rather think it will give you pleasure to change it, when you can do so conscientiously. As for Sands himself, I've learned that we have both done him an injustice, in so far as ever thinking he might have instigated the taking of those papers."

"How have you learned all this?"

"From the same person who wished me to put you on your guard—who made me call you up at Narragansett and wire when I couldn't reach you by phone."

"Who is this person?"

"My wife. And if you want to know who she is"——

"I most certainly do."

"I could introduce you to her in about two minutes, if I weren't afraid of her giving you another shock."

"Another shock?"

"As she did on the Sunday night at our hotel when you had your—little attack. Heron, I've married that girl—the most wonderful girl in the world, while I am at this moment the happiest man!"

Heron stopped short in the middle of the road and turned to face his companion. Once more he echoed O'Reilly's words.

"That girl! You—have—married—that girl!"

"Yes," said Justin, with an air of lightness foreign to his feelings at the moment. "I married her this morning. So, if you've thought of forbidding the banns, you're too late!"

For a moment Heron did not speak; but when words came, he seemed to fling them at his friend.

"You're not joking when you say that, O'Reilly. You have a meaning. What's in your mind?"

"Perhaps the same thing that's in yours, Heron."

"Speak out plainly."

"I'm not prepared to do that without encouragement. I've always had a fear of being one of those fools who rush in where angels fear to tread. My imagination may have run away with me. You and I are both of Irish blood, Heron, so you know as well as I do that the seed gets out of hand now and then with us Celtic folk. We sometimes flatter ourselves that it's second sight, whereas it may be—just nothing at all."

"I give you leave to tread where the angels stand back."

"Well, then—long ago, when I first knew you, while my father was still alive, and before you married Miss Moreno, you once came to stop with us. You were run down and ill. My father thought we could do you good. One day you spoke rather frankly about a certain incident in your past. It appealed to all the romance in me, and I pitied you with all my heart. Never since then have we mentioned that conversation; and I never expected to do so again; but yesterday I heard the story of another incident which matched it curiously—and about as perfectly as the two bits of broken coin fit together. This second incident concerned two Irish girls. The first died years ago. The second—is my wife."

"And the first was mine?"

"I was wondering. You see, that collapse of yours on that Sunday night wasn't like you in the normal course of things. It had to be accounted for, and so"——

"The girl told you!"

"She told me that she met outside my door a tall man with red hair and beard and extraordinary eyes that pierced her through and through. She told me that after she walked on a narrow stone ledge from my window to yours, and climbed in there"——

"Good heavens!" Heron murmured.

"I mentioned that she was the most wonderful girl in the world. She had a good reason for what she was doing, and some day you shall hear the whole story. She didn't know who you were then. When she learned, although she wasn't conscious of having heard the name in the past, it affected her strangely. She seemed to associate it with wakeful nights in her early childhood, and the sound of a woman's sobs in the dark."

"Take me to her!" Heron broke in.

They started on again toward the gray limousine drawn up at the roadside only a few yards away; but before they had gone a dozen steps, Heron stopped O'Reilly once more.

"Does she know?" he asked abruptly.

"I have said nothing to her," Justin assured him. "She cannot know; yet I think—well, what one might call her subconscious self is aware of a tie. She's Celtic, too! She hasn't been able to rest since she learned—in a way that you shall hear about later—that your life was threatened. I'm certain that fate, or something above fate, has brought us three together on the road tonight. I didn't see you in the car, but she saw you and made me turn back."

Without another word Heron began to walk very fast. Justin kept at his side, but did not speak until they had nearly reached the car which contained Clo. Then he warned Heron hastily that the girl had had an accident.

"That is," he corrected himself, "she was shot by the leader of the band that's after you. If you want to tell her here and now what you think you are to each other, I don't forbid it. Happy news—such as finding a long-lost relative — seldom hurts. By the by, she tells me she came over to America because she thought the States looked small on the map and she might be able to meet her American father! Go gently with her, Heron, that's all I ask."

"You give me leave to talk to her—as I wish?"

"Yes, but—what about Mrs. Heron? Is she"——

"Oh, later, I must tell her. Tonight I want it to rest between ourselves. But, good heavens, O'Reilly, I can't go on with my wife and that fellow Hammersley-Fisher to the Sandses'—after this! What am I to do? Think for me. I can think only of one thing."

"When I've introduced you to my wife"—each time O'Reilly spoke those two words it was with tenderness and pride—"I'll go back to Hammersley-Fisher's car and suggest that he might take Mrs. Heron on and let us follow later, if you like."

They had reached the gray limousine. Justin opened the door.

"Clo, here is my old friend, John Heron, come to see you," he announced.

"Clo! Her name's not Clodagh, is it?" The question leaped from Heron's lips.

"It was one of my mother's names, Mr. Heron," the girl said.

"And your voice is her voice!" he exclaimed. "Your face is her face!" He had not meant to begin this way, but the moment was too big for him when Clo switched on an electric lamp and the light framed her in silver. This was not "going gently," perhaps; yet Justin had no reprimand to utter. Indeed, he uttered no word at all. Silently he moved away, leaving the two to make acquaintance as fate led.

Next morning the newspapers all over the country were headlined with a new sensation. This had to do with the ball at the Sands' Newport cottage, but it was not the ball that directly supplied the sensation.

It appeared that Mrs. John Heron of California had arrived rather late, owing to an accident to the car of Mr. Hammersley-Fisher, who had been entertaining the Herons at Narragansett. Mr. Heron, owing to indisposition, had remained behind, and only the lady's host had accompanied her to the hall. At the moment of their entrance, the surprise promised for the evening had revealed itself and was nearly ended—a dance given by a quartet of famous Russian professionals.

An extra dancer had accompanied the party, as an understudy for one of the men in case of a breakdown. Such, at least, was the story told by a fifth Russian, who had appeared shortly after the original four. He had taken up his station near the door, and must have known Mrs. John Heron by sight, though not her husband. When she came in, accompanied by Hammersley-Fisher, the supposed understudy shot the latter through the breast, calling out with a foreign accent:

"Take that, John Heron, for your sins against the comrades!"

So great was the general astonishment and horror that, unfortunately, the Russian or pretended Russian was allowed to escape. Hope was entertained, however, that he would yet be caught. Mr. Hammersley-Fisher was seriously but not fatally injured, and was being treated at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sands, all of whose guests, with the exception of three, had departed.

These three privileged individuals were John Heron, Justin O'Reilly and Justin O'Reilly's wife—formerly Miss Clodagh Heron, also known as Clo Riley.

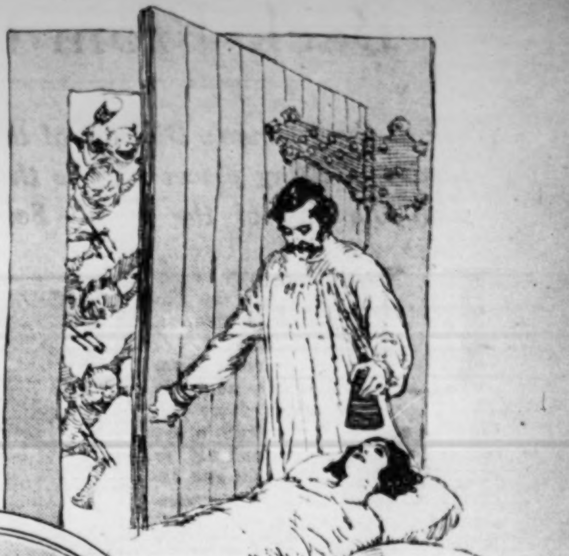
La-may Face Powder Does Not Contain Any Rice Powder

Now you can use a pure face powder that is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. It will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. And, it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medical ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and pimples. It is also a stringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well this La-may powder (French, Poudre L'Ame) is now used by over a million American women. The large size is only fifty cents and the trial size is twenty-five cents. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure. Five thousand dollars reward is offered any chemist who finds it contains any white lead or rice powder. Refuse substitutes. Your common sense will tell you that when you are offered a substitute it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an inferior powder that pays a big commission. When you use this absolutely pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. Save this notice. La-may rouge is also pure.

America's Ingratitude to the Inventor Who Banished Pain From Humanity



Dr. William T. G. Morton, whose centennial of birth in this year, discovered anesthesia, yet he lost his fortune, suffered actual want and was ridiculed for years after he gave the world its greatest individual boon — Congress often appealed to, yet in vain, for recognition of his genius -:- -:- -:-

IF YOU were asked what discovery or invention within the past 100 years has been the greatest boon to humanity, what would you say?

This question was loosed in a gathering of a dozen or more men of varied attainments only a short while since, and, very strange to say, not one of the answers bore even remotely on the discovery of anesthesia, without which surgery would be today what it was prior to this great find—a dread, even a horror. The replies included the telephone, electric light, airplane, telegraph, wireless, ship turbine and the like, but no one in that group had any thought of what is conceded among surgeons and physicians generally as the real beginning of advanced surgery.

Should the same question be asked today among a group of soldier boys, just out of the military hospitals, especially those who had undergone capital operations, it is very certain that the agency that made them insensible to pain would not be overlooked. Nor would any man or woman just out of the hospital and waxing strong again, following an operation for appendicitis, slight the wonderful discovery of William T. G. Morton, the Boston surgeon-dentist, of Oct. 16, 1846. They might not readily recall the name of the genius who conferred this lasting benefit on suffering mankind, but they would have reason to be mindful of the efficacy of the discovery.

Anesthesia will be the subject of much oratory in professional circles and it will be frequently called to the attention of the laymen during the next five or six months, as this year will witness the 100th anniversary of the birth of its discoverer—Aug. 19, 1819. Science will be heard from and fresh wreaths of laurel will be laid on the grave of the Boston doctor-dentist who made this greatest contribution to surgery's progress, since the time of those ancient fathers of the profession—Aesculapius and Hippocrates. But it is doubtful if reparation can thus be made to the memory of Dr. Morton, for the treatment accorded him, following his discovery.

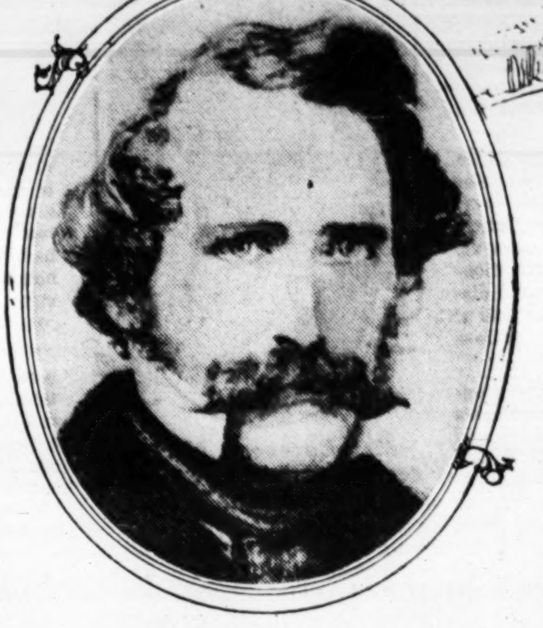
Many great inventors have suffered privations and received ill-reward for their services to their fellow men, but few indeed were called upon to submit to such "flings and arrows of outrageous fortune" as were sent in the direction of the immortal who banished pain and even torture from the operating table of the hospital and the battlefield. Instead of being acclaimed as the great contributor to science and mercy he was stripped of his means and driven almost to want, when death ended his worries at the age of 48 years, following a stroke of apoplexy.

The history of his years following a successful demonstration in the Massachusetts General Hospital of his ether and air combination is a very sad story. As in other instances of glaring ingratitude, Morton was appreciated after his death, as monuments in Boston and elsewhere bear mute testimony; but it was not given to him to enjoy during his life any of the benefits of the victory. On the contrary, it looked like a course of persecution was marked out for him almost from the minute that his formulae was announced.

Oct. 16, 1846, witnessed the successful test of the Morton contribution to painless surgery, and the date was duly carved on the wall of the operating room of the Massachusetts General Hospital, where the scene of its triumph was witnessed by a notable gathering of surgeons, dentists and medical students. Most of them, as the historians relate, went there to laugh at the expense of Dr. Morton, even to jeer; but they left with their words of ridicule unsaid. They were stunned with the scene that had been enacted before their very eyes in the vaulted dome of the gloomy old hospital, that had witnessed so many operations far removed from the "painless" classification. The first professional demonstration of the Morton etherized formulae was set for 10 o'clock that morning, and the profession was invited to come and behold. It is needless to add that the profession was well represented, but at the appointed hour the discoverer was not. He nad been detained elsewhere, getting his tubes and other apparatus in shape, and it was more than 20 minutes after the appointed time that he rushed in, with face flushed from his hurried effort. He was just in time, as Dr. Warren, then the chief surgeon of the general clinic, had just remarked, with a suggestion of a smile, that Dr. Morton was probably engaged elsewhere.

The patient, a man with a deep-rooted tumor in his neck, was on a cot in the amphitheater, waiting. He had been talking to another man who had gone through a private test and he had no fear of the consequences. He had far more confidence in the Morton discovery than any of the professional notables in that historic group whose privilege it was to attend at the birth of this wonderful method of opening the widest avenues for surgery's progress. When Morton entered he quietly asked Dr. Warren if his patient was ready, and on receiving an affirmative answer, said: "So am I."

The ether was then applied and in four minutes the patient was completely under the influence of the drug. At a signal Dr. Warren stepped up with scalpel in hand and made the opening incision in the patient's neck. This without a murmur from the man on the table, and when it was completed and the tumor held aloft for the inspection of the witnesses, he still slept almost as a child. All the time during the operation, which consumed some 10 minutes, the anesthetist stood at the side of the table watching the patient's heart and applying the ether as it was needed. At the end, Morton awakened the sleeper gradually and then looked with the expression of a conqueror at the learned men who had come to scoff.



Dr. William T. G. Morton.

Probably at no time in his 48 years did Dr. Morton ever feel happier than he did when the eminent Dr. Warren looked in the direction of the assembled spectators and announced in a hushed tone: "Gentlemen, this is no humbug." The doctors and students, forgetful of other appointments, could hardly detach themselves from the scene. They remained until it was safe to talk to the patient, and on receiving his solemn assurance that he felt no pain whatever during the operation, left the place still bewildered.

These professional men, the foremost of Boston, were accustomed to entirely different scenes in that same amphitheater. It had been the rule there for other forces to assist at the operating table, instead of an anesthetist with a sponge cap and ether bottle. These same scalpel operators were accustomed to having the aid of burley men and even ropes and cords to hold down their tortured victims during such ministrations. Time and again they had seen delicate little women laid on that same table with their arms and feet tied, and strong-armed medical students standing by, ready to pounce upon them when they shrieked their agony and tried to roll from the place of torture. The operating room was removed from the other sections of the hospital chiefly on account of the loud cries that always emanated therefrom, every time an operation was performed. The contrast between the accepted manner of operating and the amazing reform opened by the Morton test, filled these professional men with reflective material. They had, in their day, seen other pain-destroying methods attempted, with very little practical good. They had seen sufferers filled with whisky, morphine, and had even smiled at the efforts of would-be Svengali's to work the arts of hypnotism, to make the sufferers insensible to the pain incident to the use of the scalpel and the needle.

Naturally, the announcement of the discovery created a profound impression all over the world, though it took much longer in 1846 to disseminate intelligence than is required today. Outside of Boston, the news was at first given little credence, and then, as the nature of the discovery became known, others came forward to deprive Dr. Morton of the credit of his discovery. Following the successful test on the tumerous patient Dr. Warren issued an address to the profession which, on account of his exalted rank, was generally credited. He said:

"A new era has opened to the operating surgeon. His visitations on the most delicate parts are performed not only without agonizing screams he has been accustomed to hear, but sometimes in a state of perfect insensibility and occasionally even with an expression of pleasure on the part of the patient. Who wouuld have imagined that drawing a knife over the delicate skin of the face might produce a sensation of unmixed delight? That the turning and twisting of instruments in the most sensitive bladder might be accompanied by a delightful dream? That the contorting of anchoylosed joints should coexist with a celestial vision? And with what fresh vigor does the living surgeon, who is ready to resign the scalpel, grasp it and wish again to go through his career under new auspices!"

Dr. Morton got a patent of some kind on his discovery and went ahead bringing it to a higher state of perfection. He was only 27 years of age when he made his first successful mixture, but he had a large dental practice already established, in Tremont Row. He also had a wife and a pretty home at Wellesley, then called West Needham, some 20 miles from Boston. His dental business was growing fast and was estimated to be worth $20,000 per year; but this glittering prospect held no fascination for this young scientist. In addition to dentistry he had taken a course in medicine and was far advanced in chemistry and laboratory work, into which he plunged with a burning enthusiasm. His beautiful young wife, whom he had married only two years before his discovery, aided him in every possible way and gave him all the latitude he needed. This meant that she would have to be neglected, but she never registered a complaint. She also saw the family purse growing thinner all the time, for he was spending his capital without any income to offset the outlay. He gave his secret first to the Government, for application in the Mexican War, and showed a disposition to deal out his knowledge and skill with a generous hand. Then he had professional jealousies and even rival claimants to the priority of discovery to contend with; and these annoyances, with the bitter disappointments that came thick and fast, wrecked his health and brought him almost to actual need. He spent in all close to $200,000 and received practically nothing for his marvelous discovery. He had repeatedly sought relief from Congress for the widespread use of his anesthetic, in both the Mexican and the Civil Wars, and though the committees always conceded him the right of discovery and recommended relief, he never received a penny. His bills were approved, but they never reached the cashing stage in the Treasury Department.

In the words of his son, Dr. William James Morton, the discovery, while a boon to the world, was a tragedy to the author and his family. While trying to get recognition from Congress, covering a period of more than a dozen years, his means entirely vanished and executions and writs began to come from all directions.

Stories Told About Dr. Mary Walker

not always satisfy the objecting women. Another time she was violently ejected when she tried to step within the women's dressing room in the Capitol at Washington, by a broad-fisted guard, who acted for a while like he was going to give her even worse treatment. The guard was thoroughly amazed when he discovered later that he had brutally manhandled a woman.

She was never much of a favorite with the women who directed the suffrage work. When they began, they were subjected to ridicule and were often asked by their auditors if they wanted to "put on the pants." They were afraid that if they did take up Dr. Walker, they would be confronted with even more derision, as this bustling little woman did "wear the pants," and wanted the world to know it. Such leaders as Susan B. Anthony opposed her on the ground that the whole movement would be suffocated under an avalanche of ridicule, if Dr. Walker was taken into the fold, "breeches" and all. When she went to a suffrage convention in New York on one occasion, she was actually refused admission. Then she had circulars printed warning people not to subscribe money to the cause, as the women could vote without the enactment of laws, if they would only assert their rights. Still, she never succeeded in getting her ballot counted in any of her own attempts.

One of the last conventions she attended was the General Federation of Women's Clubs held in New York. She then wore another bronze medal alongside her congressional decoration, which excited some curiosity among the women there. When she was questioned about it, she said she had been awarded the medal at a country fair, because she was the "best dressed woman there." This occasioned a hearty laugh. About this time she attracted much attention by her offer to part with her right index finger, in return for enough money to establish a ward for tubercular children on her estate at Oswego. A wealthy Mrs. Reginald Waldorf of Philadelphia and Los Angeles, who had lost a similar member in an accident, had advertised for a "living right index finger" to be grafted on her hand and Dr. Walker, then 80 years of age, answered the advertisement and named her terms, but her proposition was not accepted.

She was sick at different times in Chicago and New York hospitals and made trouble for the attendants, by her steady refusal to wear nightgowns. In New York she wore her pajamas of woolens and in Chicago, when this privelege was denied, she went to bed in part of her day raiment. Her illness in Chicago, she claimed, was due to her arrest by a policeman, who was ignorant of her right to go about in masculine garb. She was taken up in cold weather and hauled through the streets in a patrol wagon. Later, while she was in the toils, she slipped and fell and then had to be sent to a hospital.

When she was asked in Washington, by Wu Ting Fang, then the Chinese Minister, why she wore pants, she promptly asked him why he wore gowns. He said he did so because it was the custom of his country, and she promptly rattled back that the United States was a free country and that everyone was privileged to wear what he or she desired. In 1912 she scolded a crowd of young women at Columbus, O., after an open-air hike, because they wore corsets, high-heeled shoes and tight-fitting skirts. She ordered them to discard the corsets and get common sense shoes. Then she discovered that the physical instructor of these young women was a man and she flew into a rage. She said many things on that occasion about the utter "impropriety" of letting a man tell them to wear or do anything.

Though she never married, Dr. Walker used to delight to tell how she could have married former President Arthur if she had been matrimonially bent. She said she would not have him because he smoked black cigars. This story was never taken very seriously. She also told on several occasions how a medical student at Syracuse tried to win her hand when she was a young girl, and how she resigned in favor of another girl who was addicted to writing long letters. She concluded the girl must have loved him dearly because of the length of her letters.

that everything goes properly. Here's the facts, your honor—and kindly pay close attention, because this gun's loaded all the way around.

"One Hornet Goolsby robs and kills one John Akers, and leaves one Bill Garland's knife, which the said Hornet Goolsby had stolen, on the floor as evidence against the said Bill Garland. Then the said Goolsby burns one Sinker Arnott's barn, and whispers that it was the said Garland. Also, the said Goolsby starts tales that it was the said Garland that committed a few other little crimes, such as stealin' horses and money—which same said Goolsby himself committed. The said Garland, bein' inclined to wildness all his life, was considered by 'most everybody as the real criminal; he was arrested and tried and disgraced, and persecuted in many ways. But at last he gets the goods on the said Hornet Goolsby.

"Now, don't you really think, your honor, that the only thing the said Bill Garland can do to square accounts and be safe in the future is to kill the said Hornet Goolsby—but I'm tried o' all this foolishness, Hornet! You don't want to pray, I know"——

He trained the revolver straight toward the drifter's heart, and the drifter went ashen and shook with fear.

"Wait, Bill!" he chattered. "Wait! I know I done all o' them things. I admit, Bill, to all of it. But, Bill, don't kill me! If you won't I'll"——

Yankee Doodle Donaldson and his niece had appeared suddenly behind Garland! Cassie had come along to show her uncle and Garland the way.

"We've got all the evidence we want, Bill," said Donaldson. "He admitted everything. Let me have that rope you brought"——

Twenty minutes later the four of them were in the road and walking hastily toward the camp. On the next day Hornet Goolsby was lodged in the county's jail to await trial.

And on the day following that Bill Garland whispered to Cassie Donaldson:

"I'm to have a foreman's job soon, and when I've got a foreman's pay I'm sure goin' to ask you to marry me. I wonder what you'll say?"

"It's hardly likely," smiled Cassie, "that I'll refuse you."

The Problem of Getting the Woman War Worker - Back From the Factory Into Domestic Service -

Work of the Women's Division of the United States Employment Service in St. Louis — Getting places for the thousands of helpers whose occupations went with the end of the war — Some suggestions for housewives -:- -:-

Mrs. Eugene A. Hecker, senior examiner in St. Louis office.

"If she could only have regular hours for going home at night."

UPON the entry of our country into the war and the subsequent mobilization of the available man power for military and naval service, there followed at once, as is well known, the call for women, young and old, to enter the ranks of business and industry, to meet the sudden expansion in the production and distribution of supplies. Their response by hundreds of thousands is an old story; their success in adapting themselves to new conditions and new lines of work is generously and frankly conceded by employers everywhere.

With the cessation of hostilities, production in many lines also ceased. Government orders were canceled; workers were no longer needed; clerical forces were reduced. All over the country thousands of girls and women were discharged and the Government was at once confronted with a serious problem in economics.

Just what does this sudden stoppage of work mean to women's work here in St. Louis, which can be taken as an example of what it will mean in any great industrial center in the United States? It means that several thousand girls and women were made idle through no apparent fault of their own, by the shutting down of factories and plants engaged on war contracts, while still others are yielding their places to returning soldiers and sailors. Women stenographers and clerks are returning from Washington, and six high schools recently increased the surplusage of office workers by the graduation in commercial courses of large numbers of young people eager to enter the business world. The war is over and production hesitates.

To relieve the condition of women and girls unemployed, by a system of readjustment along organized lines, and to induce as many girls as possible to enter homes for employment as the proper sphere of woman, the Women's Division of the United States Employment Service, co-operating with the Missouri State Department of Labor, offers its services free of charge to women and girls and employers of female help. Established by the Government as an economical remedy, the service is designed only to see every available and willing worker employed.

Recognizing that the service belongs to the people of St. Louis and realizing its possibilities as a means to facilitate industrial readjustment, the following organizations have indorsed it and pledged their support: Eighth District Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, Consumers' League of Missouri, St. Louis Association of Collegiate Alumnae, Missouri Children's Code Commission, St. Louis Woman's Council, Equal Suffrage League of St. Louis and the Missouri Suffrage Association.

Mrs. Eugene A. Hecker, senior examiner in charge of the local Women's Division, the office of which is 600 Pontiac Building, Seventh and Market streets, outlined the general aims of the service and told of some things that have been done to induce women and girls to accept housework as a livelihood and as a foundation for education along social service lines.

"One of the questions most frequently asked," said Mrs. Hecker, "and this is true whether I am discussing the employment situation with a group of women or with employers in business organizations, is: 'Is there any hope of inducing girls to go back to housework?'

"Yes, we feel there is hope, but many conditions are involved. This is a propitious time for housekeepers to get together and thresh out the reasons why household occupations are the last resort of the unemployed; why, when a girl has said she would accept 'any kind of work,' she almost invariably exclaims, 'Not housework,' when we suggest it.

"Standardized hours, wages and general conditions of work will help this situation. When work is so arranged that a girl can live at home, and report for work and go home at definite hours, not more than nine in a day, with time and one-half for overtime; when the relations between housekeeper and houseworkers are businesslike and not a benevolent despotism, wherein the mistress substitutes a thoughtless, personal kindliness for right conditions; in short, when housework is dignified and is regarded no less a vocation than other more specialized forms of work, then we shall have girls giving our proposal of housework as a desirable employment some measure of thoughtful consideration.

"Housekeepers can do their part best, perhaps, through an organization—a housekeepers' association—the members of which would agree to some regulation such as suggested. That would help; it is not enough. Accredited compulsory courses in our public schools, in the various branches of home making, would emphasize the importance of this field of work. There is no finer form of service to the community.

"Meanwhile, in our office in the Pontiac Building we are suggesting positions as mother's helper, or maid, or general housework to some of the girls whom, because of the present surplus of unemployed, we are unable to place in the line of their previous employment. We have taken girls who formerly did office work and factory work in various industrial concerns and placed them advantageously in good homes. We hear from some of them that their health is not only improved by the change, but sometimes the work is more profitable than their previous employment.

"But we are not merely urging housework on these selected girls who come to us. In presenting the advantages to them of some form of housework over the work they have been doing, whether it be factory, office or anything else, we instruct them just how they can benefit by the change, before and after they accept the employment.

"We show them why any girl need not look forward to housework forever, once she enters it; but show her how she can gain experience in cooking, cleaning, household sanitation, house furnishing, child care, and, in short, all that goes to make up home making—things that would give her a splendid foundation for a course of training later on that would fit her for well-paid public work, such as cafeteria and tea-room management or nursing."

The employment service was established 11 years ago to aid employers, just as the Department of Agriculture was created to aid farmers. For the first 10 years the service was an adjunct of the Bureau of Immigration. In January, 1918, it was taken out of the Bureau of Immigration and, with separate personnel, was placed in the Department of Labor. In the first four months of 1918 the Women's Division alone placed 45,000 women.

The scope of its work can be realized from Government statistics, which show that, in some cases, the annual labor turnover is about 400 per cent. The service suggests as a remedy for this evil employment managers to regulate wages, correct unsanitary conditions and supervise intelligently hiring and firing.

It is estimated by Government statisticians that 32,000,000 people quit or were discharged from employment in 1918, and that the cost of breaking in new workers ranged from $5 to $200 each. Placing the average at $10, the total loss would be $320,000,000 to industry, to say nothing of the loss in wages to the workers. It is generally conceded that the great labor turnover also results in loss of human interest and ambition.

The turnover for any period consists of the number of separations from service during that period—all quits, discharges and layoffs for any reason whatsoever, and the Government has come to realize that in no other phase of business management are there so much unintelligence, disregard of cost and lack of imagination as in the methods of employment generally practiced. Many of the more progressive establishments have given serious attention to this part of their business in recent years and have found it economically justifiable to have high-salaried employment

First Woman Legislator in Kansas Takes "Hubby" Along — But Not as Adviser

Touching picture of "Rights for Mere Man" seen every day when Mrs. Minnie Grinstead permits spouse to accompany her to State House and occupy honorary desk beside her own — His job that of burbling to callers about their two children— Long a prohibition worker, she aided in ratifying national amendment, and is now engaged in "swatting" the iniquitous cigarette ::

Only woman member of the Kansas Legislature, her husband and children.

WHEN Mrs. Minnie Grinstead, the first and only woman legislator Kansas ever had, went to Topeka, capital city, to enter the House of Representatives as a law maker, she took her happy home with her—not only the household furniture and bric-a-brac, but the cat, the canary and hubby. Hubby, by the way, is Judge V. H. Grinstead, who, to use his own words, has been "accused of being a lawyer," at Liberal, Kan.

From the very first Representative Grinstead apparently had no intention of abandoning her household duties merely because she had been chosen to assist in directing the destinies of her native commonwealth. She had no intention of living in a stuffy, crowded apartment and eating three meals a day at a cafe or restaurant. So she rented a big house in the most fashionable part of the city and is living as she thinks a wife and mother should.

"Legislators," she observes, "should get up early in the morning." And she gets up at 7 o'clock, prepares the coffee, grapefruit, oatmeal, bacon and eggs in the same old way to which her family is accustomed; washes the dishes (allowing the Judge to participate), dresses the children, hurries them off to school and then marches down to the State House with her husband to begin another day of stormy debate.

Every morning, when the law makers assemble in the State House, the lone woman Representative appears with her tall spouse proudly following in her wake. A seat is reserved for him at the same desk with his wife, and there he sits and beams on his pleasant-faced partner, taking a keen interest in all the measures she champions and chatting from time to time with the women who stop at her desk to congratulate her on her election. It is then that the Judge grasps every opportunity to tell the callers of their two children, Darline and Wayde, aged 13 and 12, respectively, who are now attending the Topeka public schools.

Mrs. Grinstead, whose home is at Liberal, was elected by a large majority to represent the Seventh Kansas District. Her campaign was spectacular. She was working with might and main for the Red Cross and incidentally made a 5000-mile automobile trip during her campaign. Every time she stopped for a few minutes to talk to some farmer and explain to him why she should sit in the "seats of the mighty" she whipped out a half-finished pair of socks and knit as fast as she talked. She provided dozens of pairs of wristlets and socks, as well as sweaters and head protectors for the boys "over there," during those strenuous days before the primaries, and then repeated the performance before the general election was held.

Perhaps it was this campaign trip that gave Mrs. Grinstead her hobby for good roads. She admits that it had "some influence." And today there is not a person in Kansas, including Gov. Henry Allen himself, who can put up a stronger argument in favor of better highways than this woman legislator. But her greatest desire was to work for the national prohibition amendment.

"What are you going to advocate this session?" she was asked.

"Ratification," came the quick reply. "I am as strong as onions for ratification. I am for ratification of the national prohibition amendment and for the women's suffrage amendment. I am not one who thinks we can legislate the millenium into actuality, but one of the chief reasons I wanted to sit in the Legislature this session was because I desired to be a member of the body that put its stamp of approval on the national prohibition law." And she was one of the first to speak for the State's ratification of the national amendment in the first day's deliberation.

Another of her plans is to "swat" the cigarette. A legislative act a few years ago made it unlawful to sell cigarettes in Kansas, but the laws are very lax concerning them.

"The war has made the cigarette respectable, perhaps," said the woman from Liberal, "but it has not entirely killed our law concerning it. I propose to try to put through some legislation that will strengthen that law, or at least provide for its enforcement. At any rate, I am sure something will be done to make it operative."

"I believe in a greater conservation of public funds," she asserts. "I would not oppose new taxes for essentials, but I am against an increase of taxes for anything that is not urgently needed."

The 1919 session of the Kansas Legislature is nearly over, and the only woman who ever sat in a representative's chair in this State has filled her unique position with credit and honor. She is quiet and sober-minded, with a tendency to stick doggedly to any problem she considers right. She carries herself with an air of the utmost confidence and the attitude of one who expects just as much attention as any man in the House—and, needless to say, she gets it. And although she can speak sharply and scathingly when she is opposing a measure she believes to be wrong or inadequate to the needs of the State, she is, by nature, as pleasant and cheerful a woman as the Sunflower Commonwealth has ever produced.

In her younger days she was a school teacher in Crawford, Bourbon and Neosha Counties for a dozen years. She was on the lecture platform for many years, espousing the cause of prohibition, and once served as the pastor of a Baptist church. She was a leader of Red Cross activities in her community and is a member of the W. C. T. U. and the Women's Kansas Day Club. She attended the Kansas State Normal in 1891 and in 1896 was married to Judge Grinstead of Larned. In 1906 they moved to Liberal. She has had four children, two of whom are living.

Mrs. Grinstead explains that her interest in politics dates a long way back. She was in the vanguard of the suffrage and club movement in Kansas and was the Seventh District president of the Suffrage Association the year the amendment was submitted. The measure carried in her district by a large majority.

Her lone position as the one woman in the House of Representatives appears to give her no uneasiness whatever. "The other members," she says, "treat me cordially and with all consideration." She has entire self-possession in her new position, and a certain brisk and businesslike air gives one the impression that she must have been predestined to occupy that particular chair.

Mrs. Grinstead announced her candidacy for the Legislature in May, 1918, and worked at her campaign all the time, defeating a prominent farmer at the primary.

"I made a personal campaign of the Seventh District," she said, "and it was a very strenuous one, too. After winning the long race from the primaries, the run for the final election was equally arduous. I have a liberal-minded constituency or I could not have been elected, but my place in the Legislature was not handed to me on a silver salver, by any means. However, I won by a heavy majority." Her campaign carried with it all the difficulties of a pioneer enterprise, for no woman had ever made the venture before.

"And how do you like to be a legislator?" she was asked.

He saw his aged parents put out of their cottage and all his dental business taken over by others. Even his wife and little ones were hooted on the streets. The crowning blow awaited him one evening on his return from Washington, where he had made one of a very great number of trips pushing his hopeless claim. Entering his pretty place at Wellesley, he saw a strange man sitting in the front hall who had a warrant of attachment. His wife and children had fled to an outbuilding. The house had to go, and all its pretty furnishings. It was about this time that Dr. Morton, discoverer of what is conceded to be the greatest boon to mankind in the history of surgery, was reduced to such an extremity that he actually had to load a wagon with wood from his place and haul it to town, there to be exchanged for a half-barrel of crackers.

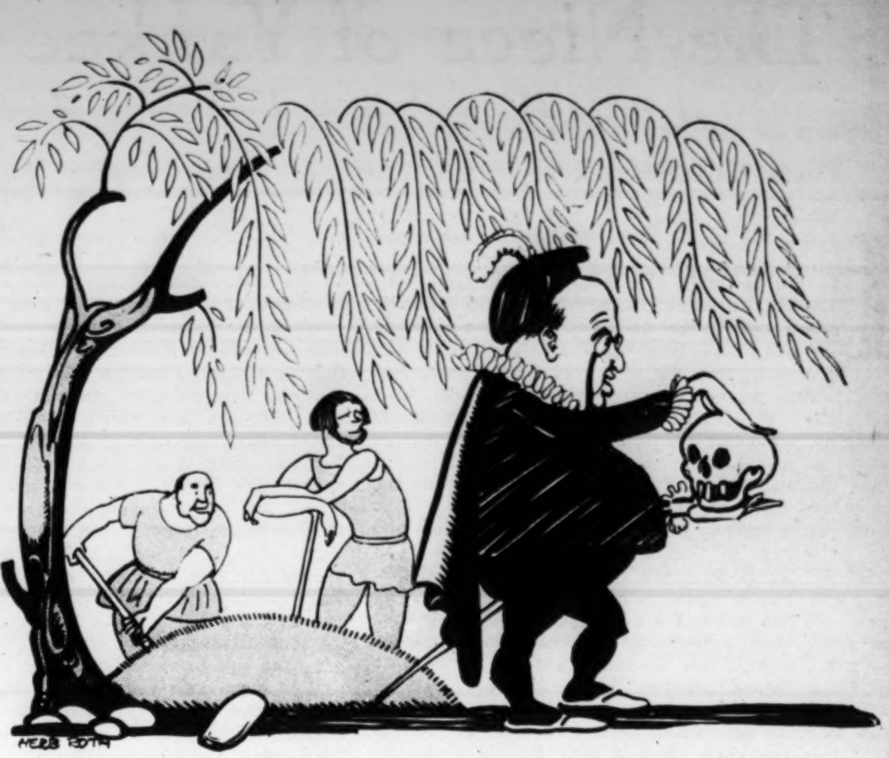
This was in 1857 and friends decided it was high time to do something. A number of these, headed by Amos Lawrence, issued an appeal to the "Patrons of Science and the Friends of Humanity," but this afforded little relief. No action beyond favorable reports could be gotten at Washington. Shortly before this, the Massachusetts General Hospital of Boston sent him a casket containing $1000. On this was written: "He has become poor in a cause which has made the world its debtor." One of the claimants for the distinction of making the discovery was a Dr. Jackson, a rival dentist of Boston, but who received little encouragement from the professional men of that city. He, however, pushed his assertions and it was to meet some of his claims that Dr. Morton went to New York just preceding his sudden death, July 15, 1868. The name, "anesthesia," was given to the etherized discovery by Oliver Wendell Holmes, in 1846, just a month after the first public test.

Dr. Morton's death came quickly following a stroke he received in New York while riding in a conveyance with his wife. He died that night in one of the hospitals, attended by the faithful wife, who suffered in common with him throughout the long ordeal, following his great service to humanity. As he passed away the physician at his bedside said to some students who had been summoned: "There lies a man who has done more for surgery and suffering humanity than any man who ever lived."

England took to the use of anesthesia very soon after it was taken up in America. It was used largely there in cases of child birth and this was made the subject of an organized movement by Queen Victoria, who was placed under the influence of ether at the birth of one of her children. It is needless to add that this gave the practice a strong popular run in England and elsewhere.

WHY I NEVER PLAYED HAMLET

The Famous Comedian Had What He Believed the Essential Requirements for Tragic Acting, That Is, a Sense of Humor—But He Never Courted Real Trouble by Offering the Public His Robust Version of the Melancholy Dane. :: :: :: ::



"Hamlet as he might have been if worry hadn't kept him thin."

A FEW days before Nat C. Goodwin died at the Hotel Claridge he was asked by the New York World to write an article on "Why I Never Played Hamlet." The following article, which is probably the last the famous actor ever wrote, is peculiarly interesting, not only because of his sudden death, but because of the unusual popularity of the "Hamlet" revivals this winter:

By NAT. C. GOODWIN.

AN actor may be sick unto death, he may be in jail awaiting trial on a murder charge, he may even be preparing to get married, but he is in no serious trouble unless he plays Hamlet.

And that's why I never played the Melancholy Dane. I've played in "Hamlet," however. I essayed the role of the first grave digger in a big Shakspearean festival in St. Louis many, many years ago. But throughout my career I've avoided the role of Hamlet like the plague.

For I have never believed in trying my public to that extent. And while I may have human frailties, I guess the public will have to trust to their imagination as to my style of Hamlet, for I'd hate to think of imposing on them now. I do think I could have given them a pretty fair Hamlet before I became so robust. But in my opinion the best-suited actor to give Hamlet today is—Louis Mann.

You've got to have a keen sense of humor to get the full value out of tragedy. Louis Mann has the sense of humor and the best physical attributes. If you don't believe me, ask him. I've seen Hamlets come and go, and I only saw two good ones—Henry Irving and Edwin Booth. Spare me from those Hamlets such as Sir Forbes Robertson gives us, not to mention the late Sir Beerbohm Tree. If I ever did make up my mind to play Hamlet I would give the part some study and at least an intelligent portrayal, I think. It would be my idea of Hamlet, and if the audiences could not picture him as a rotund figure such as mine, they would at least have an idea of what Hamlet might have been, hadn't worry over revenge kept him thin and gaunt.

When I did seriously try Shakspeare—I played Shylock several seasons ago—three of the best-known journalists of the country treated the production editorially. I made Shylock a dignified, arrogant Jew, not the cringing, fawning person we are accustomed to seeing on the stage. And I claim I had as much right to my conception of Shylock as anyone has to theirs. Shylock was a successful man, and did you ever see one of his race cringe and fawn after he had amassed a fortune? He might be the most subservient creature alive while he was gaining his ends, but once he had become financially independent, can you picture a man of Shylock's standing always cringing as he is made to do by other actors who have played the part in our time. So I was not joking when I said if I did try Hamlet I'd reason out an intelligent idea of him, at least.

Seriously, I think the reason I never played the part is largely because of my success and prosperity. For 25 years I never produced a failure. Anything I put on made money, and plays I was afraid of seemed to find as much favor with the public and made as much money as the ones I had great faith in. It was a pell mell hurdle from one show to another—and then just the other way—no matter how good the show seemed, it was missing fire financially until I struck "Why Marry?" and then my old luck seemed to return. But, honestly and truly, when I think it over I can see no other reason for never having tried Hamlet except the successive triumphs of the plays I did put on, and later on when I had failures, I was satisfied with the disasters. An assured failure with "Hamlet" did not tempt me.

You might infer that it is hunger and lack of other success that drives actors to Hamlet, but that wouldn't be fair to Hamlet. After all, we must show him some respect, just as we reverence the Catechism—it's good exercise for the brain. And still most of the old prints of actors seen dodging vegetables, as I think it over, almost every one of the profession picture in that time-honored custom of dodging articles thrown by disgruntled patrons of the theater, is garbed as Hamlet. You may draw your own conclusions. Is it a ruse to attract the staff of life—or is it an affliction, this consuming desire to portray Hamlet?

There's still another reason why I never played Hamlet. You recall that old expression, "Give a dog a bad name"? Well, I became identified with comedy almost at the start of my career. The public expected me to make them laugh. If I had announced "Julius Caesar," I suppose they'd have expected me to tickle Caesar to death, or in "Hamlet" to turn the laugh on the old King. But they can laugh, for when I did give the public Shakspeare I gave them a carefully studied portrayal of Shylock. It was well received in places, but certain of the critics who knew me well—too well, in fact—they had become so accustomed to me in comedy that they could not, in their wildest dreams, imagine me doing anything else; these same critics, in the language of the cult, panned me. And they panned me good and proper. It was what I expected. They say what you least expect is what you are sure to get. But between Shakspeare and myself I proved the exception to the rule. I got exactly what I expected, and received it good and proper. The strange part of it was that in anticipation of this very thing I had some very good friends in the sporting department of the papers for which these critics wrote and I knew positively a couple of the reviews were written by these critics and set in type before the writers attended my performance. They knew me so well they knew exactly what I was going to do to the ancient "Merchant of Venice." Those critics are gone now, so I am not treading on anybody's toes, but it shows the attitude of my friends as well as the public.

But, frankly and honestly, I think it was success and prosperity alone that kept me away from Shakspeare, and Hamlet in particular, for I had a pretty well defined idea of Hamlet. I pictured Hamlet a very bright young man, and most of actors who have tried the play paint him like one of these glooms you see chasing in droves in some of the Sunday comic sections. They drop all intelligence out of the part for the sake of making him a mild grouch. They look so woebegone you want to laugh, if you know them personally. Judging the present generation of royalty and upper classes, the men go in for mourning very mildly, and I picture grief in Hamlet's day as about the same as now, with different surroundings. Add a little common sense to a deep grief and you must smile at some of the Hamlets we have had and will continue to get. I didn't play Hamlet when I could have done so, and I'm rather sorry—I've taken every other sort of chance. But I've had too much trouble to attempt it now.

Women War Workers and Domestic Service specialists apply efficiency methods to the old-time hit-and-miss practice of hire and fire.

"We hope to build up the co-operation of employers to a realizing sense of what our service would mean to them," Mrs. Hecker said. "Our function is to answer all calls from employers, with the idea of fitting the persons to the places they are most capable of filling, and in this way decrease the labor turn over.

"From the employes' standpoint we offer our services in finding positions for them and in giving advice and information as to how they can train for better positions and increase their efficiency, or become efficient—when they are not—in the position in which they are placed.

"Too many girls come to our office who have drifted into employment without any sense of whether they are fitted for it or not. This may have been the result of economic necessity or the fact that their friends or advisers thoughtlessly urged them into it, and in many cases we find that their talents and abilities were misdirected. They are unhappy in their work and fail to give satisfaction to their employers.

"Many little girls who have not finished the grammar school take a brief course at a business college and then wonder why they are unable to get beyond the $7 or $8-a-week wage. It is often extremely difficult to persuade them that they would be happier and infinitely more useful in industry later on if they returned to school to perfect their educational background. Where economic reasons make this course impossible, we try to persuade them to take up some form of housework or enter the well-conducted factory, where they would be paid a living wage while learning a particular process.

"We believe that the establishment of a trade school for girls in St. Louis would be most helpful in giving them a definite and systematic training for work before venturing into industry.

"The fundamental policy of the United States Employment Service in 1919 must be intensive development. Last year was devoted largely to experiment and expansion. A new and greater pressure exists to give a better employment service than can be found elsewhere.

"Our examiners must know intimately the employers' needs and likes; job requirements by frequent visits to the plant, and be acquainted with the applicant's skill beyond question of mistake. We must also know where to find other applicants surely and quickly as the need arises. We must know that workers are placed, or if not, why not. We must grasp and fully understand the industrial situation in this community, for this is our work and our field. Speed, accuracy, knowledge and vision are the requirements of the Government service.

"This service should not be regarded solely as a free employment agency, but as a civic industrial center of the community. The service was designed to stand in the same relation to all industry as the public school does to education. A few authentic figures will give an idea of the conditions that confront us.

"Fourteen per cent of the wage earners of the United States are between the ages of 16 and 21, according to the census of 1910. The number of persons between 16 and 21 equaled the whole number between 21 and 44, and the proportion of girls to women workers, in the surprising ratio of 8 to 5.

"A handicap bureau is being established in connection with our work for the purpose of finding suitable occupations for elderly men and women and those with physical or mental disabilities. It has already been started by our Massachusetts agency, where the first monthly report shows 1367 men and women, between the ages of 50 and 72, placed in positions.

"This division has as its object not only to help mature men and women obtain employment, but to prevent the huge economic waste ensuing from the rejection of aged men and women from industry."

Between these two extremities, that of aiding the boys and girls, and the saving of the elderly to useful work, there are the intermediate departments of the normal placement agency, Mrs. Hecker explained. The Domestic Department registers and places women for all kinds of home service; the Institutional Department registers and places for hotels, restaurants, hospitals and schools; the Industrial Department for factory operatives; the Commercial Department for stenographers, bookkeepers and other clerical workers, and the Professional Department, for women with special training. She said the agency needs most of all the friendly co-operation of employers of women.

The Lion's Mouse

to look over, and choose what I wished to take away, I would be his wife whenever he wanted me.

"He tried to seize me in his arms, but I said I would go away at once unless he kept quiet and did as I told him. There was a packet of papers, he admitted, but he was sure there was nothing in it concerning Stephen or me. I insisted that there must be something about my father, and that unless Louis would let me look, I would never marry him. He still objected, arguing that all the papers were in one envelope, sealed with three seals, which must not be broken, or his sister and her husband would never forgive him. He couldn't imitate the seals, he said, because they had Dolores' monogram on them. I seemed hardly to listen, though I was listening with all my ears. I shook my head and would not yield an inch. If he didn't love me enough to risk such a trifle as Dolores' anger, and Mr. Heron's, I would never see him again, I said. I felt sure he would give in, and I determined to steal the envelope instead of letting him open it and search among the papers. It was disgusting to deceive him so, but it was for Stephen's life; and Louis Moreno certainly wasn't a man to stick at deceiving others. He was bad—bad—all through! I began to hope I might escape, and not have to sacrifice myself to him, after all.

"It turned out like that, but not in the easy way I hoped. Louis went to his desk—we were in his sitting room—and showed me a secret drawer, between two other drawers. He took out an envelope—you've seen it.

"'I'll try to cut off the seals with a sharp knife,' he said, 'and then perhaps I can stick them on again.'

While he spoke, he began looking for the knife he wanted. I snatched at the envelope, but I wasn't quick enough. His fingers closed down on it, and he turned and laughed in my face.

"'So that's your game!' he said. 'I'm not so soft as you thought!'

"I struggled with him. I felt no mercy in me. I was strong, and he was an invalid. He had just been ill. When he realized that I was more than his match, his face looked like a devil's. I shall never forget it.

"'You'll pay for this!' he screamed at the top of his voice—an awful scream. 'Help! Murder!'

"Overhead was what they called the living room. I knew he would be heard; people would come. I wrenched the envelope from him and ran for the window. I dared not go to the door; I should meet someone and be caught. Louis grabbed at my dress, shouting, 'Murder!' Then I seemed to go mad. I gave him a push and he fell over a chair. I hardly looked, yet I knew, somehow, that he lay on the floor, suddenly quite still. I didn't believe he was even fainting. I thought he wanted to frighten me, to make me stop, and then he would seize my dress again to hold me back. I rushed to the door, locked it, and took the key to make a few minutes' delay. Then I jumped out of the window—I told you Louis' rooms were on the ground floor—and ran very fast.

"At first my one idea was to put miles between me and that hateful place; but as I ran through the garden, taking a short cut to the road, I passed near an old summer house, or rather a playhouse, built for Dolores and Louis when they were children. An inspiration came to me—to slip in there and let the chase go by. Everyone would believe I had hurried away as fast as I could.

"It was lucky I thought of that. It saved me, perhaps. I won't stop now to tell you the adventures I had before I managed to dash into the Albuquerque railway station, at the last minute, after the train was in. For hours I expected each moment to be caught. Louis had been so violent, so threatening, I had forgotten his illness. I expected him to come after me—to make me pay, as he had said; but once in the train, I began to hope that some other trail had been followed. It would have seemed more likely that I would go back West, where I had friends, than travel East, where I was a stranger. Then I caught sight of Justin O'Reilly, and for the first time it occurred to me that Louis might really be suffering. If he had been able he would have followed me, I knew. He would have sent no one in his place. But even then I didn't dream that he was dead. I imagined him ill, and his sister and brother-in-law staying with him. It was a week later, when you and I were married, that I read in a newspaper about the beautiful Mrs. John Heron losing her brother suddenly, from heart disease. A date was mentioned, the night when I took the envelope. The paragraph said that he died in his sister's arms, but, oh, Roger, I felt that I was guilty of his death! Even to save Stephen I could not have killed him. Do you think me a murderess? If you do, just let me go from your arms, and I shall understand. You needn't tell me in words."

For answer, Roger held his wife still more closely. "No, my darling," he said. "You didn't kill Louis Moreno. He couldn't have lived many weeks. The doctor had warned John Heron. You did for your brother what any loving woman would have done, or tried to do. I love you more than ever for what you've gone through and what you've dared. It's you who should hate me for my cruelty and suspicion. I ought to have known you better; but there were some things that tried me rather hard. Why didn't you tell me this story long ago? Surely you could have trusted me to keep your secret."

"Yes, I could have trusted you, even though it was Stephen's secret more than mine; but I had taken a double oath not to tell. First, I had promised Stephen himself, when he came back to me from the dead, that never so long as he lived would I speak or give any hint of the truth. Later, when he was kidnaped, I was obliged to swear another oath, on the memory of our dead parents, and my love for my brother, that I wouldn't betray Cheffinsky and his comrades. Now it's different, for I know that it's they who have betrayed me. Stephen is dead. Such a girl as Clo Riley wouldn't have sent this message unless she knew for certain. I think that he must have died just before that dreadful Sunday when all our unhappiness—yours and mine—began, Roger. But I'm sure he didn't die a violent death. To keep their hold over me those men would have done all they could to save him till they had the papers they wanted. Soon after you brought me to New York they found out about our marriage and put personals in the newspapers addressed, like those others in California, to 'Steve's sister.' They knew, of course, that their man who should have met me in Chicago had been prevented from coming—imprisoned on some charge which they called a 'frame-up' They still had power over me, although I was your wife; but I had a certain power over them, too, because I had the papers. I answered the messages, and refused to give up what I had unless my brother fetched it. I hoped that would bring him; but he only wrote me a short letter. He said that he was safe for the time being, and was treated kindly. He would come when he could, but there might be delays, for reasons which he wasn't allowed to explain. Meanwhile, he told me, I must keep the papers and the secret, and wait.

"I felt relieved after that. I dared to let myself be happy. Then, that Sunday, when Clo and I went out in the car, a man was waiting for me in the street. He spoke—he made me understand that he came from Stephen. His name was Peterson. I talked to him in the park. He said the comrades had changed their minds. They wouldn't let Stephen come to me. I must send the papers that night or my brother would die. When I asked the reason for the change, the man pretended not to know; but now I understand. Stephan had died. Cheffinsky and the others had at last lost their hold over me, and dared not wait any longer. They had to do something drastic. I sent Clo to the Westmorland Hotel with the envelope for Peterson—yes, the man who was murdered! That has been another horror for me; but we needn't talk of it now. It was when I was getting the envelope for Clo that I broke the rope of pearls and dared not even stop to pick them up! I hoped Stephen was saved; but, Roger, it was not the envelope that you took care of for me in the train. It had been changed. Inside, when Peterson opened it before Clo, he found only blank paper—writing paper of the Santa Fe Limited. It seemed like some dreadful witchcraft; but Clo puzzled the mystery out, and explained what might have happened when you and I left the train in Chicago—what must have happened. It was a clever trick of Justin O'Reilly's, working for the Herons."

"No, he wasn't to blame. We must be fair. I didn't blame him even then. He must have thought me a monster of ingratitude and treachery to the Herons. He may have believed that I knew Louis was dead; for, of course, the moment they saw the secret drawer open, they would all have guessed that I had stolen the sealed envelope. It was the only thing kept there. If John Heron told O'Reilly what the contents were, he must have supposed I meant to make money by blackmailing. I was afraid, afterward that he and the Herons might think you and I knew each other already; that we had arranged to meet in the train, and that I had been acting for you—to give you some power over Heron for the future. I used to lie awake at night fearing trouble for you, Roger; but when nothing happened, I told myself that they dared take no steps—that they had decided to let sleeping dogs lie. Of course, the real reason for their silence was that O'Reilly had changed the right envelope for another just like it, given him by Dolores, with her seal and gold wax; so the Herons were safe. But I have lost you their friendship, for they could never be sure whether you were in the affair with me or not."

"As if I cared!"

"And Justin O'Reilly has doubted you, and detested me; but in spite of all that, and all he did against me, I don't complain. He has been splendid to Clo, who went to his hotel, stole the real envelope out of his private safe, and brought it here"——

"So that was it!" said Roger. "And I found the envelope, addressed to him at his bank, and sent it to him at the Dietz that very night."

"Roger! It was you?"

"Yes. You are not the only one with a confession to make. There are many things I"——

"I don't want a confession from you. Whatever you did was right. Even before you told me, I felt you knew about the pearls being gone."

"Though I knew, I ought to have trusted you. I ought to have trusted you when I heard you telephone O'Reilly"——

"So you did hear! Well, I was sure of that, too. I telephoned about Clo. He was helping her—and so, indirectly, helping me, though I had seen him only when he brought her here that Sunday night, half fainting, after she had been to his hotel. Oh, Roger, you don't know half or a quarter yet, of what that child has done for me! Not only did she get back the envelope, and now the pearls—which Peterson stole—but she has gone through an ordeal terrible enough to kill most women, or drive them mad—that delicate girl! She may be in danger still, for she dropped the pearls in a bag out of a window in a shabby boarding house. Miss Blackburne has just told me. My one comfort is that a man answering the description of Justin O'Reilly got out of a car in front of the house just as Miss Blackburne came away. Clo tricked O'Reilly, and stole from him, and yet I think she bewitched him. I think he would risk his life to keep her from harm. I pray that he may bring her here, safe and sound!"

"He's not likely to come to my house," Roger said. "I've just caused him the greatest disappointment of his life. I wanted to hurt him, and I found a way. By this time he must know what I've done. There's an old mansion in Gramercy Park built by O'Reilly's great-grandfather. Years ago the family had to sell it; and ever since Justin O'Reilly was a boy he has wanted to buy it back. I have bought it. I wish to heaven he would fall in love with this Clo of yours and marry her! I'd give them the deed of sale as a wedding present."

Roger had sprung up, released by Beverley, and almost shouted his last words. A knock at the door brought him back to realities with a start; yet he felt half dazed as he opened it to face Leontine.

"The butler begged of me to come to madame's door," the French woman apologized. "He does not know what should be done. Pray, is it the wish of monsieur and madame that dinner should be still longer delayed?"

Roger turned and looked at Beverley, his hand on the door.

"What shall we say?" he asked. "Shall I go down without you? Shall I explain that you have a headache"——

"No!" Beverley answered. She stood up, tall and very beautiful, the color rising to her face, which had been pale. "I have no headache. I am quite well. Leontine, tell Johnson dinner may be served."

CHAPTER XLII.

THROUGH the blue dusk of the June night a big gray limousine car bowled swiftly over the smooth road, with the moon overhead and the music of the sea within hearing. Turning a corner with a swing, it came upon another stationary and in trouble. A man in evening dress was holding an electric lamp for the chauffeur to peer under the bonnet. Standing beside him was a woman in black, wearing a filmy purple cloak.

The light shone on his face, which was strange to O'Reilly, and on that of the woman, which to his surprise, was familiar.

"You can go on," Justin said to his chauffeur in a low voice.

"Why, Mr. O'Reilly, it was Mrs. Heron!" Clo cried, sinking back reluctantly upon her improvised bed, after a long stare through the window.

"Good heavens, girl, what was that you called me? 'Mr. O'Reilly' indeed! Don't you realize that I'm your husband?" Justin laughed at her.

"I'd forgotten," said Clo. "It's only since this morning, and we've had so many things to think of."

"I've thought of nothing but you. You seem to have thought of nothing but your Angel—and these Herons!"

"It's the Herons I'm thinking of now," Clo confessed. "Why did you tell the man to go on? Why didn't you stop when you saw it was she?"

"Why, I like old John Heron, but I'm not a spoilsport."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm wondering if Mrs. Heron and that chap are on their way to the Sands' ball. If Heron doesn't mind letting them enjoy each other's company, why in the world should I butt in?"

"Mr. Heron was in the car," Clo insisted gravely. "It was dark inside, but I saw his face at the window."

"You must have sharp eyes," said Justin. "The window looked black as a pocket to me."

"You think I imagined it, but I'm sure—sure! Oh, Mr—Justin, do let's go back and warn him! I feel as if we must. I have a presentiment that if we don't, it will be too late."

"Whatever you feel as if you must do shall be done, especially on our wedding trip—even if it is a queer sort of wedding trip," said Justin, with a tenderness in his voice of which few people would have believed

The Niece of Yankee Doodle

By HAPSBERG LIEBE

IT was the second day after Bill Garland's trial by Judge and jury in a law court at Johnsville in the lowland. He had been charged with murder, highway robbery, felonious assault, arson, both grand and petit larceny and horse stealing; and they were all, every one, the crimes of another man. The other man had been cunning enough to lay his crimes at Bill Garland's door without having the evidence sufficiently damaging to convict him; all the real criminal wanted was to go free and unsuspected himself.

But Garland had had a narrow escape from the stripes and bars. He had been given the benefit of the doubt. If he were to be again haled before Judge and jury to answer to these same charges, he knew he would not again be given the benefit of the doubt.

Garland was a timberjack and a mountaineer by birth. He had come of a proud people, a people who had ruled their section; by right of inheritance he was a hill prince, and his blood was red, restless as the wind, almost turbulent. The forces of life in the man were so great, so dynamic, that he didn't know half the time what to do with himself. It was this, of course, that made it easy for the commonwealth in general to believe that he might have been really guilty of the atrocities that had been placed to his account.

And now—he realized that his liberty was to be seasoned with bitterness. For few of the men of the logging camps had a welcome for him now; to most of his fellow timberjacks he was a man to be feared, a man not to be trusted out of one's sight. His only true friend, he believed, was his good brother Samuel. This state of affairs made him melancholy, for he was appreciative and a lover of companionship.

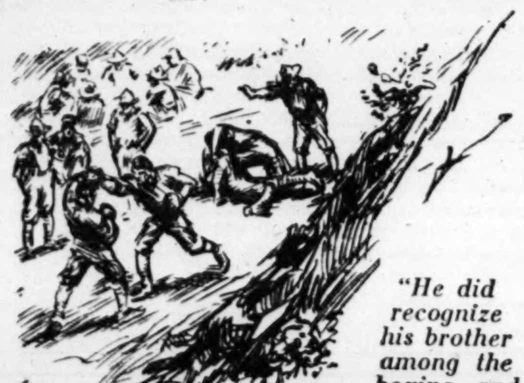
Bill Garland, on this sunny Sunday afternoon, strode out of the blooming laurels, threw off his broad-rimmed hat and his corduroy coat, and sat himself down heavily on the mountainside. Then he began to watch with much interest a score of loggers, men whom he had known for a long time, at play in the camp clearing on the creek below. The distance was not great; he could almost make out their features. He did recognize his brother among the boxing and wrestling loggers—Samuel Garland was a big young man; he was almost as big as his brother Bill. And he recognized, also, "Hornet" Goolsby, the drifter, the fighter, the bully, a man he had never liked very well.

A few more minutes and Supt. Donaldson, whom his men called, with all due respect, "Yankee Doodle," because he was from the North, came out of the big, rough boarding house; and with Yankee Doodle was a——

A girl.

Bill Garland narrowed down his brown eyes in a puzzled frown. He was afraid of the general run of womankind—and that, it may be here mentioned, was all he did fear. His life as a woodsman had not given him the acquaintance of many women; never had he even imagined that he cared for one, and he was 25. Who, he asked himself, was this girl? He could not see her face clearly enough to judge of her looks; but he felt somehow that she must be pretty. She was slender and straight, and she carried herself—well, handsomely.

He saw her part with old Yankee Doodle and walk slowly to the little creek; then she turned down it and followed it into the woods and a sea of laurel blossoms. Whereupon Bill Garland rose, took up his coat and put on his hat, and began to make his way down the mountainside toward her. Long association with Northerners and lowlanders had changed much about Garland; but it had not yet relieved him of the curiosity concerning strangers that is bred in the blood of the average hill man.



"He did recognize his brother among the boxing and wrestling loggers."

When he peered through a screen of undergrowth and saw her at close range, she was gathering day-flowers and Job's tears by the creek's bank. He noted that she was about 20; that she had Irish blue eyes that were evidently given to much smiling, and perfectly bowed red lips. Her skin was milk white and her hair was of the shade of brown that turns to shimmering copper in the sunlight. There was, plainly, not much of fire about her; rather, she was a girl of the mothering kind, a girl surely destined to marry.

And then she looked up suddenly and saw him! He pushed his way through the flowery screen that had failed to hide him, fumbled awkwardly for his hat, and finally got it off.

"Good afternoon—Mr. Garland!" she said in a manner that was at once both friendly and provoking.

"I—I never saw you before," stammered the logger.

"But I've seen you," with the most winsome of smiles. "I arrived in Johnsville on the day of your trial there, and my uncle pointed you out. He told me all about you, and I—I felt sorry for you. So often it is like that with men of your sort, you know. Uncle thinks a lot of you. He said you were—O, he said a lot of nice things about you. If you want your job back with him I'm sure you can get it."

"Your uncle—you're Donaldson's niece?" asked Garland. He wasn't afraid of her now.

"Yes," was the answer. "I'm Cassie Donaldson. I came here to live with my uncle. I have no other living relatives except for distant relatives—now; my mother died last week. I have been working in a department store, and I could have made my way all right, I think; but mother didn't want me to be so much alone, and I promised her I'd go to Uncle Tom."

"Mighty glad I met you, sure," and Bill Garland bowed and left her.

He went straight back toward the camp. He was going to ask "Yankee Doodle" Donaldson for his job back.

His brother Samuel hailed him delightedly when he entered the camp clearing. Hornet Goolsby seemed somehow displeased by his appearance. The others simply held aloof.

Instead of his finding the superintendent, the superintendent found him. Donaldson caught his eye and beckoned to him, then led the way to his office-bedroom in the downstairs of the boarding house, where Garland at once noticed the touch of feminine hands in the new tidiness that prevailed from floor to ceiling.

"Sit down," Donaldson invited, with his characteristic snappiness; and Garland sat down. "Bill," Donaldson went on quickly, "I think most any man in your place would be pretty strongly tempted to go to the bow-wows. But I don't want to see you do it. You're too good a man. You're the most capable man I've ever had, Bill. I want you to forget, if you can, your persecution and curb the wildness that was in a way responsible for that persecution, and settle down to work again. I'll promise you a woods foreman's job at the first vacancy; and I'll trust you to the limit, Bill. People may say I am a fool for believing in you; doubtless they will say it; but I don't care a—what they say. To prove that I mean it, I'll send you to the bank at Johnsville day after tomorrow for the monthly pay roll, and I'll send you all by your lonesome. What do you say?"

Bill Garland was intensely grateful for this unexpected show of kindliness. He went to his feet, seized Donaldson's hand and wrung it.

"You're white as snow, Yank," he declared. "I'll take you up, and may death hit me in the heart if ever I make you regret your believin' in me. I'm much obliged to you, good old Yank."

"It's all right. Have a little drink with me, Bill."

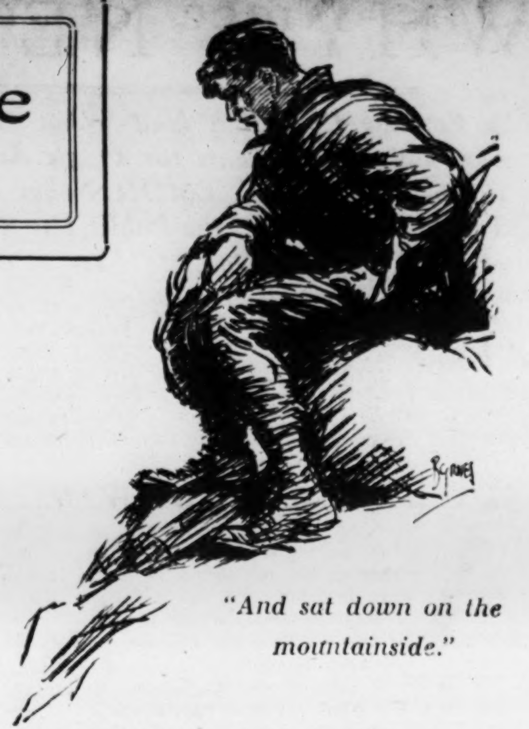
"Much obliged, again. But I've quit."

That was well. "Yankee Doodle" smiled his pleasure.

Garland went to the long, rough porch and called to his brother, and a moment later the two men went upstairs and to the sleeping quarters of the timberjacks. There they sat down on Bill Garland's old bed, and then Bill told Samuel of that which had passed between him and the superintendent.

"Bully for you, buddy!" Samuel exclaimed happily. "You'll make good, of course. I'm wonderin', Bill," he went on seriously, "if your comin' back here had anything to do with Hornet Goolsby's leavin'."

"I remember seein' him out there just before my talk with Yank," muttered Bill Garland; "when did he go?"



"And sat down on the mountainside."

"While you and 'Yankee Doodle' was talkin'," answered Samuel. "Say, Bill! I'd bet my eyes against a bent pin that it was Goolsby that done all o' them things and made you the scapegoat!"

Bill Garland smiled and slowly shook his head. "I reckon it wasn't, Sam. Hornet lacks a great deal o' bein' that smart. As to his leavin', you know he's always on the move."

"Maybe so," agreed the other, but reluctantly—"maybe so."

Came Tuesday, the 15th, Donaldson's payday, and Donaldson sent Bill Garland in the buckboard to the bank at Johnsville for the pay-roll money. Garland, exulting in the soul of him because he was being thus openly and publicly trusted, drove off proudly, almost within the same minute that had seen him rise from the breakfast table. On the seat beside him was the little black leather money satchel; lying snugly in an armpit holster, hidden under his coat, was Yankee Doodle Donaldson's big and dependable revolver.

Samuel and the superintendent—and Cassie—saw him off with the most confident of smiles; but most of the loggers glanced toward one another with narrowed eyes and shook their heads.

"This will be no payday for us," some of them whispered.

The two young mules traveled rapidly, in spite of the ruggedness of the mountain road, and Donaldson's trusted messenger reached the Johnsville bank an hour before noon. The bank was an hour making up the pay roll, after which time Garland took the money satchel and hastened with it to the waiting buckboard.

He put the satchel on the seat beside him, and was in the act of driving away when a voice that was more or less familiar to his ears hailed him from the other side of the street.

"Ay there, Bill! Le' me ride as far as Crooked Creek with you; humph?"

Garland drew hard upon the reins and looked around. Coming toward him, grinning with apparent good nature, was Hornet Goolsby, and he was limping. In a flash Garland remembered that which his brother had said of Goolsby; but—well Sam must have been mistaken, he told himself. He wasn't the fellow to refuse a man, and a lame man at that, a ride when there was room in plenty and to spare; besides, he did not doubt his ability to outwit, or even whip, half a dozen Hornet Goolsbys—if it became necessary.

"Sure, you can ride out to Crooked Creek with me," he told the drifter. "Get in."

Goolsby mumbled something about a sprained ankle, and climbed to the seat, and they drove rapidly toward the blue ranges that lay piled up against the east. So far as Garland was able to see, his companion paid absolutely no attention to the money satchel, which rested on the seat between them.

From the very start Goolsby talked almost ceaselessly. Had Bill Garland been inclined to look upon Goolsby with suspicion, he might have seen that the drifter's conversation was underlaid with a cunning attempt to win confidence. Garland was happy, and he saw no reason why Goolsby shouldn't be light-hearted, too; and lightheartedness, in most men, was conducive to garrulity.

Even old mules travel with more spirit on the homegoing than on the outgoing journey. In spite of the fact that they had been pushed hard, the pair of young mules that Garland drove that day developed a marked skittishness about the middle of the afternoon. They shied at dead leaves whirling in the sum-some secret from me; but I found out nothing till the crash came. Oh, Roger, it was horrible! He had fallen under the influence of those anarchists—those dynamiters who had been terrorizing all America for years. They had deserted him—they had persuaded him—he was only a boy—that they were noble reformers, out to revolutionize society. Poor Stephen was a useful tool—good-looking and a gentleman. It was that terrible explosion in Los Angeles, when all those innocent men were killed, that sickened him, as he confessed afterward, when at last he opened his heart to me. Still, he stuck to his friends, and he was too deeply in to free himself. It's not two years ago that the break happened—and all our life collapsed, Stephen's and mine.

"Most of the dynamiters with whom he had worked were caught, but a few of them managed to keep clear. A man named Carl Schmelzer was the cleverest. He went abroad and was supposed to have died in Germany. But he didn't die; and he always managed to correspond with the comrades who hadn't been suspected. By that time they were engaged in new enterprises, as the old ones had become too risky; but they always pretended to be working for labor against capital. About two years ago John Heron was their target. I think it was a case of pure blackmail. If he had been a coward and had paid them tribute, they'd have let him alone; but the war cry was that he was a tyrant, a plutocrat ruthlessly crushing the weak. The comrades knew our history—Stephen's and mine—and they tried to inflame Steve against Mr. Heron because of his failure to do for us what our father's services and death had merited. Possibly they succeeded to a certain extent. Stephen couldn't bear to see me buried, as he called it, teaching school on a small salary, wearing shabby clothes, while Dolores Heron's dress and jewels gave the newspapers something to talk about. But they made a big mistake when they ordered Steve to dynamite a railway bridge just as a train with Heron's private car was due to pass over it. He refused, and threatened to warn Heron unless they abandoned all their schemes against him. That gave the gang a fearful fright! They thought their one chance of safety was to suppress Steve. A friend of his who lived at Home Colony warned him that there was a plot to kill him. He came straight to me and told me the story—this story about himself which I've been telling you now. I begged him to leave the country at once, and gave him what money I had; yet neither of us had much hope. We thought the comrades were sure to get him in the end.

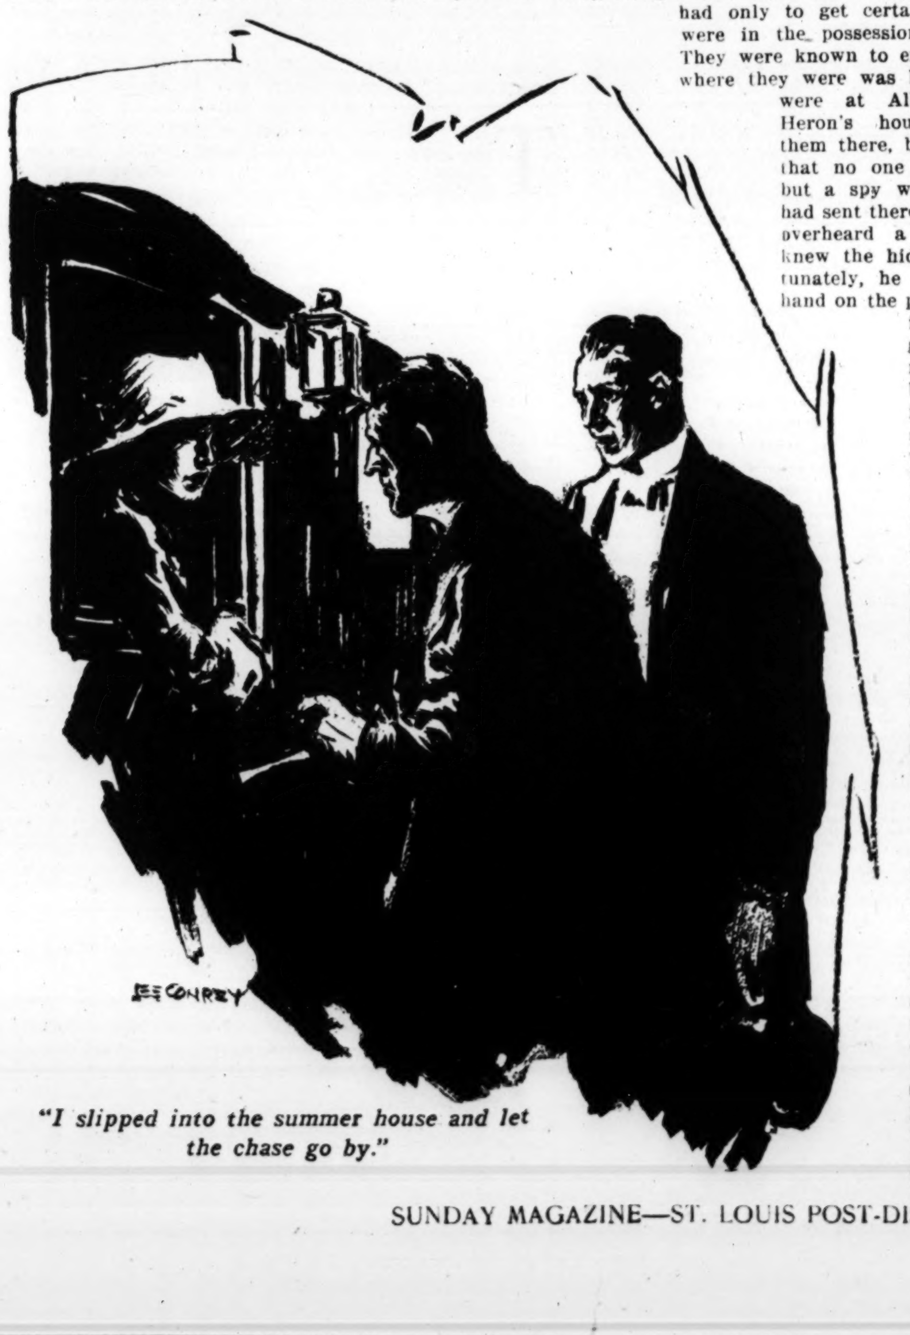
"But then a wonderful thing happened, almost a miracle; at least we thought it so. The train Stephen took, after his visit to me, was wrecked. Everybody in the car with Stephen was killed except himself. It was a long time before help could come, for the thing had happened far from any town. An idea came to Stephen. He put a silver cigarette case with his name on it into the pocket of a man who was burned past recognition—a man of about his own size. Then he crept away, and hid for many days. When he hoped it might be fairly safe, he wrote to me, knowing that I mourned him as dead. He asked me if I would risk going with him to Russia, to begin a new life under another name. Of course, I said yes. Stephen was the whole world to me! I lived only for him—till I loved you.

"I left the school, and some jewelry I had kept us going for a while, till there was a ship that we could take for Japan, and so get back to Russia through Siberia. He had to sail from San Francisco, so presently we went to Oakland, traveling at night, by local trains. We hoped that in that way we should not be seen by anyone we knew.

"Whether someone did see us or not, I can't tell. Anyhow, from the day Stephen left me to buy our passage to Japan, I've never seen him again. Presumably he was kidnaped by the gang; and then began my martyrdom. They gave me a week of suspense. Then I got a letter. It told me that Stephen had been caught, and would be punished by death, for his treachery, unless I agreed to buy his life. I was warned that if I went to the police it would be known, and Stephen would be instantly killed. If I consented to bargain, I must put a personal in a San Francisco newspaper—'Steve's sister says yes.' In that case an appointment would be made with a man who would tell me what to do to save Stephen.

"Of course, I obeyed. Next day the same paper told 'Steve's sister' where to go for instructions, and at what time. I think the man who met me must have been Schmelzer himself, just back from Europe. In looks he wasn't like Steve's description of Schmelzer, but he had the authoritative manner of which Steve had spoken, and a great deal of gesture. I've always felt sure it was Schmelzer, disguised. He didn't give himself any name then, but afterwards I knew him as Cheffinsky. He told me that he and his comrades were ready to 'do business' with me for my brother's life, though Steve deserved to die. To save him I had only to get certain papers which were in the possession of John Heron. They were known to exist, and the place where they were was known, too. They were at Albuquerque, in Mrs. Heron's house. Heron kept them there, because he believed that no one would suspect it; but a spy whom the comrades had sent there as a gardener had overheard a conversation, and knew the hiding place. Unfortunately, he couldn't put his hand on the papers without killing a man to get at them, and neither he nor anybody else was anxious to risk such a serious crime as that to get at them. For me, however, it would be simple, because Louis Moreno was in love with me. He had charge of the papers and would let me see them if I 'treated him the right way.' How Cheffinsky found out about Louis and me I never heard—perhaps he learned it from Stephen.

"At first I refused; but the man made the most horrible threats of what whould happen to Steve unless I consented. I was allowed a day to think the matter over; then there was to be another meeting in the same place. When I went to the rendezvous for the second time—it was in a park—still I hadn't made up my mind. But, oh, Roger, the wretch showed me a snapshot of Stephen. The poor boy was standing in a room with a rope around his neck—standing on tiptoe. The rope was fastened to a ring in the ceiling, where a chandelier had once been. If Stephen had dropped from fatigue, he would have choked to death.



"I slipped into the summer house and let the chase go by."

" 'Six hours a day of this medicine,' Cheffinsky said, 'till you've handed us the papers we want!'

"I promised to go to Albuquerque and get them, somehow—I didn't know how. I thought perhaps I should have to say I would marry Louis; but I could have killed myself after I had made sure that Stephen was safe. What the papers were I wasn't told, and I had no curiosity to know. Afterward I heard more about them from Louis himself. That day—the day of the second meeting in the park—I received instructions what to do; but they were changed in a hurry. I had been led to believe that Steve was in Chinatown. Perhaps it was true at the time; but the comrades got warning to clear out and go East as quick as they could. A telegram reached me only a few hours before I was to start for Albuquerque.

" 'Delay journey—writing,' it said. That same night a letter came to the quiet little boarding house where I stayed. It gave me news, in veiled sort of language, that my brother had been taken East, where I should meet him when I handed over the papers. I was told what train to take to Albuquerque, and what train to leave in—the Santa Fe Limited. I was to find reservations on board for 'Miss B. White.' At Chicago I was to get out of the train and find a man waiting for me. You know all about that part of my journey—and what happened. There was money in the envelope, enough to see me through to Chicago, otherwise I couldn't have started.

"There was one thing the comrades hadn't calculated upon—that the Herons would be at Albuquerque. When the plan was made they were at Los Angeles and were expecting to stay there. You must have been with them—just after the great case was decided in John Heron's favor, thanks to you. But Louis had been seized with one of his heart attacks—he had angina pectoris—and had wired for his sister. Dolores didn't wish to travel without her husband, so both decided to go. As for Justin O'Reilly, I had never met him then or heard his name. It was at Albuquerque I first saw him. It came out that he was taking a short holiday in California—I don't know where, but I heard talk about his visiting some place where he and his father had lived. I got the impression of his being a California man. I think his politics and Mr. Heron's are different, but for some personal reason—friendship with the dead father, I fancy—Mr. Heron had helped O'Reilly to get into Congress. They weren't intimate, but Mr. Heron wanted to see O'Reilly before he went East, and telegraphed him to meet them at Albuquerque. When I arrived, expecting to find only Louis in the house, they were all there. I suppose, as you had been helping Heron, and he knew that you and Justin O'Reilly weren't friends, he didn't tell you he had wired to O'Reilly, for fear you might be offended.

"It was a shock and blow to me to find the Herons. I'd meant to lie and tell Louis that I had come to see him because I'd changed my mind, and liked him better than I thought; but to account to Dolores, who hated me, for my sudden appearance, uninvited, was another matter!

"She and her husband thought I was living quietly at school, mourning for my dead brother. I had to make up a story quickly. I said that I had lost my position, and thought they would put me up at Albuquerque until I could get another. It must have sounded impudent—and untrue. They must have realized that I had come because I expected to find Louis alone. However, they couldn't turn me out that night.

"Louis was fairly well again by that time, and he, at any rate, was glad to see me. I made the most of his welcome—for Stephen's sake. You see, I had to succeed! I wrote a note and slipped it into Louis' hand. In it I hinted that I had something very particular to say to him. He must pretend that he wished to be alone, and go to his own rooms as soon as he could—he had a whole suite to himself, which he could shut off from the rest of the house. It was on the ground floor. I said I would go to him there—I, who would never speak to him except in a room full of people, if I could help it!

"Now comes the most terrible part of my story. Roger, so far, perhaps you haven't blamed me much; but I'm afraid that you may hate me when you've heard the rest!

"I went to Louis' rooms. No one saw me go. He let me in. I told him that I had changed my mind, and would marry him if he wanted me to, but only on one condition. I said I had heard from friends of Stephen's that Mr. Heron was keeping papers which concerned our dead father; that they were with other private papers in the Albuquerque house, and in Louis' charge. If he would give the whole bundle to me mer breeze, at fire-blackened tree trunks, and at other imaginary bogeys. There were times when their driver was hard put to hold them in.

"Instead of $600 in cash you've brought me about ten cents worth of choice wire nails."

At Crooked Creek Goolsby alighted, thanked Garland and disappeared in the laurels.

Garland drew up before the camp boarding house just at sundown, and found Samuel waiting to take charge of the mules. Then he took up the black satchel and sprang to the ground, and strode with a triumphant manner through a group of timberjacks and across the rough porch. Another moment and he was smilingly greeting Supt. Donaldson in Donaldson's little office-bedroom.

"I got back, Yank," he said, "and here's your money, every cent of it, safe and sound."

Donaldson rose from his swivel chair and gave his messenger a hearty slap on the shoulder.

"I knew you'd come back, all right," he replied. "If I hadn't been sure of that I wouldn't have sent you."

He took the satchel from Garland's hand and put it on his scarred roll-top desk. Then he opened it and bent over it: and then he straightened and turned to the timberjack.

"Bill," he said somehow queerly, "instead of $600 cash you've brought me about 10 cents' worth of choice wire nails. Have you an explanation? It's not a joke, is it?"

"Nails!" gasped the big woodsman, his face going suddenly white under its tan. He advanced toward the desk and repeated it. "Nails!"

"Yes, nails," growled Donaldson. "Look for yourself. Bill, have I put my trust in the wrong man?"

Garland held the satchel open with both hands and stared down into it. The superintendent had but told the truth.

"Why, I—I saw them put the money in there, and it hasn't been out o' my sight for one second since!" Garland declared. He went on: "Yank, I swear I don't know how it happened. I'll do this, Yank, I'll pay you back by work, if you'll let me. It'll take a long time, but I'll do it. Will you let me, Yank?"

A door opened and Cassie Donaldson entered. It was not difficult for her to see that something was wrong.

"What's the matter?" she wanted to know.

In a few words old Donaldson told her. She looked sympathetically toward Garland.

"Did anybody ride out with you, Bill?" Donaldson asked.

"Hornet Goolsby; he left me at Crooked Creek. But he couldn't have opened the satchel without my seein' him."

"Goolsby, eh?" frowned Yankee Doodle. "Bill, that fellow Goolsby is bad. And he's smoother than you think. Perhaps he couldn't have opened the satchel without your seein' him; but he might have worked it like this: He sees you arrive at the bank, and knows what you're there for. He buys another satchel, a perfect duplicate of ours, puts nails in it to make it heavy enough, and carries it hidden under his coat. Then, while you're taking care of those scarry young mules he changes satchels on you—do you get it?"

"I reckon that's the answer," ruefully admitted the timberjack—and it really was the answer.

After a long minute of deep thinking Donaldson went on: "The loss, of course, is up to me. The company would say that I shouldn't have trusted you and demand that I make good. I said I'd trust you to the limit, Bill, and I will; and this is the limit: Early in the morning I'll start you to Johnsville after another pay roll. This will come out of my own savings, so please be careful with it."

As white a man as ever stood on two feet was Yankee Doodle Donaldson. He went to the front door and addressed the loggers:

"Boys, there was a dickens of a mistake in the pay money—and you needn't mind blaming Bill Garland. You'll get your money tomorrow evening."

Garland made that trip without mishap and the loggers were paid. On the morning of the following day Bill Garland settled down to work out a debt of $600, a debt that he regarded as just. He had $30 a month, besides his board; at least $5 must go each month for clothing; he would have to work two years in the payment of his debt to Supt. Donaldson.

Sixty very delightful summer days went by, and Bill Garland had lost his heart completely to Cassie Donaldson. He had told himself over and over again that it was hopeless; that he wasn't good enough for her; that the next two years of his life belonged wholly to Yank Donaldson, and that he was a fool for loving her. But all that made no difference. In spite of all that he still cared for her. And she knew it, though he had never said anything to her about it. She knew it by means of that strange and subtle sense that we call intuition, for lack of a better word. He was different from the other men she had known; he was bigger and stronger and more masterful, and there were times when she almost wished that he would tell her about it. Human sympathy is a road that runs easily into the highway of human affection.

Hornet Goolsby had appeared at Donaldson's camp now and then, working a few days each time, during those fine summer months. Bill Garland now shared fully his brother Samuel's suspicions concerning the drifter, but he was careful that the drifter didn't find it out. He meant to square accounts with his arch enemy; but he wasn't going to lose anything by being in haste, so he was biding his time.

Came still another pay day, and Bill Garland was again sent to the Johnsville bank for the pay money.

Now, Cassie Donaldson had developed a marked liking for mountain climbing, and this is one reason why she stood, late in the afternoon of that day, high on the side of the great mountain that lay to the east of the logging operations. She shaded her eyes with her hand, and looked down along the dirty white ribbon of a road that wound its way steadily upward from the lowland, expecting to see Bill Garland coming at any moment.

It wasn't long until she did see the buckboard coming. The two young mules were traveling at a lively gait, and shying occasionally at imaginary bogeys. Nearer and nearer they came, and then they drew up suddenly, for a big man with a leveled rifle in his hands had stepped from the laurels to the middle of the road before them.

"Put 'em up!" bawled the highwayman, in a disguised voice.

He wore old corduroys and slouch hat, and a blue bandanna covered his face up to the eyes. The watching girl suspected that it was Goolsby. And she was correct; it was Goolsby.

"I can't put up but one," shouted Garland, "because I can't turn loose o' these mules. Don't shoot, for goodness' sake!"

"Chuck that satchel out here," the holdup man ordered gruffly.

Bill Garland obeyed promptly. The satchel fell to the stony road with a musical clink. The robber picked it up.

"Mister," said Garland, "if you can, I wish you'd give Yank Donaldson some sort o' proof that I was really held up!"

Cassie Donaldson caught her breath and bit her underlip. Bill Garland's giving up the money satchel so easily, and that which he had said to the robber, were, to her—well, cowardly.

But Goolsby was speaking: "If you try any tricks with me I'll sure give Yank plenty o' proof that you was really held up. Move on, and be sure you don't look back."

He stepped to the roadside and Garland drove past him.

From her position on the mountain side above Cassie Donaldson saw plainly the actions of the robber when Garland had driven on. Goolsby dove through a thicket of laurel, turned sharply to his left, ran through another laurel thicket and went swiftly up a ravine. Five more minutes and he had disappeared in a dense copse of undergrowth that stood along the base of a low ledge riven cliff.

"He'll hide it in there!" said Cassie to herself. "And if he does, I'll get it—I'll show Bill Garland"——

Instead of saying just what it was she would show Bill Garland, she began to move down the mountainside as rapidly as she could safely go. She was a quarter of an hour in reaching the vicinity of the cliff, and she approached the copse with all the stealth of an Indian. She crept on her hands and knees into the dense thicket, always watching, ever careful that she didn't make a tell-tale noise. Soon she sat up before the diminutive cavern that ran in at the base of the cliff.

The dead leaves lying in the mouth of the little cave had been recently disturbed, she noticed. Less than three minutes after she had crept into the yawning hole she came back with the money satchel in her hand and with something wrapped in her linen sunhat. For fear of Goolsby's seeing her, she left the thicket very stealthily. But that wasn't at all necessary, for Goolsby was then running toward the camp by a short route, in the hope of reaching the boarding house ahead of Garland; that, he figured, would be an alibi for him in the event he was suspected.

A little more than half an hour later Cassie Donaldson stole into the boarding house by a rear entrance, and hastened into her uncle's office-bedroom. Both Garland and her uncle were in there.

"Anything happened, Cassie?" Donaldson wanted to know.

The girl put the little satchel on the scarred desk.

"I've been robbing a robber," she said, with a reproachful glance at the big timberjack she almost loved.

"You've been robbing a robber!" exclaimed the superintendent. He laughed, and so did Bill Garland.

"Yes. I saw him hide the money, and I took it," said Cassie. "You see," with another reproachful glance toward Garland, "I wasn't afraid of the robber."

"Please have a look at the 'money,'" smiled Donaldson.

The girl opened the satchel and peered into it. Then she straightened and turned back to the two men.

"Nails!" she cried amazedly. "Nails! So I—I didn't save the money, after all!"

"No," replied Garland; "but I did. I carried it inside my shirt and foiled the holdup man.

In spite of herself, Cassie was piqued. You know how women are. She put her rumpled linen sun hat on the scarred desk and turned it over. Out fell $600 in pay envelopes, the first pay roll that Hornet Goolsby had stolen!

"It's a pity you didn't carry this inside your shirt!" she said, triumphantly. Then she softened. "Bill Garland," she said, smilingly, "you ought to thank me for this. I've saved you two years of hard work."

Garland seized her hand in both of his. "I do thank you, Cassie," he declared, feelingly. "With all the heart in me, I thank you."

They called in a woods foreman, and the four of them began to lay a certain little plan. And shortly afterward, just at sundown, the woods foreman called in the timberjacks and paid them off.

This placed Hornet Goolsby in a quandary. Then a ray of light entered his mind—Bill Garland had hoodwinked him, perhaps, in the holdup! When dusk began to fall over the hills he stole away and started for the hole in the ledge-riven cliff; he hadn't had time to examine the contents of the satchel before.

It was very dark when he crept into the hole; but he had been in there many times, and he knew the place well. Then a big man put a lighted lantern on the ground near the mouth of the diminutive cavern, took his corduroy coat from around it, and ordered coldly:

"Come out, Hornet!"

Goolsby faced about. The light blinded him, and he shaded his eyes with his hand. With the other hand he reached for the rifle he had hidden in the little cave less than two hours before; but the voice of the man outside arrested the movement.

"No gun play, Hornet. You're covered. Come out o' there, and come right now."

By this time Goolsby's eyes were more accustomed to the lantern's light, and he saw that the man outside was Bill Garland; and he saw, too, that Garland held a leveled revolver, ready in his hand. The drifter obediently crept out of the hole.

"Sit down there by the lantern," Garland ordered, crisply, and the other obeyed promptly.

Garland also sat down. He went on: "Is there anybody around here except just you and me, Hornet? Better tell me the truth."

Goolsby shook his head.

"All right," said Garland. "Hornet, we're goin' to hold a sort of court right here, you and me. You're to be the Judge, jury and the prisoner. I'm going to present the case and be the—er, that is, I'm goin' to see

"Clo, here is my old friend John Heron come to see you."

THE STORY FROM THE START.

Roger Sands, a New York lawyer, marries Beverley White, on an agreement that her past should remain a secret. Their otherwise happy home life had one shadow—Roger's vague jealousy of Congressman Justin O'Reilly, a former California acquaintance.

Beverley rescued and adopted a little Irish girl waif named Clodagh Riley, whom she intrusts in secret to meet a man named Peterson, sent from Chicago to receive from Mrs. Sands some important papers. At the same time a costly pearl necklace, a present to Beverley from her husband, disappears. Clo, seeking Peterson as the thief, found him murdered by his pals of the underworld, who had escaped with the jewels. She turned detective, traced the thieves, and at desperate risk recovered the pearls in time for Mrs. Sands to wear them at her Newport house warming. Just as dinner is about to be announced Beverley gets word from Clo that she has learned "Stephen is dead," whereupon she faints in her husband's arms.

CHAPTER XLI.

AS ROGER stood looking down at Beverley, uncertain what to do, yet not wishing to call for help, she opened her eyes.

"Stephen is dead!" she muttered.

"Who is Stephen?" Roger asked shortly.

"Oh, Roger!" she appealed to him, breaking into sobs. "My poor Stephen! He is gone. I shall never see him again. All my sacrifices—in vain!"

"Who is Stephen?" Roger repeated.

She held up her arms without answering his questions.

"Roger, comfort me!" she wept.

And for all his life, no matter how many years he may live, Roger Sands will be glad that he did not hold back from Beverley then. Without another word he clasped her tightly, while she cried against his cheek, and rocked her back and forth as if she had been a child. Both had forgotten that there were guests; that this was the great night of which all the newspapers were talking; that already dinner was late, and people wondering; that the ball was to begin at 10:30, and that the Russian dancers who were to open it, as the suprise of the evening, would soon be in the house.

When Beverley had sobbed silently until exhaustion came she spoke in a tiny voice, like that of a tired little girl.

"I can tell you everything now," she said; "all the things I thought I might never be allowed to tell. Will you listen, Roger, to the end—whether you can forgive me or not?"

"Yes," Roger answered. "But just this before you begin—I love you so much, Beverley, that if there's something to forgive it's forgiven already."

She pressed her body close to his.

"Stephen was my brother," she said; "the one person who belonged to me after father died. Mother I don't remember, but the picture of her that father had was beautiful. Their marriage was a romance. She came of a high Russian family which was banished to Siberia for some political offense. She was only 16, and father saved her by making her his wife. Perhaps you noticed a ring I wore on the day we met? I had forgotten to take it off, but I remembered suddenly that it might be recognized, and put it away. I've never worn it since. That ring was my mother's. I was named Olga, after her; but for that journey from Albuquerque I had to give some name that wouldn't give me away when my ticket was bought. Stephen and I were called Bevan, because father used that name for business in Russia. It was simpler and easier to pronounce than his own name of Beverley. Many people in California knew that we were Beverleys, not Bevans. For traveling that day I was 'Miss B. White.' The name was chosen for me. Once I had told you that I was Beverley, I had always to be Beverley for you.

"Stephen—or Stepan, his Russian name—and I were born in Russia, where father superintended a tract of oil land for Mr. Heron. He must have been a valuable man, for when he was killed in an explosion—I was 14 and Stephen 13—Mr. Heron felt it his duty to look after our future. He wanted to provide for us, but he didn't quite see how. He had just married at that time. I've never heard whether you've known Mrs. Heron long; but you must know her well enough to understand that she wouldn't like to have two half-grown-up children thrust upon her. Why, she used to be jealous even of her husband's first wife, an Irish girl who died years and years ago in Ireland! It seems Mr. Heron hadn't told her about his old love story before they married, and she found out by accident. She came across a picture of him taken with the girl, and some letters—not from her but from people whom Mr. Heron employed to search for his wife after he had quarreled with her and left her. I was staying at their house when Dolores discovered the photograph and letters. I remember the day well. She came rushing into the room when I was with Mr. Heron. He had to seize her hands to keep her from tearing the picture in pieces; and he held them while he told her the sad story that he never could bear to tell before. He had been visiting in Ireland, it seemed, years before, and had met a girl, very poor, but very lovely, and married her when they had known each other a few weeks. It seemed she had been engaged to someone else; and the other man took a cruel revenge on Heron for stealing his love. By a plot which he confessed when it was too late, he made it appear the girl had been his mistress—that she had married Heron only for his money. The evidence was so strong that Heron could hardly help from believing it, so he came back to America and tried to forget. Years after—three or four, perhaps—the other man was dying of typhoid and confessed to a priest that he had lied and forged letters. He told the priest to write to Heron. But the poor deserted girl had died and all that Heron could learn, when he dashed back to Ireland to find her, was that a baby girl had been born a few months after he left his wife. He tried for years to trace the child, but failed; and it was only after he'd given up all hope that he married Dolores Moreno. I tell you this now, Roger, only because it may partly account for his attitude toward Stephen and me, and for Mrs. Heron's, too. I think he felt tender over all children because of that lost little one of his.

"After leaving us in Russia at school for a while, and a year in England, to learn the language better than we knew it, and another year in France and Italy—always with families that he paid to educate and take care of us—he must have wanted to see what we were like. We had written him many letters, beginning 'Dear Guardian.' He and Dolores came abroad and brought us back to America with them—much against Mrs. Heron's will, I know. I was 16—nearly 17—and I realized the first minute we met that she was going to hate me. It was worse when we got over to this side. We went straight to a house near Albuquerque, which belongs to Mrs. Heron. Her brother Louis always lived there. He was an invalid, you know, about a year younger than Dolores—something wrong with his heart and almost a hunchback—but, oh, what a handsome face! Dolores adored him in her way, so when he took a violent fancy to me, her one thought was to get me out of his way.

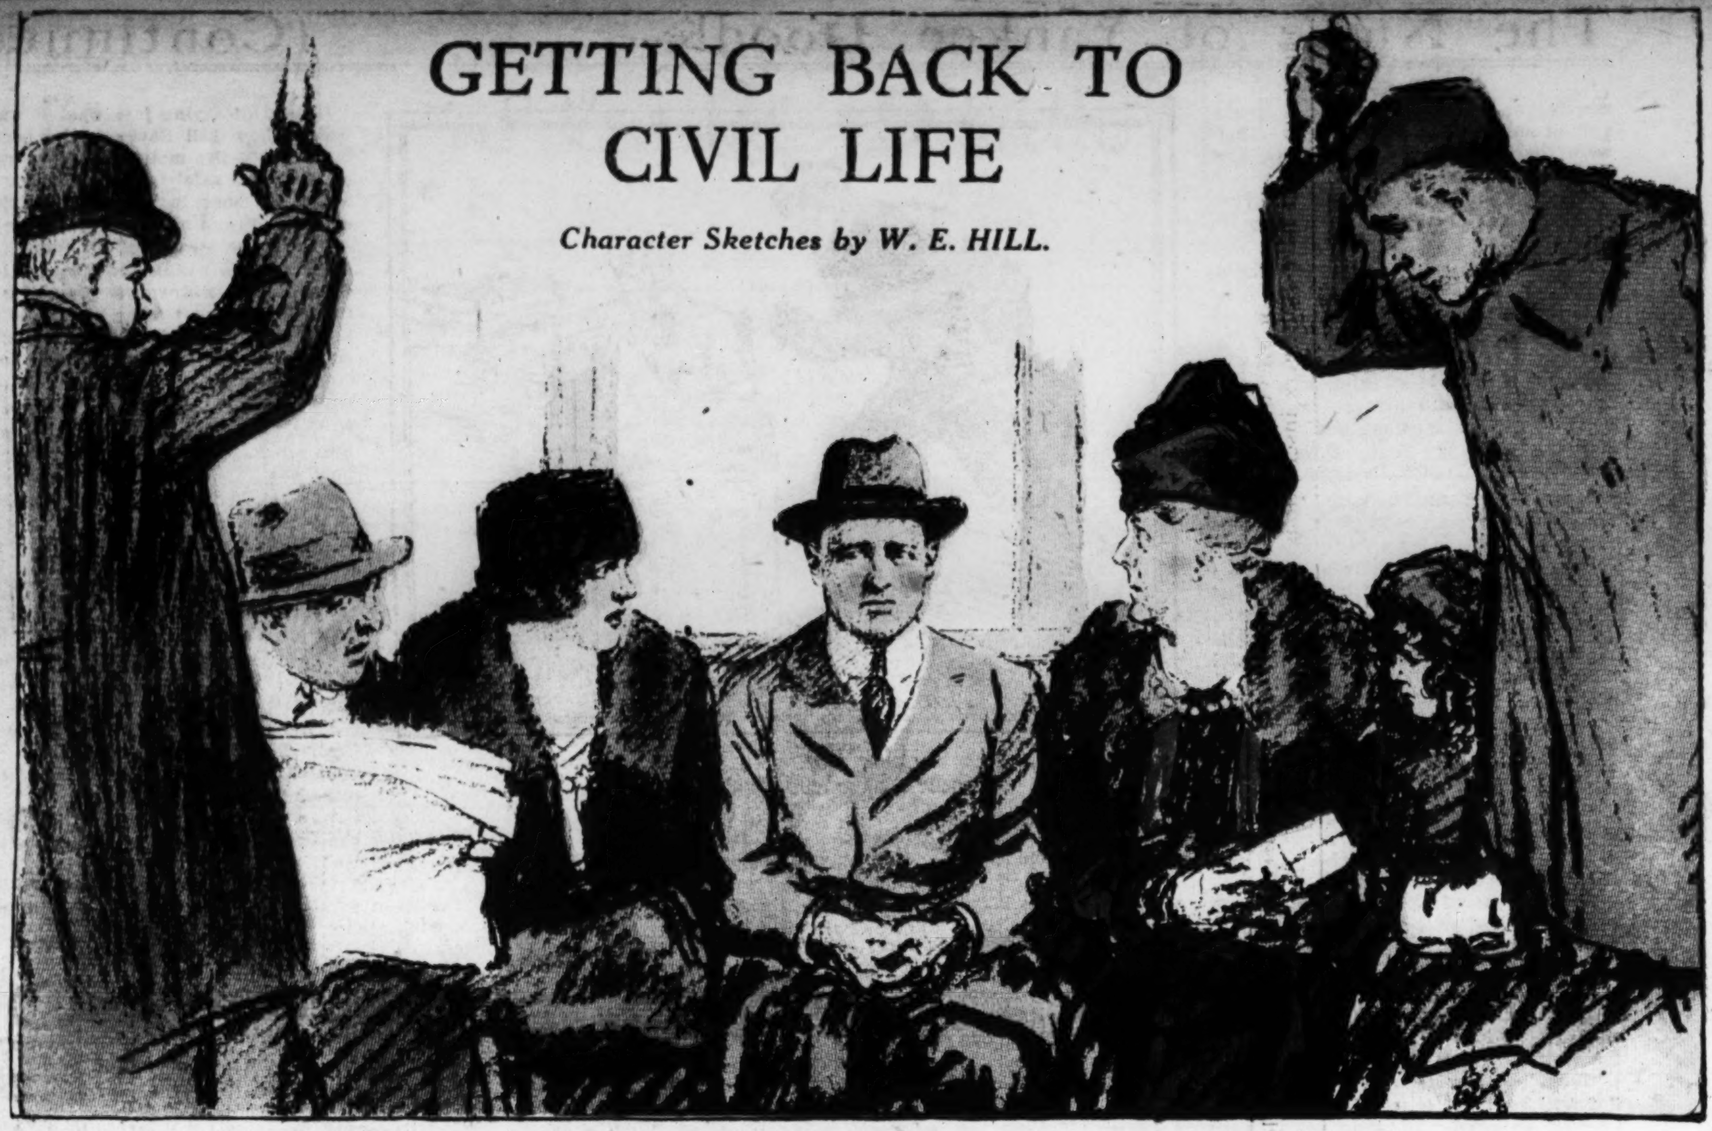
"Louis had money of his own. He was rich, and I suppose Dolores was afraid I might try to marry him, as I hadn't a penny. It was bad enough for her that Mr. Heron should have a tenderness for me because of his dead child; but that Louis should love me was more than she could tolerate. She insisted that I should be sent to a boarding school, and that when I was too old to be a scholar I should begin to teach. She didn't like Stephen, either, because he saw how she treated me and resented it. She grudged every penny her husband spent on us. He isn't a weak man—far from that—but he was very busy, and he wanted peace at home. After all, poor Stephen and I weren't of much importance to him personally, and Dolores was his wife.

"Stephen was tired of school. He had always hated study, except the history of our mother country. He said he felt more Russian than American, and more anarchist than either. You see, all mother's people had been banished to Siberia. Stephen used to say that when he was a man he would somehow revenge them. In Russia, if he had talked like that, it would have been dangerous, even for a boy, but in California it didn't so much matter. He was so handsome and charming—and people only laughed. Mr. Heron used his influence and got Stephen work in Los Angeles as a reporter on a newspaper. He was only 17, but he was so tall that he could pass for two years older at least. I was at school in the country, a long way off from all the places where the Herons were likely to be; but I was happy, because Stephen came to see me whenever he could, and seemed to be getting on well. Two or three times, though, a horrid thing happened. Louis Moreno came, and he was allowed to see me because he posed as the brother of my guardian. Dolores found out that he was paying these visits and thought—or pretended to think—that it was my fault. He used to write to me, too; but I did not answer or even open his letters.

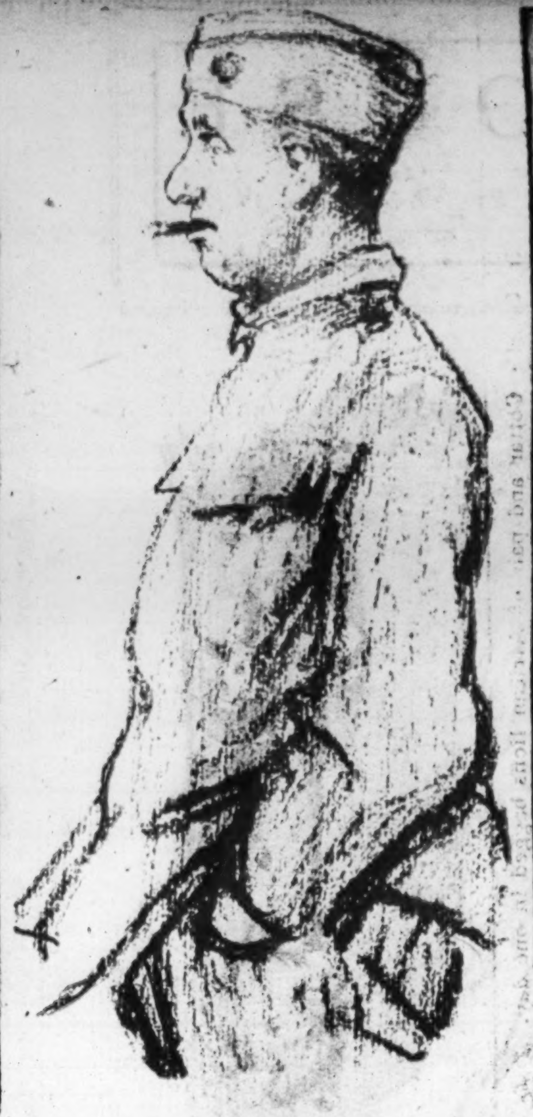
"When I was 19 I began teaching in the same school where I had studied for three years. I was no longer happy, for I had begun to worry about Stephen. He had changed a great deal. I was sure he was keeping

GETTING BACK TO CIVIL LIFE

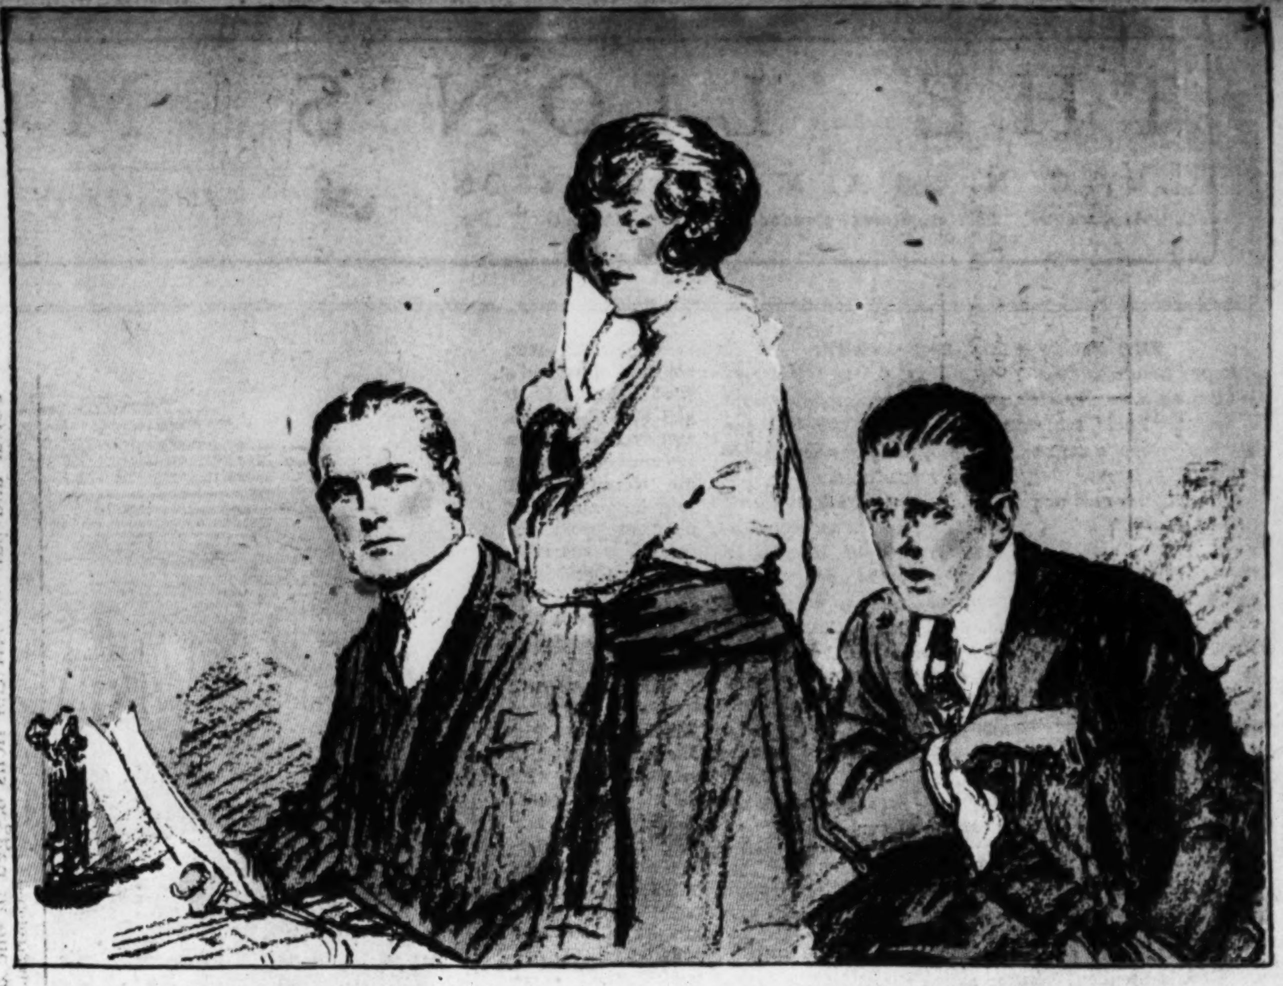
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL.



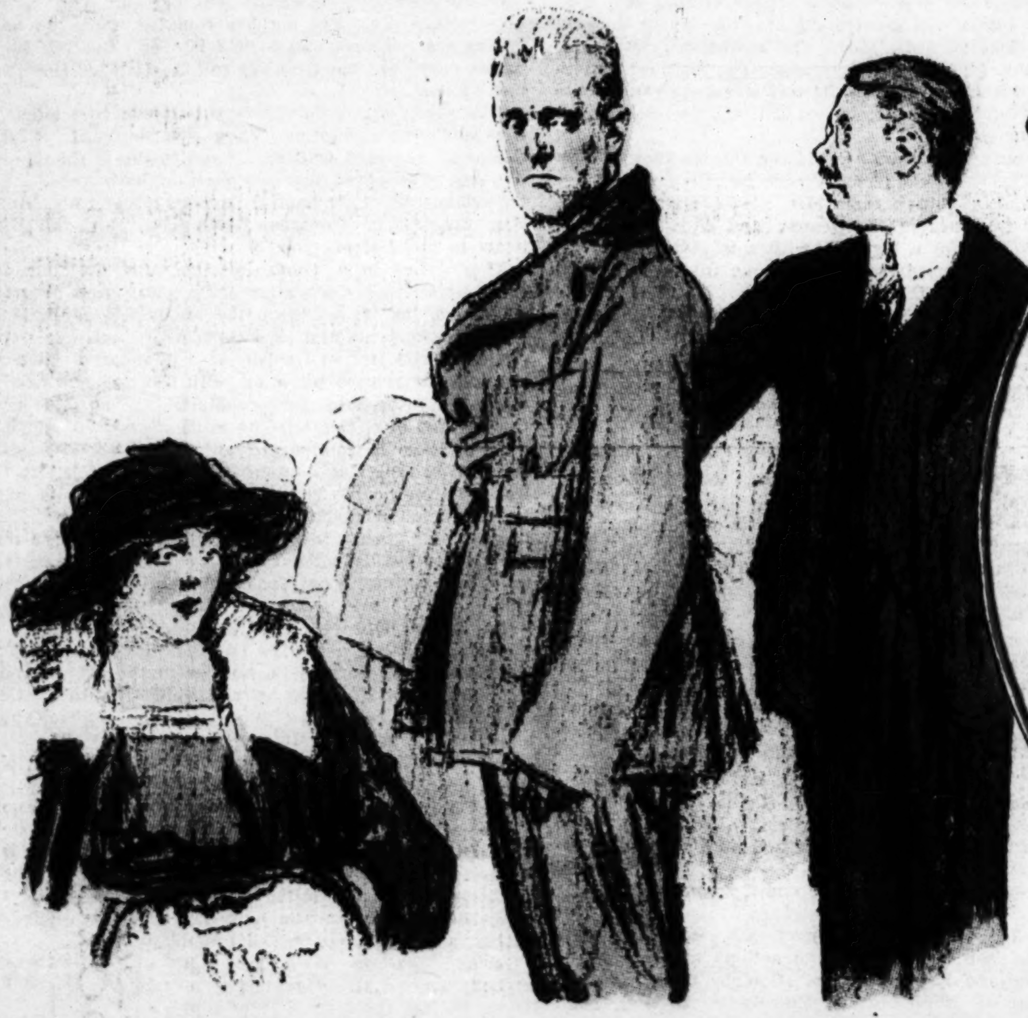
The first day out of uniform—how the trip to the office feels to Joe, late private in the U. S. A.



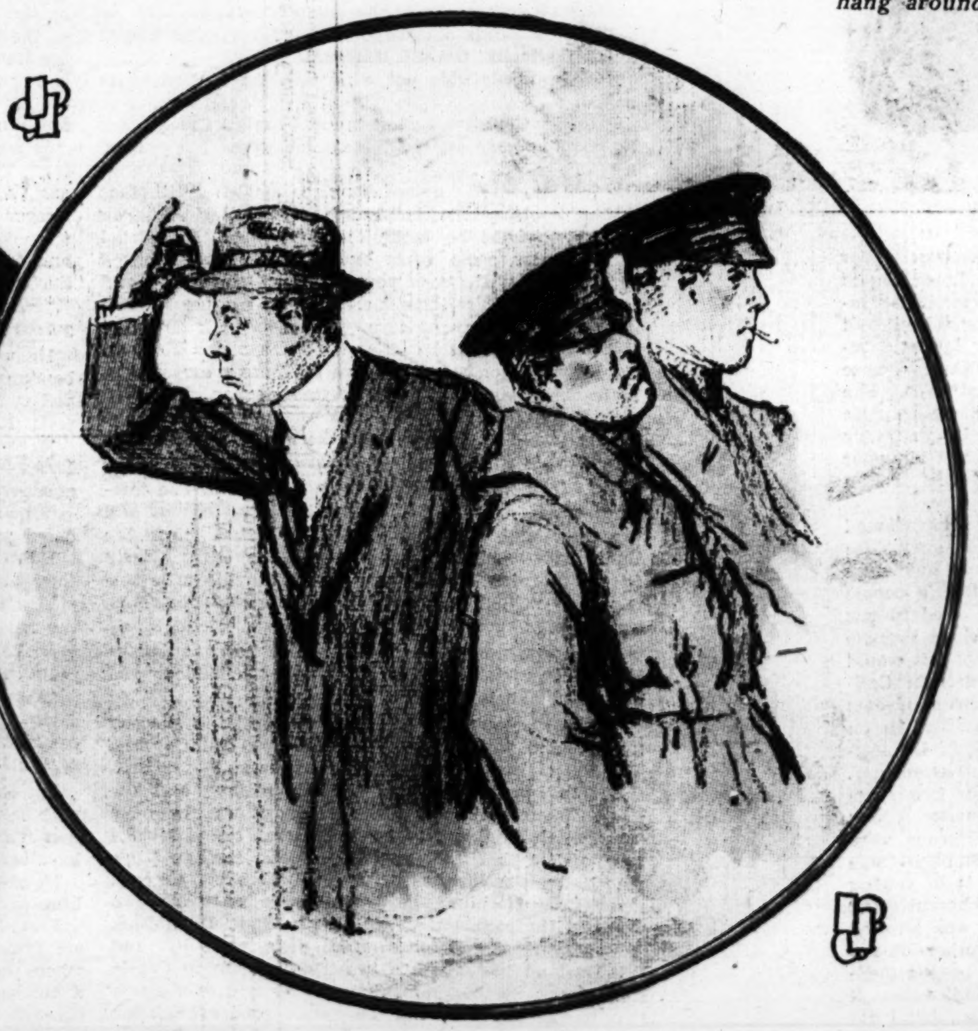
You won't catch Buck Private Helmhorst going back to the farm! No sirree! Plenty of desk jobs in a big city, with fat salaries attached to them—if you hang around long enough.



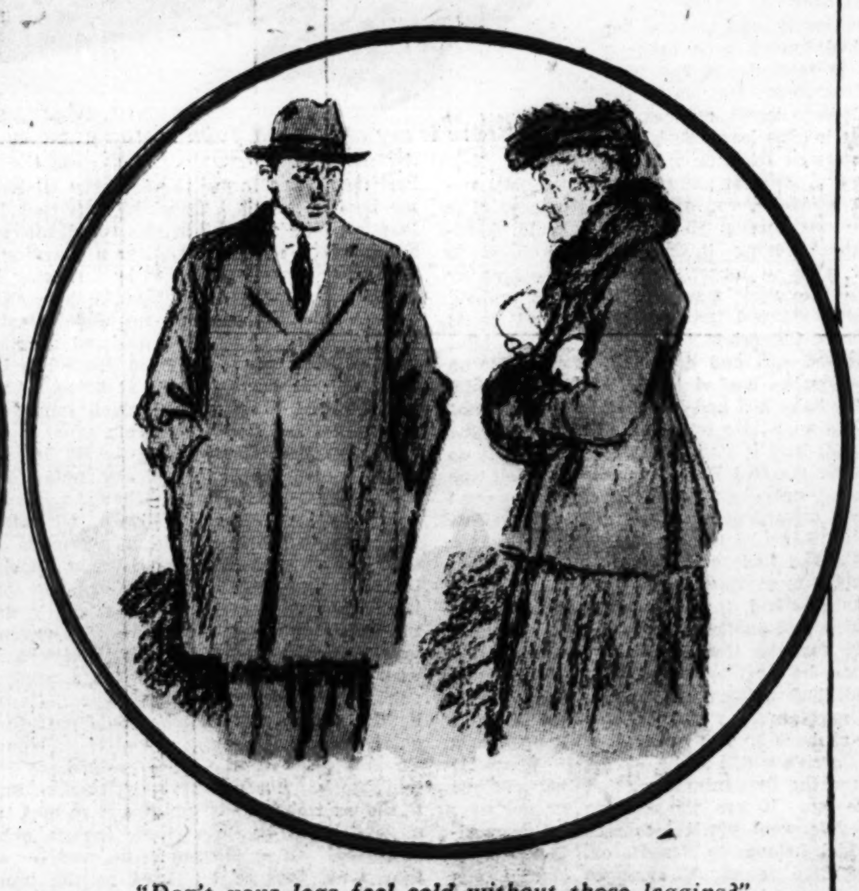
"Where's that blank handkerchief anyway!" Eddie the filing clerk, back from three months in England with the A. E. F., now and then forgets the pretty English custom of carrying one's handkerchief up one's sleeve.



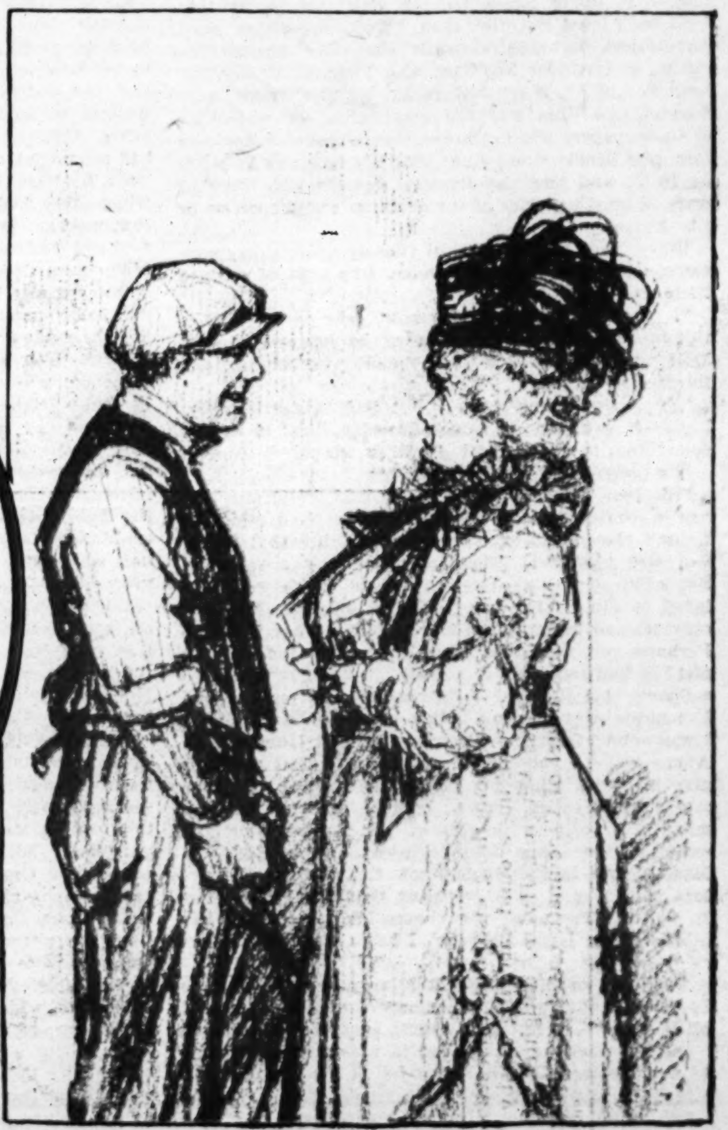
"Of course they look queer to you now, because you've been used to a uniform." Ensign Jim finds that half the army and most of the navy were ahead of him and picked out all the good fits—the salesman, however, is optimistic.



One of the really difficult readjustments about getting back into "cits" is that pernicious habit of saluting. Ex-Corporal Higgins, having checked a salute in midair, is making a splendid pretense at pecking a fleck of dust from his hat.



"Don't your legs feel cold without those leggins?"



Sailor Bill, recently discharged from the navy, and back at his iceman's job, meets Mrs. Flippin, ex-war worker. Some months back, Mrs. Flippin's parting words to Bill ran: "Nothing is too good for you dear brave boys, and I'm going to give you a great big kiss when you come back!"

How to remove hair without injury to the skin or complexion

SCIENCE has discovered a new method of removing hair. A method that does away with the old-time "depilatories" and "hair removers" against which women of refinement are so strongly prejudiced.

This remarkable new preparation is called NEET. Doctors are using it in hospitals to remove hair from patients about to be operated on. And, as it contains no injurious chemicals, it is warranted not to irritate the skin or injure the complexion, no matter how frequently it is used!

The woman who uses ordinary "removers" knows what this means. To her the cooling, soothing and exquisite NEET will come as the most welcome accessory that ever reached her vanity table.

WHAT NEET IS

NEET is an antiseptic cream-lotion that removes hair, and, at the same time, bleaches the skin to perfect whiteness! It is ready for use without mixing or mussing! Apply the same as cold cream. Let stand a few moments and then rinse off with clear water. That's all! The hair will be gone, rinsed away!

WHY WELL-GROOMED WOMEN USE NEET

Time there was when an unsightly growth of hair was considered unavoidable. But NEET made this unpardonable! And well-groomed women know it. Know it as well as they know that nothing can so rudely dispel the illusion of daintiness in a woman as an unnatural growth of hair. So they use NEET to be exquisite, natural, womanly!

BEGIN USING NEET TODAY!

Apply it to the face, the underarm, the forearm, wherever needed, as freely as you would a lotion, cream or any superior toilet preparation. You will be delighted with the feeling of absolute cleanliness it leaves; amazed at the rapidity with which it acts.

WHERE TO OBTAIN NEET

NEET comes in two sizes; 50c and $1. It is on sale in department and drug stores. In St. Louis, Vandervoort's, Grand-Leader, Famous-Barr and Nugent's toilet counters have it. Also Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Enderle and other druggists. Or mail the coupon below with 50 cents for a regular size bottle, sent in plain wrapper, postpaid anywhere.

What does your mirror say about Soap?

DOES your mirror say you are using a soap which is too "fat," or a soap which is too "lean"?

Or does it show that you are keeping your skin soft, smooth and clear by the use of a pure soap—like Fairy Soap—which is neither too "fat" nor too "lean"? A soap which perfectly cleanses and soothes, and which thoroughly rinses off? This is very important.

Choice balmy oils are "mellowed together" in Fairy Soap. And its soothing ingredients are blended, in every pure process of its making, for the particular care of skins.

But you cannot gain these Fairy Soap benefits for your skin unless you use Fairy Soap consistently.

Make friends with Fairy Soap. Buy several cakes tomorrow. Use it—not in haphazard fashion—but regularly, thoroughly. Give your mirror a chance to reflect a soft, clear, glowing skin.

IMPORTANT FACTS

about "fat" Soaps and "lean" Soaps

A soap for the proper cleansing and beauty of the skin mustn't be too "fat"—and it mustn't be too "lean."

A "fat" soap, you know, works up into a "thick" lather which sticks, clogs up the tiny pores and coarsens the fine skin-texture.

A "lean" soap gives a thin, bubbly lather. Too often this means that the soap contains free alkali and will "dry" the skin, causing it to become harsh and rough.

Fairy Soap gives a velvety pure lather which creams up easily in wonderful abundance. A remarkable quality of Fairy Soap is its perfect rinsing off. After it has creamed in and out of tiny pores, leaving them cleansed and refreshed in their beautifying activity, it perfectly rinses away.

This not only leaves the tender outer skin fine and smooth, but the tiny pores also unobstructed and free to keep the skin soft, clear and glowing.
